Democrats Getting Own Tax-Cutting Bill Ready

$200 Exemptions Increase Included In Substitute for Knutson Measure

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

House Democratic leaders last night prepared to hurl a three-point compromise in the path of the Knutson tax-reduction bill, but apparently without a chance of blocking the GOP measure.

Seeking to halt a serious party bolt to the Knutson cuts, Administration leaders neared agreement on the following substitute:

1. A $200 increase in personal income tax exemptions, in lieu of President Truman's call for $40 tax credits for all.

2. Split income privileges for married couples, never specifically recommended by the President.

3. Reimposition of a modified 75 per cent excess profits tax on corporations, to make up all but about a billion dollars of the revenue loss.

Doughton Balks

With Representative Robert L. Doughton (D., N. C.) still balking at the compromise, former Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.) called another conference of Democratic taxmakers for this morning, to try to clinch the motion.

The House vote on tax cuts will come Monday. Satisfied that Knutson's 6.5 billion tax slash will at least pass the House, Republicans turned to budget cutting, rolled out the session's first appropriation bill.

But the $99,583,551 Independent Offices measure made only a $56,213,313 dent in the President's estimates for the same bureaus. Democrats promptly charged that the five per cent spending cut in the first measure, even if it is applied to all the rest, would fall far short of the three to 4½ billion the GOP hopes to save.

Gore Challenges Figures

House Appropriations Chairman John Taber (R., N. Y.) said cuts in the independent agencies would have gone deeper but his group was bound by previous congressional commitments. By cutting back $3,092,758 in unspent previous appropriations, he said his committee actually saved a grand total of $59,308,071.

Representative Albert Gore (D., Tenn.), Democratic scorekeeper on budget cuts, promptly charged that the bill reflects an actual increase over last year's appropriations for the same agencies.

Said Gore:

"While they (Republicans) criti-

Does Congressman Auchincloss Have The Right Answer

What does Washington itself think of the Auchincloss proposals for D. C. home rule? The Washington Post took that question directly to a cross-section of D. Reporter Edward Ryan tells you how Washingtonians expressed themselves when queried about voting residence, hiring of a city manager, veto of the City Council's laws by Congress, and other provisions to be considered.

The Federal Diary

Few Changes Are Likely In Agencies

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Reporter

Only minor changes in personnel would have to be made in the 23 independent agencies whose 1949 budgets were recommended to the House yesterday by its Appropriations Committee. Over-all, there would be a small increase in employment in these agencies.

Generally speaking, the committee refused funds to hire additional employes. It cut back most budget requests to this year's level.

The committee report was critical of the number of employes engaged in personnel work. It said 25,191 people were engaged in Federal personnel work compared to 4197 in 1938. The ratio, it said, had dropped from one personnel employe to 208 others in 1938 to one to 85 now.

The committee demanded that the Budget Bureau promptly fix standards for personnel, budget, accounting and other work that is common to all Federal agencies. It said the budget now handles such matters on a rule-of-thumb basis.

The following is an agency-by-agency breakdown of the committees' recommendations:

Civil Service was given $15,641,000, which is $9,304,000 less than the President's estimate, but a $141,000 increase over the present year.

Despite the heavy slash, Civil Service will have funds to hire about 450 additional employes to work on the President's Federal worker loyalty program. The agency has 685 employes on loyalty work and money for 1126 jobs.

In making the reduction, the committee rejected funds for the commission to make full field in-

Chief Murphy Is Exonerated Of All Charges

Wins Commendation For 'Competence' in Unanimous Decision

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Fire Chief Clement Murphy was completely cleared of all charges against him in a unanimous trial board decision yesterday.

The verdict of the special three-man civilian board commended him as a "competent leader" in finding him not guilty on the general charge of inefficiency and unfitness and on nine individual counts which included intoxication and "abusive language."

In a 14-page decision, read by Board Chairman Austin F. Canfield to a capacity Municipal Court hearing room jammed with firemen, the board declared in its summation:

"We think from the record before us that the charge of inefficiency and the charge of unfitness for holding public office has not been sustained. We do not find that the men or the department as a whole has suffered by a loss of morale."

Following the verdict, Representative J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.), chairman of the House District Subcommittee on Public Service, Streets and Traffic, called for a copy of the 1800-page trial record and all affidavits in the case.

Beall made the request in a letter to Commissioner John Russell Young, and Beall later told reporters he would have to discuss the case with members of his subcommittee before deciding "what to do about it."

It was at a hearing before Beall's subcommittee that the charges against Murphy were touched off last June by Fire Capt. Joseph W. Conroy, head of the local firefighters' union, who called Murphy a

House Committee Rejects Request After Objections By Negro Group

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

Slum-clearance funds for Washington were rejected yesterday by the House Appropriations Committee after Negro objections that the project would establish a "Hitler-like ghetto" for them.

The committee turned down a request for $3,400,000 to start operations of the new District Redevelopment Land Agency. Officially, the reason given to Congress was that "no plans for the redevelopment of these areas have been completed."

Then to make certain that no plans would be finished, the committee refused to appropriate $61,500 asked by the National Capital Park and Planning Commision for that purpose. The committee explained that this type of activity must give way to "matters of vital importance both at home and abroad."

Maj. Gen. Ulysses S. Grant 3d, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, last night upon learning of the testimony before the House Appropriations Committee subcommittee, said the Negro leaders are "entirely in error. Evidently there is some gross misunderstanding. We will have to ask the Senate to reconsider it."

Other projects affecting the District fared slightly better in the Independent Offices Appropriation bill. The committee:

1. Granted $500,000 for a start on the District Hospital Center which is to be constructed at the Naval Observatory site. It also authorized the Public Buildings Administration to enter contracts for the hospital center totaling $19,500,000. PBA asked for two million dollars and contract authorization of 18 million dollars.

2. Gave the Park and Planning Commission $241,000, a total of $1,535,000 less than it asked. Money granted will be used to buy playground land in the District.

3. Refused to grant any of the $9000 asked by the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin to end pollution. This was to match $18,000 furnished by States through which the Potomac flows.

4. Allowed $152,048 to continue planning for the National Air Museum.

5. Gave the National Capital Housing Authority all it asked, $24,700.

The slum clearance project contemplates a $20-million-dollar fund to buy land at Barry Farms in Anacostia, Marshall Heights in the northeast section, and eventually in the near northwest, most of it in Negro localities. After clearance, the land is to be sold to organizations for housing construction. Modern housing would not be touched.

The funds sought were for the purchase of land at Barry Farms and Marshall Heights, both of which are comparatively sparsely populated. Parts of those areas are without utilities, including sewers and water. Houses of sound construction mingle with shanties.

Members of Negro organizations charged there was a plot afoot to buy business organizations to get Negroes out of the Northwest business district.

"Without an over-all plan before

Parents Cite Beall's Advice

District to Drop 182 Students For Unpaid Nonresident Fees

Parents of 182 non-resident day studeents were notified yesterday that the children will be dropped from Washington schools Monday for not paying tuition bills.

A group of the parents living in nearby Maryland immediately protested, declaring that Representative J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.) had written them not to pay the bills. Many of the parents received the school notice and the letter in the same mail.

The notice, signed by Superintendent of Schools Hobart M. Corning, said that the parents were required to pay tuition under the District Appropriations Act, which forbids the spending of District funds to educate nonresident students.

Beall said in his letter that he had introduced a bill exempting the students from tuition and that parents would not be required to pay as long as the bill was pending.

W. J. Fene, 9411 Thornhill rd., Silver Spring, chairman of a group of parents in the area, said that he was considering filing a suit for injunction to prevent the District Board of Education from expelling his son from Calvin Coolidge High School.

Fene said that parents had understood when they enrolled their children in the District that they would not have to pay. Parents, he said, also object to transferring their children to Maryland schools after they have become established in the District.

Corning said that he had no choice but to drop students on Monday.

"The law is very binding," Corning said. "I would be subject to censure by the District auditor if I kept these children on school rolls."

E. M. Douglass, assistant superintendent of Montgomery County Schools, said that the students can enter county schools on Monday.

One of the parents, Mrs. Roy C. Jacobson, 801 Dale dr., Silver Spring, indicated that because of curriculum differences in the

56 Believed Killed in 3 Air Crashes

2 American Planes Down in Alps With 26 Aboard; British Liner Falls Into Sea

(From Press Dispatches)

Fifty-six persons were missing and believed dead yesterday in multiple plane disasters in the sea near Bermuda and in the French Alps.

United States Air Force Sergt. Angelo La Salle, of Des Moines, Iowa, was the only known survivor from two American planes which crashed since Tuesday in the Alpine foothills near Digne, France, with at least 26 American passengers and crew members.

A British plane carrying 31 persons, including Air Marshal Sir Arthur Coningham, was overdue by many hours on a flight from the Azores to Bermuda. Most of the 25 passengers and six crewmen are British.

Flying Fortress Crashes

One American plane, a B-17 Flying Fortress, carrying four officers and 10 enlisted men, crashed and exploded in the French Alps yesterday afternoon while searching for a DC-3 transport which disappeared Tuesday en route from Marseilles, France, to Udine, Italy.

The DC-3 carried three American wives, five children and four crew members. The passengers were to join American soldier husbands and fathers at Trieste after coming from the United States by ship.

Ground search parties last night reached the wreckage of both American planes and reported only one person had survived.

Third Wreck Found

(The air traffic control center at Milan, Italy, reported that ground rescue parties at the scene had found the wreckage of a third plane, believed to be an Air Force C-47 which had been missing since last November en route to Frankfurt, Germany.)

(The third plane left Pisa November 28 with five crewmen and 15 passengers, including a woman civilian employe of the War Department.)

A four-motored Trans-Canada airliner with 11 passengers and a crew of seven landed safety last night after being struck by lightning as it approached Shannon airport at Eire.

News of Death Starts Wave of Looting, Arson; Curfew Imposed

New Delhi, Jan. 30 (AP).—Mohandas K. Gandhi had scarcely breathed his last when bloody rioting broke out in Bombay today.

Fifteen persons were killed and 54 injured in fighting tonight. Affected areas of the city were placed under a curfew.

An official statement issued at midnight said:

"Full police and military precautions have been taken and the situation now is under control."

Widespread looting, arson and stabbing started in Bombay two hours after news of the assassination was received. Police fired scores of times into Hindu-Moslem rioters and troops were sent into the city. Transport and business was brought to a standstill. Twenty-four persons were admitted to hospitals.

[The United Press said a mob invaded the famous Hotel Taj Mahal, forcing it to close. All the rioting victims were reported stabbed. The worst rioting was in the Golpitha, Nagpada and Girgaum districts. Strongpoints of the Hindu extremist Mahasava group.

[The mobs stalled all streetcar and bus service. Police, despairing of breaking up the mobs, fired over their heads when they showed signs of getting out of control.]

At Madras 200,000 milled about newspaper offices clamoring for more information of the assassination.

British Fear Blood Bath

[At London, British officials predicted the assassination would unleash a blood bath in India and Pakistan surpassing anything yet witnessed in that turbulent subcontinent, the United Press said.

[Responsible Indian sources said Gandhi's death must inevitably effect a wide rift in the government of India with the displacement of Prime Minister Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru.

[The Mahatma was recognized throughout India as the sole link between Nehru and Sardar Vallabhai Patel, 71-year-old home minister, whose policies concerning Hindu-Moslem friendship Nehru directly opposed.

[It was believed that Nehru would be forced to resign and that Patel, "iron man of the Congress Party," would assume the post.

[Gandhi's adherents in London were convinced the Mahatma's assassination was the result of a political plot fermented among Hindu extremists who refused to work toward Hindu-Moslem amity and believed India must be made completely Hindu.

MOHANDAS K. GANDHI

True Saint in Personal Life

Gandhi Became World Leader, Spiritually and Politically

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Mohandas K. Gandhi was incomparably the greatest leader and teacher to emerge from modern India. His influence spread far beyond into Asia and the Western world, and it reached the minds and hearts of millions.

He was, first of all, a shrewd and crafty politician, with a mind that could split hairs and lead crusades with equal ease. There was no device of politics or publicity which he did not know and use. He could and did outwit the best political brains the British could send against him.

He was also a spiritual force of great power, the first in hundreds of years to stir the multitudes of the great subcontinent of India. He used his spiritual leadership as a weapon in winning independence from the British Empire. He was a revolutionist in the sense that he fought for independence, yet he was also a conservative, in that he threw his influence time and again on the side of moderation and peace.

In his personal life he was an authentic saint, dedicated to simple living, abstaining from meat and drink, practicing his own preachments of nonviolence and love, a prophet of a kind the earth had not known for centuries.

With all these qualities, he achieved a following and a power that kings and conquerors might envy. His personal power was enough to break age-old discriminations against the 6 million "untouchables." Yet he failed, at the very end, to make one country to India. He failed to break the religious hatreds that threatened, toward the end of his life, to tear India apart.

The western world looked upon him as faintly amusing because he chose to wear only a shawl, a loin cloth and sandals. He never visited the United States, for one reason, because he did not want to be exploited as a curiosity.

Certainly he was curious in his

India's Leader Shot 3 Times by Hindu Fanatic, Saved by Police

(See Other Stories and Pictures on Pages 2, 3, 8 and 9)

By P. D. Sharma

New Delhi, India, Jan. 30 (U.P.). Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi, India's "Great Soul," was assassinated today.

The assassin—a Hindu—fired three shots into the emaciated body of India's 78-year-old spiritual leader, at a range of three feet, at 5:15 p. m.

Gandhi fell to the green lawn, raising his hand to his forehead in a gesture of forgiveness. He was carried into the villa, where he died at 5:45 p. m.

The assassin raised his pistol to his own head and tried to commit suicide. He was seized by Gandhi followers. They spoiled his aim and he suffered merely a grazing wound. By the time police got him, the crowd was trying to tear him to pieces.

All India Mourns

As the news of Gandhi's murder spread through India, the entire dominion was thrown into vast mourning.

Hour after hour, thousands upon thousands of men and women surged on the villa, demanding a last look at Gandhi. They threatened again and again to overwhelm the sweating police who sought with bayonetted rifles to hold them back.

Tonight, the full-length windows of a balcony of the villa opened suddenly.

Out of the windows stumbled a little group of Gandhi's followers. They carried in their arms the frail body of their leader.

As the crowd gasped and surged forward, the body, its blood-soaked garment covered by a white sheet, was put in a chair facing the crowd. A spotlight beamed and blazed on the wizened brown face, the eyes closed in repose.

Little Manu Gandhi, 18 years old, one of Gandhi's granddaughters, folded the hands before the face in symbol of a last blessing by the leader of his people, and lovingly stroked his head.

Premier Jawaharlal Nehru announced that Gandhi's body would be cremated—as he had asked—on the bank of the holy Jumna River, a tributary of the Ganges, at 11 a.m. tomorrow, (12:30 a.m. Saturday E.S.T.).

A crowd of about 1000 persons was grouped on the villa lawn this afternoon to attend Gandhi's daily evening prayer service.

Gandhi was talking to Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel, deputy premier and leader of the powerful Hindu faction which wants war with Pakstan, at the door of his villa. Patel intended to walk with Gandhi to the pavalion from which Gandhi addresses his followers. Somebody called Patel aside and Gandhi went on alone.

Weak from the 122-hour fast which he ended January 18 after receiving assurances that the government would seek peace, Gandhi hobbled across the lawn with the aid of a long staff.

He stopped as he saw a friend approaching him and said:

"You are late."

Beside the friend was standing a tall, heavily-built man wearing military khaki, with his palms folded together in the Hindu gesture of greeting. But between the palms was a small .21 caliber pistol.

He fired thrice. One shot hit Gandhi in the chest, the others in the abdomen.

Gesture of Forgiveness

Sabotage, Riot And Protests Mar Olympics

Games Imperiled By New Protests; A.H.A. Team Loses

By Virgil M. Pinkley
United Press Vice President for Europe

St. Moritz, Jan. 30.—The fifth winter Olympiad opened today as a "symbol of good will" but soon developed into the wildest day in international sports history, marked by the sabotage of two United States bobsleds, fist fights and new protests against official decisions.

Tonight, the tension had mounted to such a pitch that even the future of the Olympics themselves appeared at stake.

The situation was such that it wasn't even certain whether hockey, which started the games off today, would be played tomorrow.

The ill-will created by the internal dispute between two United States hockey organizations snowballed to such an extent that the two American teams in the Olympic two-man bobsled race found that two of their three sleds had been tampered with during the night, although they were housed in the official Olympic bobsled shed. Then:

Chief developments were:

1. Kurt Stevens, manager of the United States bobsled teams, posted a two-man guard to protect their equipment.

2. Hockey players from Canada

'Void All the Way Through'

Judge Frees Fairfax Woman Committed to State Hospital

Staunton, Va., Jan. 30 (AP).—Forty-two-year old Mrs. Jane Maupin Franklin, who said the first thing she knew about her sanity being questioned was when a deputy sheriff came to her Fairfax County Home to take her to Western State Hospital, was ordered released today from the mental institution here.

Judge J. Harry May of Staunton Corporation Court ruled that the commitment under which Mrs. Franklin had been held at the institution since January 20 was "absolutely void all the way through" and ordered the hospital to permit her to leave.

Counsel for the woman said at the habeas corpus proceedings that the commitment proceedings in Fairfax were highly irregular and that she had been improperly adjudged insane. They said her commitment papers were signed before any lunacy warrant had been served and that no lunacy commission was ever formally convened to take testimony in her presence.

The Fairfax woman, mother of a 10-year-old son, said she and W. R. Franklin, now of Woolridge, N. J., were married about 16 years ago. In 1946, she said, he brought suit in New Jersey for divorce. She contested the suit with the result that the court denied the divorce and entered a decree awarding her $3000 annually for support and counsel fees until further order of the court, she testified. She said she also was given possession of their child.

Mrs. Franklin told the court that the ordeal of divorce caused her to become ill and she spent two weeks in a private sanatorium in Maryland after having settled in Alexandria with her son. Early this month her husband filed suit in Fairfax Circuit Court for custody of the child, asserting she was a mental case and not capable of caring for him. Hearing was set for January 23. It was further testified that on January 19. He went to the civic and police justice of Alexandria and obtained the lunacy warrant.

Gandhi, India's 'Great Soul,' Slain by Hindu Extremist

In a moment of stunned silence which followed he made his last conscious gesture—his Hindu gesture of forgiveness to the assassin.

There was a roar from the men and a wail from the women. The assassin slowly raised his pistol to his own head. Somebody grabbed his arm and deflected his aim just as he fired.

In another few minutes, the murderer would have been torn to bits. He was blood-spattered when police reached him. They took him through the surging crowd to a police station. There he identified himself by the Hindu name of Ram Naturam. Police held him incommunicado. Witnesses said he appeared to be between 30 and 35 years old.

The murderer was fully identified late last night as Narayan Vinayak Gadse, a member of the Mahratta race of Indians. They object to Gandhi's creed of peace among all religious sects.

He was believed one of the Hindu irreconcilables who, enraged over the recent slaughter in which untold tens of thousands of Hindus, Sikhs and Moslems were killed in the two dominions, want war with Pakistan. Men like him, during Gandhi's fast, paraded the streets shouting: "Let Ghandi die."

Physicians Called

As Gandhi lay on the lawn, his granddaughters Manu and Ava ran to hold up his head. They burst into hysterical tears. A group of his followers carried him inside, the blood welling fast from his three wounds. He was put on a bed and physicians were called but all they could do was watch him die.

As Nehru and other cabinet leaders hastened to the villa little Manu, sitting cross-legged beside the bed, began to chant verses from the 2000-year-old Hindu scripture. She looked at Gandhi, then at those around, and said:

"Bapu (father) is dead."

Amid the prayers and chants, Nehru and other leaders, Moslem as well as Hindu, gathered weeping around the bed to look at the shriveled little body of the dead man.

The news of Gandhi's death spread with almost incredible swiftness. Wailing, moaning, beating their breasts, women and men began converging on the villa from all over the capital.

Jeweled women elbowed leprous beggars in the crowds. As newspaper extras and the radio told the story, the crowds became throngs. They clogged the Queen's Way, the main thoroughfare, and other streets in a living mass.

Some Scale Walls

At the villa, despite the reinforced police, some managed to scale the 15-foot garden wall, where they joined Gandhi's followers in peering in through the villa windows.

One of the first officials to arrive was Admiral Earl Mountbatten, the governor general and cousin of King George VI, who had been a friend to Gandhi, and who consulted him frequently on India's problems.

He joineed the circle of leaders around the body.

Tonight while lights blazed on Gandhi's face and his weeping followers group about his bed, little Manu told me how she saw death came to Gandhi:

"The Mahatma was ascending the steps leading to his prayer platform in the garden when a man suddenly broke through the rows of the congregation and bent before him. Assuming that he was trying to wipe the dust from the Bapu's (father's) face, I tried to tell him to go away because Gandhi might trip. I caught his left hand.

The man pushed me aside and started shooting. The first shot hit Gandhi in the abdomen. Gandhi chanted:

"'Ram! Ram!' (Oh God! Oh God!)

Straight Through Heart

"Two more shots followed quickly. They went straight through his heart.

"Gandhi fell back. His spectacles dangled and his sandals fell off. His spectacles and sandals have not since been found.

"The blood gushed from his abdomen and heart. He lost consciousness completely as he was carried toward the villa. Twenty minutes after he was taken in he breathed his last."

Her story differed in detail with that of other eye-witnesses.

Nehru left to address the nation by radio. He asked that the nation resolve its "petty differences" and carry out the mission of peace which Gandhi bequeathed it.

He proclaimed a day of national mourning tomorrow, to be spent in fasting and prayer

"He was in a true sense the father of the nation," Nehru said. "A madman has slain him. Millions mourn that our light has gone out. The blow is terrible. But we must carry on the task he left us."

Late tonight Nehru tried to address the crowd which still surged about the villa. Overcome, he collapsed. Police helped him to the porch. He said to the crowd weakly:

"Dear Bapu is no more. Let us not cry but carry out the ideals he preached."

Tonight, awaiting the funeral pyre, Gandhi's body lay on its ropework bed, the head to the east.

The funeral procession is to leave the villa at 11 a. m It will move by a roundabout route, to let as many as possible see it, and is scheduled to reach the river, 5 miles away in a straight line, five hours later.

To Light Pyre

The oil lamp which burned beside Gandhi's body tonight will light the pyre on which his body will be burned tomorrow.

Police said they were trying to determine whether Gandhi's murder was the act of an individual fanatic or a plot by an organized fanatical group.

The Mahratta Society of pro-nationalist Hindus of whom the assassin is one, would like a blood bath in India.

It was learned that the police had been on the trail of two other Mahratta youths since they hurriedly checked out of a hotel here January 20, the day on which a bomb exploded near Gandhi at the villa wall. Also, it was disclosed, two unidentified men were arrested Thursday at Amritsar where Premier Nehru was making a speech. They were found to b carrying hand grenades.

15 Are Killed In India Riots

Hindu extreme revolutionary group Rashtriya Seval Sangh—Political Servants Association—was responsible for Gandhi's murder and that other Hindu leaders sympathetic to his policies were slated for a similar fate.]

(Preston Grover, Associated Press chief in India for five years, who knew Mohandas Gandhi well said his death removed a quieting influence which might be followed by the worst sort of conflicts between Hindus and Moslems.

(There is not another figure in India with a broad-scale national appeal, Grover said. He was personally loved and personally worshiped by millions.

Jawaharlal Nehru, Prime Minister of the new Indian dominion, Vallabhab Hai Patel, the Home Minister, and Chakravarthi Rajagopalachari, now Governor of Bengal Province, have influence, but it is almost entirely among Hindus. Gandhi had a certain mount among the Moslems as well and, to that extent, was able to calm one side or another, Grover declared.

A Principal Protector

appearance. He was thin and wizened long before he was an old man. Those who saw only his pictures thought him an ugly man, with his big ears, his narrow bald head, his toothless look around his lips.

Yet he was a figure of great dignity and gentleness. He had a twinkling sense of humor greater than his undoubted personal vanity. He had a rare command of English prose although he spoke with an accent. Visitors came from the ends of the earth to interview him in India, and quickly forgot the externals in listening to him.

The Viceroys themselves came to respect him as a "Mahatma," or "great soul," a title that he came to loathe. Lord Halifax, who was Viceroy in the early 30s, once said he could have settled the civil disobedience movement of those days by imitating Gandhi's tactics—by announcing that he would go on a hunger strike in the Viceregal Lodge at New Delhi as a sign of his grief at the strife and bloodshed.

Although he was Hindu, he found truth in many creeds, and he acknowledged that he had much in common with the Quakers. And though he tried to turn India away from the West, with the spinning-wheel and homespun cloth as his symbols, he was a product of a western education

Wed Girl of 13 at 13

Gandhi was born on October 2, 1869, at Porbander, the son of a merchant politician who had been Premier of several small princely states. At 13 he married a girl of 13 under what he later described as "the cruel custom of child marriage." He was brought up in an anti-British atmosphere, but he went to London to study law and was admitted to the bar by the time he was 20.

He was not happy in London, but his years there were valuable to him. He learned to respect British parliamentary institutions as well as Anglo-Saxon law. He saw enough of the Western world and Western ways to understand them even if he disliked them.

He returned to India as a practicing lawyer, then found employment with an Indian mercantile company, and was sent to South Africa.

There he was so successful in law practice that he was said to have earned $15,000 a year. In the Boer War he took the side of the British against the racially intolerant Boers, and formed and commanded a Red Cross unit.

Conceived Idea in Natal

He struggled for equal economic opportunities for the 200,000 Indians in the province of Natal, who were subject to Jim Crow treatment by the South Africans. It was in this early period of his life that he first conceived the idea of non-violent disobedience, a weapon he used with vast effectiveness in later years.

He returned to India in 1908, still friendly enough to the British to support the Allied cause in the First World War, but also troubled by the poverty and misery of India's teeming millions. In the 1920s he began preaching boycotts of British-made goods and the withdrawal of Indians from government posts.

In 1929, the Indian Congress Party put Gandhi in charge of a campaign to win full independence for India. At once the British discovered that they had an adversary more dangerous than an army, a leader who could mix religion, publicity and showmanship to advance his program.

Fought Salt Tax

The device he used was an India-wide campaign against the salt tax, which touched every household. In February, 1930, with 70 volunteers, he started a march from Ahmadabad to Dandi on the Gulf of Cambay, and there, early on the morning of April 6, he waded into the sea, dipped up water into an earthenware jar and evaporated it over a small fire.

He had made crude, but illegal, salt. More than that, he had focused world-wide attention on his campaign, and at one stroke had helped to unify India. The campaign led to rioting in Bombay and other cities; Gandhi was arrested, but the campaign petered out because of the defection of the Moslems, the "untouchables" and many of the Indian princes.

He was released in January, 1931, and began unprecedented negotiations with the Viceroy, Lord Irwin, later to be Ambassador to Washington as Lord Halifax. As a result of the so-called Gandhi-Irwin pact, the British invited Gandhi to London for a "round table conference" at which various shades of Indian opinion could be consulted on the form of a new federal government for all of India.

It was Gandhi's first visit to London since his early student days. The British government, then in Labor hands, received him with respect and honor. The British people did more.

Surrounded by Children

In the East End, where he lived at a humble settlement house, children clustered around him wherever he went. In Lancashire, where thousands were unemployed because of the cotton boycott Gandhi had inspired, crowds lined the streets and mothers held up their children so they could say, in later years, that they had sen Gandhi.

The round-table conference was a failure. Gandhi went home and retired into the background while the British struggled to impose a new and more liberal constitution in a divided India. In 1934 Gandhi settled in a little mud hut near Wardha, in the central provinces. He lived on nuts, dates, fruit and goats' milk. He dressed in rough homespun garments. He was out of the public eye, but millions of Indians already revered him as a saint.

About this period two shadows began to darken Gandhi's political career. One was the growth of the Moslem League and the consequent sharpening of Hindu-Moslem divisions; the other was the emergence of bolder leaders and more aggressive policies in Gandhi's Congress Party.

The Congress Party decided to fight the new India Act which the British enacted in 1935, but was sharply divided over taking part in the resultant provincial elections and letting its members take office. Steadily the extremists in the Congress Party gained ground against what they called Gandhi's conservative ideas and conciliatory methods.

Sharpened in 1939

These divisions were sharpened when the war began in 1939. Gandhi said, "We do not seek independence out of Britain's ruin," but other Congress members, including Subhas Chandra Bose, the party president, disagreed. When Japan entered the war, Bose went over to the Japanese, Gandhi said, "I am more interested than the British in keeping the Japanese out." But he insisted that there could be only "non-violent resistance" in case of a Japanese invasion.

In the summer of 1942, with the Japanese at the gates of India, Gandhi demanded immediate independence for India. The Congress Party called a new civil disobedience campaign; the British promptly arrested Gandhi, and put him in the Aga Khan's great palace at Poona. He stayed there for 21 months, and was released because of failing health. During this period he went on a 21-day hunger strike in protest against arrests and beatings of his followers.

Deplored Partition

He deplored the partition of India when the war was won, but he accepted it. He deplored even more the ferocious religious massacres which killed tens of thousands of Hindus, Sikhs and Moslems in 1947. He went on pilgrimages to the riot-stricken areas.

The bloodshed affected him so deeply that on his seventy-eighth birthday last year he said he had almost lost the desire to live.

"What is the use of living when hatred and killing have marred the atmosphere?" he asked.

But this month, with war threatening between the Indian Union and Pakistan over the state of Kashmir, Gandhi won his last and one of his greatest triumphs. He announced that he would "fast unto death" rather than let war break out. Five days later both sides declared their willingness to settle peacefully, and Gandhi ended his fast, saying he would live to be 125 years old.

He used the hunger-strike weapon 15 times in all, sometimes with amazing effectiveness, for a total of 129 days. His anti-British activities brought him 17 prison terms, totaling 11 years.

In his long political life he was accused of many shortcomings—of strengthening the Hindu business class, of not daring to attack the caste system at its roots, of not wanting to bring Hindus and Moslems together. Yet there probably has never been a leader and teacher whose name meant so much to so many millions in his own lifetime. Already some of his followers talk of founding a new religion based on Gandhi's precepts.

Statements Tell Gandhi Philosophy

By The Associated Press

Mohandas K. Gandhi revealed much of his philosophy in the following statements:

* * * *

Born a Hindu, Gandhi often explained that he had been greatly influenced by Christ's sermon on the mount. He said:

"It went straight to my heart on the first reading. I felt it contained the truth that renunciation is the highest type of religion. Although I chose a path my Christian friends had not intended, I remain forever indebted for the religious quest they awakened in me."

* * * *

A believer in reincarnation he said: "I think we all come back here again if we are not pure enough to enter Heaven."

* * * *

The man who preached against violence was deeply disturbed by the recent communal rioting in India. Referring to this strife he said on his seventy-eighth birthday, October 2:

"With every breath I pray God to give me strength to quench the flames or remove me from this earth. I, who had staked my life to gain India's independence, do not wish to be a living witness to its destruction."

* * * *

Gandhi once wrote for the Associated Press: "Prayer has saved my life. Without it I should have been a lunatic long ago. Prayer came out of sheer necessity. The more my faith in God increased, the more irresistible became the yearning for prayer. Life seems to be dull and vacant without it.

* * * *

Asked recently if he had any message for America, Gandhi said: "Dislodge the money god called Mammon from the throne and find a corner for a poor God. I think America has a very big future, but, in spite of what is said to the contrary, it has a dismal future if it swears by Mammon."

* * * *

Gandhi was a believer in "one world." Last April he told an Inter-asian Relations Conference: "I would not like to live in this world if it were not to be one world, and certainly I would like to see that dream realized in my lifetime."

* * * *

In 1937, Gandhi was very ill in Bombay. He said: "I am ready to die when my Maker calls. But I hope he will spare me until I finish my life work, which is to make India free."

* * * *

On January 21, a bomb exploded near where he was holding a prayer meeting. Gandhi asked police to be lenient with the young Hindu who threw it, saying:

"We should not harbor hatred. I will request the police not to trouble him but to have compassion toward him and make him see the righteous path."

* * * *

During the fight for Indian independence, Gandhi said: "Every great reformer has to struggle against the special evil of his age. Jesus, Mohammed, Buddha and, in a lesser way, Luther, had to content with evils and difficulties peculiar to their times. So have we. Imperialism is the great Satan of our day."

U. S. to Keep Embargo On Arms, Bohlen Says

Charles E. Bohlen, counselor of the State Department, said yesterday that the United States contemplates no change in its embargo on arms shipments to Palestine.

In a letter to Senator Warren G. Magnuson (D., Wash.), Bohlen said the embargo aimed to avert increased bloodshed and to make easier a peaceful settlement in the Holy Land.

Ex-GI India Fighter Sees Possibility of War

New York, Jan. 30 (U.P.).—Russel Haight, adventure-seeking former GI just retruned from fighting with the Moslems against Hindus, said today the assassination of Mohandas Gandhi could well touch off a full-scale civil war in India.

Bedecked in a baggy jungle uniform and a turban, Haight, 26, of Denver, Colo., arrived by plane from India today.

Haight said he got into the Moslem-Hindu fighting "just for the hell of it," thought Americans should stay out of the fracas and, as for the principles involved, "couldn't care less."

Rev. Kopf to Conduct Memorial to Gandhi

A memorial service for Mohandas K. Gandhi will be held at the First Congressional Church, 10th and G sts. nw., tomorrow at 8 p. m. The Rev. Carl H. Kopf will conduct the service.

Branch Bank Opening Set By Anacostia

By S. Oliver Goodman

Anacostia National Bank expects to open its new branch at 4019 South Capitol st. about February 23, President W. L. Koontz reported yesterday.

W. L. Koontz

The branch, originally to open early in January, encountered building delays and material shortages. It will be staffed by John M. Harris, assistant cashier, as manager, and Robert K. Koontz, jr., assistant cashier, as assistant manager.

The fast-growing Southeast institution, whose assets have increased more than threefold since 1940, opened a facility last year to serve the Bellevue area around the Naval Research Laboratory.

Koontz reported that resources at the end of 1947 totaled $11,171,502, compared with about $3,000,000 at the end of 1940. Net earnings in 1947 approximated $48,000, equal to $16 a share on capital stock, compared with 1946 net of $55,000, or $20 a share.

The bank's progress is reflected by deposits, which aggregated $10,510,000 as of December 31, 1947, compared with $2,421,000 at the end of 1940.

ANOTHER RECORD: Washington bank clearings started 1948 with a new all-time January record of $300,050,528. This was a gain of $17,0799,767, or 6 per cent over the same 1947 month, according to George H. Bright, manager of the Washington Clearing House Association.

RAIL NETS: Baltimore & Ohio and Pennsylvania Railroads, two of the major roads operating in the Washington area, yesterday reported substantial gains in 1947 net earnings over the previous year. B. & O. showed net income, after fixed charges, of $9,259,381 compared with $4,560,929 in 1946. Pennsy's net of $7,285,125 last year compared with a deficit of $8,530,317 in previous year. Factors in both increases included a 25 per cent advance in mail rates retroactive to early in 1947 and a 10 early in October. (Another 10 per cent boost became effective, January 1, 1948.)

STORE SALES: Washington department store sales in week ended January 24 slumped 10 per cent below like 1947 period, Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported yesterday. Cumulative dollar volume for four weeks ended January 24, however, remained 2 per cent higher than the same 1947 period. Regionally, store sales in Fifth Reserve District dropped 14 per cent for week, but remained 1 per cent up for four-week period.

NEW PUBLICATION: The International Monetary Fund yesterday issued the first number of International Financial Statistics, a monthly statistical bulletin. It will report status and operations of the International Monetary Fund and of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development. For most of the countries of the world, it will report information essential for analysis of international financial problems. Data covers exchange rates, gold and foreign exchange holdings, the money supply, prices, foreign trade, and production. The new publication is priced at $5 a year.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Benson Ford, 28, second of the elder Henry Ford's grandsons, has been elected vice president of Ford Motor Co. and director of the Lincoln-Mercury division . . . Commander William K. Trimble has retired from active Navy service to become vice president of the recently formed Liberia Co. and resident manager in Liberia . . . George L. Brown, jr., has been appointed Kelvinator advertising and promotion manager for Washington, Baltimore and Virginia.

ODD LOTS: Columbia Gas & Electric Corp. expects to offer 45 million dollars of debentures soon with bids anticipated in mid-March . . . Commercial paper interest rates in New York City were quoted yesterday at 1⅜ to 1½ per cent, compared with 1¼ to 1⅜ per cent during the past several weeks . . . Twin Coach Co. will reduce its output by a bus a day and 203 workers with seniority of 10 months or less will be laid off February 1 . . . Tucker Corp., newcomer car maker, said in its first annual report that 25 "pilot" autos are in production for showing this spring in key cities.

EARNINGS: Procter & Gamble Co. and subsidiaries reported net of $20,257,421 for six months ended December 31, equal to $3.15 a common share, compared with $17,108,176 or $2.65 a share in similar 1946 period. Other income reports included:

FSA to Draw Up 10-Year U. S. Health Plan

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday instructed the Federal Security Agency to begin a study of the Nation's health and prepare a 10-year plan for its improvement.

Ewing

In a letter to Oscar R. Ewing, Federal Security Administrator, Mr. Truman said:

"Our people want good health and are willing to work to achieve it. Notable progress has already been made. But I am convinced that we have scarcely scratched the surface and that, as a Nation, we can make rapid progress in the immediate future."

The President told Ewing he wanted a program to complement and increase the effectiveness of health legislation he has requested from Congress. This law, in effect, would collect taxes as "insurance payments" from employes and employers. Doctors would then be paid by the Government for attending those included in the program.

Called Security Measure

Good health, Mr. Truman wrote, is important to "our national welfare and security." He added that he wished to make certain "that we are taking all possible steps to contribute to this improvement."

Just before Mr. Truman's letter was made public at the White House, a Senate Labor Subcommittee heard one of its members charged by a witness with being a "fellow traveler" of a Social Security official seeking to "socialize" medicine. The subcommittee is considering bills to provide for Nation-wide health insurance.

Dr. Marjorie Shearon, former employe of the committee and now a registered lobbyist, said Senator Murray (D., Mont.), co-author of the Wagner-Murray-Dingell health measure, was a fellow traveler of I. S. Falk, research chief of the Social Security Administration.

"That," retorted Murray, "is a complete falsification." He explained that he sponsored the bill as a member of a subcommittee that studied it and that he neither knew Falk nor had discussed the legislation with him. Again he characterized the "fellow-traveler" charge as "utterly unfair and in fact a falsehood."

Murray Displays Chart

Murray had before him a photostat of a chart that he attributed to Dr. Shearon, and which he said referred to himself, other members of Congress, Government officials and private citizens as "collaborators, satellities, fellow travelers and gullible tools" of Falk. Dr. Shearon, who had introduced a similar but milder chart to the subcommittee, said the chart to which Murray referred was not intended for publication.

It was prepared, she said, for a lecture and "disappeared" while she was talking with someone immediately after the lecture. She added that she did not believe "most people working in this field are Communists," but that many were "fellow travelers."

Murray charged the witness with having acted "as a propagandist" against the Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill while on the payroll of the Senate Labor Committee. Dr. Shearon denied she had issued any private publications while employed by the comittee, explaining, "I was very punctilious about that."

She had begun testifying on the health measures under consideration when the subcommittee adjourned at noon. Wednesday was tentatively set for completion of her testimony.

Mass, Seizes Utility After Strike Threat

Boston, Jan. 30 (U.P.).—Gov. Robert F. Bradford of Massachusetts declared a state of emergency today and seized the Everett plant of the Eastern Gas & Fuel Associates to prevent a strike that would have cut off service to nearly 1,500,000 Greater Boston residents.

At the same time, Attorney General Clarence A. Barnes obtained a temporary injunction in Superior Court restraining employes from "engaging in or aiding or encouraging any concerted cessation of work," or "interfering, or threatening to interfere, with the operation of any of the plants and facilities of the Eastern Gas & Fuel Associates."

Governor Bradford named Brig. Gen. Ralph G. Boyd of Newton to act as administrator of the plant as longas it remains under State control.

The union members had threatened to walk out over company refusal to grant a 15-cent hourly wage increase. The average wage is $1.32 an hour. The company offered a 13-cent increase.

"A strike at this plant would be a calamity," the Governor said. "Hospitals would be without means of serving meals and sterilizing instruments. Hotels, restaurants, private houses would be cut off from the necessary means of preparing meals; many manufacturing plants would be obliged to close and many houses, now heated by gas, would have no heat."

He said that if the strike had once begun, it would have taken three months before gas could be safely turned on again in the buildings which now use it.

Ex-Mistress of Duce May Face House Quiz

Representative McDowell (D., Pa.) said yesterday a former mistress of Mussolini, now in this country, may be called soon for quizzing by the House Un-American Activities Committee.

"I'm told she's very beautiful," McDowell told reporters. He said the woman is married and lives on the West Coast.

U.S. Mission Drafts Plan To Decentralize Greece

Athens, Jan. 30 (AP).—The United States aid mission announced today plans are being drafted to decentralize the Greek government.

Dwight P. Griswold, chief of the mission, said plans call for division of the country into 12 districts, and broader authority to local governments.

Call To Action

Everyone whose home is in the District of Columbia has an individual responsibility to answer the "call to action" issued by Wilbur S. Finch, chairman of the national and local suffrage committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations. Mr. Finch urges all the citizens associations of the community to participate in the hearings on the Auchincloss bill which are to commence on Monday before the House and Senate Subcommittees on District Reorganization and Home Rule. Of course, not all residents of the District belong to citizens associations. Now is a splendid time for them to show community solidarity by joining or at least by supporting the efforts of the associations to make the weight of community opinion felt on Capitol Hill.

It is safe to say that no other single factor will be so determinative of congressional action on the Auchincloss bill as the attitude of Washington itself. Apathy on the part of local citizens is all too likely to kill this most hopeful of all our approaches to self-government—and likely to kill it so definitively as to end all other approaches for a long time to come. An exhibition of real zeal and fervor by the people whose interest and political liberation is at stake in this measure would certainly, on the other hand, prove an effective prod to a Congress which has long had an uneasy conscience about its denial of democratic rights in the capital of world democracy. Everybody must be his own lobbyist, his own liberator, as it were in this vital test of the democratic process. In a dread sense, this is a last call. Let every Washingtonian who counts himself an American heed it.

Oil Pressure

There is no blinking the fact that the oil shortage is causing serious inconvenience if not actual hardship. Lack of fuel oil for heating has resulted in cold homes in several localities in the East. The concurrent curtailment of natural gas reportedly has thrown 200,000 persons temporarily out of work in the Detroit area. These are symbols of distress which cannot be taken lightly. The question for Congress to decide, as it considers an oil embargo as a possible palliative, is whether the benefit to be derived from such a move would outweigh the damage it would cause elsewhere, especially in Europe.

Our feeling is that the balance is against an embargo. The needs of Europe contribute relatively little to the pressure, which is caused primarily by the great expansion of American demand, for example, in the conversion to oil heating, and by the concurrent shortage of steel for augmenting production and transport facilities. The amount of fuel oil (gasoline, distillate, residual oil, etc.) this country currently is shipping abroad to countries other than Canada is equivalent to less than 4 per cent of American fuel oil consumption. To be sure, the release of tankers for domestic transport would help meet the immediate problem. But the effect of an embargo on American oil exports to Europe might well be disastrous, as Undersecretary of Commerce Foster emphasized Tuesday. In countries where oil consumption already has been pared to the bone, any further reduction undoubtedly would be reflected in lowered industrial production. In other words, while an oil embargo might help somewhat to alleviate distress here, it almost certainly would cause material injury to the European Recovery Program. Such a move, in our opinion, ought to be the last resort after other methods have been tried to increase the availability of fuel oil here—for example, a more rigorous curtailment of gasoline for pleasure driving.

One thing the entire shortage does demonstrate is the necessity for lessening European dependence on oil imports from the United States. Indeed, this point is made compellingly by the Harriman Report, which stresses both the need for a downward adjustment in the schedule of European imports under the Marshall Plan and the importance of looking to the Middle East for future requirements. For example, in 1946, exports from this country furnished 20 per cent of Europe's oil requirements and Caribbean exports another 45 per cent, whereas the Middle East supplied only 15 per cent. Yet the Middle East contains the world's greatest known reservoir of oil. For Europe to obtain a greater share from that area, of course, depends not only in expansion of production, refining and transport facilities, but also on the maintenance of stable conditions in Middle Eastern countries.

The United States, too, has a large stake in Middle East oil. Demand for oil here is increasing at a rate greater than additions to oil reserves. If demand continues to grow in such fashion, it seems certain to outrun American productive capacity even when present limiting factors such as nonavailability of steel are overcome. This prospect emphasizes the essential American interest in defense of the Middle East. Moreover, prudence demands that the United States take self-protective action along the lines Secretary Krug has proposed in developing synthetic oil production from shale and coal—commodities in bountiful supply. As long as peacetime applications of atomic power necessarily play second fiddle to military development, efforts to insure a minimum fuel supply to meet any contingency warrant the most serious consideration by Congress.

Mohandas K. Gandhi

The human soul which was the conscience of India has been freed by an assassin's bullets from the frail body of Mohandas K. Gandhi. But, of course, that conscience is not stilled. It may be expected to speak to all Indians—Hindus, Sikhs and Moslems alike; indeed, to all men everywhere—with renewed vitality and force now that it is disembodied. In life, Gandhi's strength was altogether of the spirit. His saintliness long ago won him the name Mahatma, "the great soul." Assassination can but complete his apotheosis.

Like another prophet denied admission to the promised land, it was not granted to Gandhi to see fulfillment of the cause to which his entire life was consecrated. Political independence he won for the millions who had so long and patiently followed his spiritual leadership. But the peace which he cherished for them above all else has not been attained. To win peace for India, Gandhi would have gladly sacrificed his life at any time. Just lately, in the strange, inverted fashion through which he made men subject to his moral will, he denied his body all physical nourishment for a period of 121 hours in order to coerce Hindus and Moslems into ending their fratricidal strife. So great was the veneration in which he was held by his countrymen that he won at least a truce, albeit an uneasy truce, by this passive resistance, the only form of physical force he knew or countenanced.

Had Gandhi died as a result of this fasting, the consequence might have been a dreadful outburst of violence, Hindus blaming Moslems for his death and attempting to wreak a bloody vengeance upon them. That he died instead at the hands of a fanatic who happened to be a Hindu is an irony that may serve to forestall so tragic an aftermath. There are others, no doubt, who, like the assassin, deplored Gandhi's pacific influence and desired to vent their religious fervor in unrestrained civil war. They will seek to take advantage of the tragedy to stir disorder and foment hatred. It can scarcely be questioned, however, that in overwhelming numbers Indians of every faith and sect desire the harmony that Gandhi sought for them.

In the hush that this common sorrow brings to India there is a hope and an opportunity. The underlying unity of spirit it betokens is the soil in which tolerance and understanding must be rooted. Now is the time for the temporal leaders who survive Gandhi to slough off the despair into which this loss must plunge them and to strive with renewed vigor for an enduring settlement which will permit both India and Pakistan to harvest the fruit of the independence they have won. Whatever the United Nations can do to advance such a settlement, should be pressed now with the utmost vigor. Statesmanship is a solemn obligation to Gandhi's memory.

It may be said of Gandhi as it was said of a great American spirit who labored for the reconciliation of bitter differences among his fellow men, "Now he belongs to the ages." The petty men who succeeded Abraham Lincoln in control of the American Union after his death yielded to vindictiveness instead of rising to the generosity he counseled. Let us hope that the indestructible moral idea which Mohandas Gandhi bequeathed to the people of India will be powerful enough to quell their passions. It is a universal idea. Upon it, in the last analysis, the whole world depends for redemption and regeneration.

Iraq And Britain

Sayed Saleh Jabr, Iraq's Prime Minister, who negotiated the Anglo-Iraq treaty, said in London that he would be able to obtain sufficient support for the mutual assistance treaty when he got back to Iraq. His confidence seems to have been excessive. For the protests and riots, far from dying down, increased in volume when he returned, and he is now a fugitive in Transjordania, having fled after resigning his Prime Ministership. The Iraqi will have nothing to do with either the treaty or the negotiator of it. This is embarrassing to the British, to whom the Iraqi treaty was one of a series embracing the Arab world, aimed at protecting Britain's vast oil interests in the Middle East. The provision for British use of Iraqi airfields was the clause on which the opposition fastened. Perhaps the antis felt that Iraq's sovereignty was being invaded, especially as provision was made to let a few RAF units stay at two Iraq airfields until the signature of the peace treaties.

Middle Eastern strategy is rapidly being developed by more or less parallel action between Britain and America. The Tripoli base at Mellaba, which the British have put at American disposal, will make a halfway station to Dhoran, in Saudi Arabia, where the finest airfield in the Middle East is located. Perhaps an intervening station to take the place of the wartime station at Cairo should now be negotiated. Such a network would complement the British network for protection of the great Middle Eastern oilfields. Two elements are lacking in making the scheme harmonious. One is Anglo-American effort to build up an Arab-Jew peace in Palestine, and the other is persuasion of Iraq to agree to the present treaty.

Our guess as to the latter failure is that British diplomacy on the spot miscalculated on what it takes to come to agreement in the Arab world. This is surprising in view of the fact that in Baghdad the British are reputed to have one of their ablest diplomats as minister. If there had been more decisive statesmanship shown over Palestine, we dare say the Iraqi would not have shown their present indisposition to ratify the treaty with Britain. Weakness is a breeder of recalcitrance.

Chief Of Staff

The American people have been peculiarly fortunate in the caliber of those individuals who have risen successively in recent years to the top rung of the military ladder, the office of Chief of Staff of the United States Army. George C. Marshall, Dwight D. Eisenhower and now Omar Bradley, formally nominated by the President just the other day to assume leadership of the Army, are men qualified for this tremendous responsibility not only by outstanding professional competence but equally by their grasp of and devotion to the civilian values which constitute the genius of the American society. They are representative of no narrow military clique but of the best in the whole range of American life. Their emergence in a period of crucial national need is attributable less perhaps to good fortune than to a process of natural selection.

Speaking recently at the annual meeting of the American Jewish Committee, General Bradley gave fresh proof, if any were needed, that he shares General Eisenhower's conviction as to "the necessary and wise subordination of the military to the civil power." "No nation," he remarked, "has so strongly resisted the military 'influences' of its armed forces as have the American people. Not because we have loved freedom more, but because the armed forces—like the Nation—are made up of men who prize their personal liberties and who would jealously safeguard their human rights." There need be little doubt that this tradition will continue to prevail in the Army under a Chief of Staff who won the warm affection as well as the respect of enlisted men and brass hats alike in the European theater during the war.

It is significant that the newly named Chief of Staff chose civil rights as the subject of his address and took occasion to remind his audience that "the ugly manifestations of discrimination and social prejudice sometimes cause us to emulate totalitarian governments in the curtailment of liberties to our minority groups. There is too often a tragic disparity between what we practice and what we preach." And then, lest anyone miss his point, he was perfectly specific: "Contributing to this atmosphere of racial discrimination is the lack of education which has often retarded the Negro. This denial of equal educational opportunity to a portion of our civilian population tends to drag down the whole economic level of our people by preventing intelligent utilization of our manpower resources and by limiting our purchaser income." This is quite in the tradition set by his distinguished predecessors. No more need be said of General Bradley—indeed, no more can be said—than that he appears to be a wholly worthy successor to General Eisenhower.

Atomic Medicine

The Atomic Energy Commission could have made no better investment than the million-dollar fellowship fund it has just established to train doctors and biological scientists in atomic medicine. Such training will, of course, have obvious military value in developing new treatments for atomic radiation victims. But in our opinion the greatest significance of this study is to open new doors to the enormous potentialities of atomic energy for peacetime use. A great bottleneck in tapping this potential is the shortage of trained scientists who know how to handle the basic ingredient. The commission aims at relieving this shortage by providing continuous fellowship funds sufficient to attract capable men not only to deal with health hazards but also to accomplish basic research.

Necessary emphasis on the military aspects of atomic energy has relegated to second place its development as a source of power. However one peacetime application of atomic energy, the possibilities of which have barely been touched, is the use of radioactive isotopes which the commission now makes available for medical and other scientific purposes. The fellowship program should facilitate exploration of these possibilities. For example, through the use of isotopes whose radiations are detectable by instruments, it is possible to trace the course of substances through plants and through the human body.

This fact alone has enormous implications for research in such diseases as cancer as well as in unlocking the secrets of plant energy. From the philosophical standpoint, the really important meaning of expanded work in this direction is that it represents an effort to harness the giant of atomic energy for constructive social good in the tremendous race we are running with the forces of destruction. Civilized man will hope that this approach, which stresses the virtually limitless benefits of atomic energy to mankind, may prove to be the most effective way of preventing the consumption of the world by atomic bombs.

"Stock Market Gloom"

Your editorial of January 26, "Stock Market Gloom," poses the $64 question for which investors, businessmen and the public generally have been seeking an answer from the experts in the field of investment analysis. Unfortunately, despite the wide variety of opinions expressed, no one seems to be able to explain the erratic behavior of the stock market in light of economic conditions. A careful reading of the daily comment on market behavior and a "long" memory for these explanations quickly develops a sense of skepticism toward the "answers." One grows tired of discovering that the market discounted this and discounted that and therefore dropped when it was supposed to rise.

One of the weaknesses of today's investment world is the lack of equity capital, a factor to which your editorial directed its attention. This inability to sell ownership to investors is a serious problem. It means management must abandon plans for expansion or raise the necessary funds via bond issues with the consequent problem of fixed charges to be met in good and bad years. It further means the absence of a supporting floor for existing stock issues which leads to wider fluctuations and deeper depressions in market values than might otherwise be the case.

Why this absence of equity capital at a time when business profits are at the highest level is history, when dividends are likewise at record heights, when price earnings ratios are at their lows? Your editorial blames the absence of equity capital upon the preference of the public for bonds and in turn ascribes this situation to our tax setup. This, to me at least, does not seem to be correct. Our present tax laws in a sense put a premium upon capital gains by taxing them at a maximum of 25 per cent, whereas interest from corporate bonds is fully taxable (at the high rates applicable to those individuals in the upper-income brackets who supply the bulk of investment capital).

Second, if the public prefers bonds, why the sharp decline in the bond market in the past six months? Greater difficulty in marketing, lower prices and higher yields now confront the corporation raising funds through bond issues. Third, venture capital seems to have deserted the security markets for fields where the down payment is lower, the trend upward and the returns greater—the commodity markets.

It seems to me that your Mr. Livingston came close to the $64 answer when he told my classes that market actions were determined by what people thought other people thought other people were thinking. At the present time people apparently are thinking other people think other people think the stock market is no longer the place to make a "killing" or even a good "investment."

"Unity: Looking Ahead"

The January 21 editorial, "Unity: Looking Ahead," gives much food for thought. Some of the statements made seem to give basis for a broader application of the ideas. For example, "The hope is that men's minds will develop at not too slow a rate in actualizing the truth the community has become the salvation of free peoples, and seek to make it visible," and "interdependence worked out in political and economic relation with all like-minded peoples hase become the last chance of our civilization" bear out the implication of the whole article that a realization of the community of the like-minded is the only hope of preventing war.

I would like to extend this implication in two ways. The first has to do with the community of free peoples. Why cannot this include others beside the people of Europe? Nowhere is there so large a group of free people, or one with such a history of non-military struggle for that freedom, as in India. Can these like-minded be overlooked? There are the people of China. The people of China have lived democratically in their villages for centuries.

The second way in which I would like to extend the application of the editorial is in its implication of the community of the like-minded as a prevention of war. To quote again, "A preventive war is out of the question, for even were it possible, and even if the United States won, there would simply be ashes for reconstruction and no vitality left to do it." It is not then a question of a preventive war, but of preventing war.

Democracy is at its test. Communism comes where other forms of government fail and people are disquieted and seek a new way The greatest contribution that can be made to the world today is a demonstration of successful democracy—here at home, and in cooperation with all others who are interested in freedom. It is this that can best ward off the spread of other political aggressions and can most certainly undermine man's tendency to turn to war when he is desperate.

Mr. Waugh's Attack

Despite the editor's prefatory remarks, refraining from necessary agreement, I am surprised that The Washington Post should publish the article by Evelyn Waugh on Scandinavia in its issue of January, 25, 1948, without an accompanying article to counteract the propaganda of the English writer.

Despite his niggardly admittance that the Scandinavian countries have some good in them, the whole article boils down to an attack on the spiritual attainment of a society of people who probably are contributing more to sanity and maturity than any other group of people in our world today.

Mr. Waugh has been the scourge of England for a good many years. His literary output has consisted of a series of clever novels about the snob sets of England. If he has a genuine wish to contribute anything to the sanity of the world it would benefit his noble purpose if he followed in the footsteps of someone in his church like those fine and splendid priests who succored the maimed and hurt at Hiroshima. In any case, he should cease and desist from fluttering his fallen ego in front of his betters.

Good Snow Removal

In the past, I have been as critical as anyone else about how poorly this city handles a snow storm. Therefore, I think credit should be given to the fine work done in handling the weekend storm on January 24-25. Well-organized efforts in clearing the streets, keeping transit service flowing, and police direction of traffic deserve recognition for the thousands of hard-working people involved.

Revised Airline Subsidies

The job of reexamining and re-evaluating the national policy toward commercial air transportation—a job which is long overdue and which fell directly within the frame of reference of the President's Air Policy Commission—has not yet been done. In this respect, the commission's otherwise excellent report on Survival in the Air Age appears to have failed to fulfill its stated purpose of providing "An objective inquiry into national aviation policies" and assisting the President in "formulating an integrated national aviation policy."

The commission's major recommendations regarding commercial air transport are based on an uncritical acceptance of the alleged necessity of keeping the certificated carriers "strong and healthy," by which the commission means underwriting through subsidization and protective regulation the long-run profitability of these particular companies.

To this end, it is proposed, among other things (1) to increase air mail payments to the extent required to bail these carriers out of their present financial difficulties; (2) to defer decisions on new routes until a more "clear-cut" route plan is developed by the Civil Aeronautics Board; (3) to regard with disfavor the certification of new carriers in the field of air cargo (although not explicitly stated, this is the unmistakable implication of the commission's statements on this point); and (4) to extend economic regulation to include contract carriers in order to deal effectively with the "often intense" competition between the carriers and the certificated companies.

In justification of this position, the commission merely states that "the aircraft maintained by these companies are of great value to the military services as a reserve in time of war," and that "as a potential military auxiliary, the airlines must be kept strong and healthy." No attempt is made to relate the subsidization policy directly to any definite estimate of the size or character of the reserve fleet expected to be required for war purposes, or to determine whether the support of particular companies on a cost-plus basis is a necessary or desirable method of assuring the availability of such a reserve.

The questionable character of the above approach to the problem of subsidization is recognized by the commission itself when it comes to deal with the possibility of extending direct subsidies to the now unsubsidized cargo carriers. Here the commission remarks that "the only excuse for the subsidization of cargo carriers by air at the present time would be to develop a fleet of cargo planes to act as a military pool for emergency use."

Furthermore, the commission here points out that "the problem of building up a pool of military transport planes in commercial use seems to warrant a more coordinated study of the number of transports needed, the potential commercial cargo traffic, and the possible subsidy cost to the Government that has been carried on by the armed services, the Department of Commerce, and the Civil Aeronautics Board." Similar reasoning would seem to apply with equal force in relation to the reserve to be maintained by the certificated carriers.

Finally, rather than approving the direct subsidization of cargo carriers, the commission states that the "soundest way" to build up a reserve cargo fleet would be a governmental program of research to develop a cargo plane capable of profitable operation.

The commission's careful reasoning with respect to cargo transport is in sharp contrast to its superficial treatment of the subsidization policy as applied to the certificated carriers. Even here, however, it should be noted that the question of over-all policy toward commercial air cargo transportation is left open, subject to a "more coordinated study" which, the commission suggests, should "receive the immediate attention of the Air Coordinating Committee."

That there is an immediate need for such a "more coordinated study," covering not only air cargo but commercial air transport policy in general, is beyond doubt. This study should not only seek to ascertain the quantity and type of reserve aircraft needed by the armed forces; it should also provide a careful definition of the needs of the Nation's commerce and of the postal service with respect to civil air transportation.

If, as seems probable, it appears necessary to continue to subsidize commercial air transport to achieve the desired amount and type of investment in the field, the study should include a thorough consideration of the relative effectiveness in the accomplishment of this aim of various general methods of subsidization (including, of course, such methods as tax remission, elimination or reduction of landing fees, and lease of transport aircraft at less than cost to private operators) as compared with the present policy of virtually insuring the long-run profitability of particular air transport companies.

Hausfrau Problem

By Malvina Lindsay

Hitler's Legacy

LADY ASTOR'S proposal for undoing some of Hitler's mischief with German women has raised the question: Can the dyed in the wool hausfrau change her spots? Educators and women leaders in this country are especially concerned about this as new efforts get under way in the American zone to help German women adjust to their difficult postwar lives.

The hausfrau tradition in its narrowest sense has been about as deeply rooted in Germany as has militarism. It helped Hitler push women out of jobs and relegate them to the kitchen and to a subservient role in German life. If it continues it will help revive nazism or abet some other political despotism.

American women's groups, including the National League of Women Voters, have urged the military government to do more about the German woman problem, especially since in the Soviet zone women are being industriously organized along Communist lines. Lack of funds, according to the War Department, has largely restricted to youth the education-in-democracy program. But recently Gen. Lucius D. Clay appointed an educator member of his staff, Dr. Herman B. Wells, to tackle the German women's reorientation.

WOMEN leaders here, some of whom have recently been in Germany, have sent suggestions for a program. They urge that trained American women work informally with German women to encourage and help them with their community problems, and to prepare them for political responsibility.

Since German women now greatly outnumber men they could, if allowed to retreat into traditional hausfrau ignorance of public affairs, become a dangerous force under leadership of new saviours with new promises. Also what is the use to instruct German youths in democratic ways if they receive no understanding or encouragement along that line from mothers and sisters? Many a German home is now headed by a woman who is its chief wage earner and counselor.

But will the masses of German women surrender their hausfrau ideal? Even though they have had to leave their kitchens to take over men's work, to become factory hands and street cleaners, will they give up the old Teutonic theory so effectively revived by Hitler that women should stick to "kuchen, kinder, kirche" while men wage war and run government?

An American officer's wife who worked voluntarily with German women for two postwar years predicts they will eagerly take up their new responsibilities if American women will give them sympathetic understanding and help. She found them avid for this kind of assistance.

DR. MAGDALENA SCHOCH, early refuge from Hitlerism, believes that the menial housewife role was largely Hitler-imposed, and her theory is upheld by some American women familiar with the German situation. She cites the remarkable political expression of German women after the first World War, and believes if German women intellectuals had given their sex more leadership the German story might have been different. She points out also that inflation paved the way for Hitler's appeal to housewives

German women are meeting in a ruthless, cruel form an adjustment women everywhere are facing in some degree. Public problems press in on them as never before. There is no sheltered life anywhere. There is no escape in either kitchen or boudoir from conscription to help hold the line against famine, tyranny, war, chaos.

It is especially hard for German women to take their disillusionment because their dreams were so great, their letdown so abrupt. Also, both junkerism and nazism had left them a psychological legacy of the glorification of war and the attendant subservience of their sex. Yet there are reported signs that a second political awakening may take place among German women. This is the opportune moment, for influencing them, for preventing them from becoming suckers again for promises and slogans, for leading them to enlarge their hausfrau ideal to meet what the times are demanding of women.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Democratic Woes In California

EVENTS OF recent days have infused new life and new hope into Democratic headquarters here. First and foremost, of course, is the fact that most of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's ardent promoters have disconsolately accepted his statement of withdrawal as final and irrevocable.

Childs

The polls have shown that Eisenhower was far and away the most formidable opponent the Republicans could pit against Mr. Truman. Now that he is eliminated, his strength may go to other candidates, but the polls have shown that the President could defeat Senator Robert A. Taft by a wide margin. While the outcome of a contest with Gov. Thomas E. Dewey would be close, Mr. Truman seems at the present writing to have a slight edge. Furthermore, these samples were taken after Henry Wallace had announced his third-party candidacy.

The tendency among the Democrats, for the moment at least, is to forget past troubles and worries in a surge of confidence. The Jefferson Day dinner on February 19 will give their champion a chance to make a rousing speech, and party workers will use the same opportunity to get money for the 1948 war chest.

But while Democratic divisions and differences may be swept out of sight for the time being, they are at least as sharp as those in Republican ranks. The gulf between the New Deal wing of the party and the stand-patters is wide and seemingly unbridgeable. Nor is this in a sense a regional division, since many of the most articulate liberals in the party are from the South, once considered the stronghold of ultraconservatism.

IT IS in California, where everything is at least twice life-size, that the conflict is seen in its gaudiest colors. Two Californians who face each other across the divide symbolize the left-right split in the party. On the one hand is Edwin W. Pauley, spokesman for the big oil companies in the tidelands oil fight and a successful speculator who admits to making nearly 1 million dollars dealing in commodities in a three-year period. In the opposite corner is James Roosevelt, son of the late President and a New Deal apostle.

To reconcile these irreconcilables, Chairman Howard McGrath of the Democratic National Committee and his chief lieutenant, Gael Sullivan, recently visited California. As one result of their visit, Pauley is stepping out as national committeeman for that State. The present intention is to leave this office unfilled until the Democratic convention in Philadelphia in July, when members of the California delegation will elect a new committeeman.

The net result of McGrath's visit was a personal victory for Jimmy Roosevelt. Whether this will bring harmony remains to be seen, since there are Democrats on the liberal-progressive side of the fence who harbor a deep distrust of the persuasive Jimmy.

Under a plan given McGrath's blessing, a slate of California delegates to the Philadelphia convention will be approved by Roosevelt and two Democratic leaders from northern California. The slate will be made up from lists submitted by county and district chairmen, who for the most part are believed to be Roosevelt men.

THE OPPOSITION in California comes from the extreme left as well as from the right. It is centered in the person of ambitious, unpredictable Robert W. Kenney, former State attorney general who was defeated when he ran for Governor. In that race, Gov. Earl Warren won both the Democratic and the Republican nominations.

At the PCA third-party rally in Chicago, Kenny announced that he would try to capture the Democratic presidential nomination for Henry Wallace. This would be possible under California primary law. It does not, however, appear probable, although a sizable vote for Wallace in the June 2 primary would encourage the Wallaceites. California is one of four or five pivotal States in which the third-party drive will be concentrated.

As though this were not complication enough, the Democrats have still another problem in California. That is Senator Sheridan Downey's passionate crusade to compel the Department of the Interior to repeal the 160-acre limit in the great Central Valley irrigation project. Elected as a Democrat on a platform calling for superduper pensions for the aged, Downey today denounces Interior Department officials as radicals and Reds who "would rule the valley." This flies in the face of widespread popular support from labor unions and some farm organizations for keeping the limit on the size of farms.

While California is extra special, there are enough similar problems in other key States to keep Democratic managers from becoming too complacent in the months ahead.

Proposed FBI Probe of AEC Members Hit

Senator Brien McMahon (D., Conn.), author of the atomic energy control law, yesterday declared that he considered a proposed bill for FBI investigation of future Atomic Energy Commission members was unconstitutional.

The bill was reported to the Senate and introduced in the House yesterday, after an 8 to 3 vote the previous day by the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy.

It prescribes that in the future, no person appointed as member or general manager of the AEC may take office until the FBI shall have made an investigation and report to the President on the appointee's "character, associations and loyalty."

McMahon said he thought the proposed measure, authored by Senator Knowland (R., Calif.) was "an unconstitutional invasion of the President's prerogatives."

Others Support View

He was joined by Representatives Lyndon B. Johnson (D., Tex.) and Melvin Price (D., Ill.) in his committee vote against the bill.

The jobs which would be affected are filled by presidential appointment, with Senate confirmation. Critics of the bill pointed out that no such requirement of an FBI investigation applies to any other presidentially-appointed, Senate-confirmed jobs. They noted that the Chief of Staff was recently confirmed by the Senate without anyone demanding an FBI check beforehand.

But the Atomic Energy Committee, in reporting the bill, said they thought the provision "wise" because of the grave responsibility resting on the commission members in the "vital field of security as well as in the operation of existing facilities and in research and development."

As amended by the committee, the bill said that no appointee could "take office" without the FBI check. As originally drafted, the language said that no person "shall be appointed." The change was apparently made to get around the Constitutional grant of power to the President to make his own appointments, unconstrained except for Senate confirmation.

Some Predict Veto

Some observers made a flat prediction that Mr. Truman would veto the bill if it were passed.

The proposed legislation appeared to be a sequel to the bitter fight a year ago over the confirmation of the present commission members, headed by David E. Lilienthal. At that time charges were made, principally by Senator McKellar (D., Tenn.), intended to reflect on Lilienthal's loyalty.

The terms of the commissioners expire next August. They will presumably be reappointed by President Truman, but if Knowland's bill is passed, its provisions will apply at that time.

The Joint Committee stressed the question of security yesterday in making its first report to Congress.

It said that it shares public concern over the security of the atomic energy program and cautioned against any "relaxed vigilance."

U. S. Must Continue to Lead

The committee said this country is "far ahead" in atomic development and must continue to turn out better bombs until some enforceable system of international control is established.

It said it is giving its attention to two major problems—adequate security of atomic secrets and effective means of preventing any shutdown of atomic plants because of labor difficulties. It added:

"The commission is mindful of the importance of guarding against losses of security through weaknesses of disloyalty of personnel. The Canadian incident involving Dr. Allen Nunn May is ample warning to all of us of the consequences of relaxed vigilance."

Dr. May, a British scientist, was convicted of divulging atomic secrets, relating to the wartime work in Canada, to a Russian spy-ring.

D.C. Man to Head Board In Railroad Dispute

President Truman yesterday named Dr. William M. Leiserson of Washington chairman of an emergency board to inquire into the wage dispute between major railroads and 125,000 engineers, firemen and switchmen.

Leiserson is a former chairman of the National Mediation Board and a former member of the National Labor Relations Board.

Mr. Truman named to serve with him George Edward Bushnell, a justice of the Michigan Supreme Court, and William Willard Wirtz of Winetka, Ill., former chairman of the National Wage Stabilization Board.

Mr. Truman acted under the Railway Labor Act, which provides for emergency fact-finding boards. His intervention bars a strike for 60 days.

Latin America Food Barter Plan Proposed

By The Associated Press

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee heard with obvious approval yesterday a new proposal for reducing the drain of the European Recovery Program on our own food supply:

Let Latin-American countries ship food to Europe and get their pay in United States machinery.

C. A. Barrett of Pittsburgh, industrial engineer and American Legion director, offered the plan and summed up its advantages:

"We keep our dollars at home, we provide jobs at home, and we get the food we need to send to Europe without straining our own economy."

Chairman Vandenberg (R., Mich.) said the idea had "unusual merit." Senators Connally (D., Tex.), Hickenlooper (R., Iowa), George (D., Ga.) and Capper (R., Kans.) joined in praising it.

Farm Leaders Testify

Meanwhile, leaders of two big farm organizations backed the Marshall Plan for aid to Europe.

Even as they were telling a Senate committee they support the idea, Republicans brushed off President Truman's new plea for $6,800,000,000 to get it started.

Senator Taft (R., Ohio) told a reporter, "there will certainly be a cut in the amount" put at 6.8 billion dollars for the first 15 months.

The farm leaders are President Allan B. Kline of the American Farm Bureau Federation and J. T. Sanders, counsel for the National Grange.

Kline said his group feels this country should help western European nations "help themselves in such a manner that it will be in our longtime best interest."

He added that this must be done without "resort to regulated economy" at home.

Sanders said the United States may be able to double its standard of living in the next 20 or 30 years "if we can gear our economy into a longtime peaceful world economy."

Would Use Drawing Account

A main argument of those against Secretary of State Marshall's European Recovery Program is that it would cut into United State food supplies and perhaps make rationing necessary in this country.

Marshall's program calls for outright purchase by the United States of food from Latin-America and Canada. Barrett's plan, however, would set up a barter system.

The United States, he said, would take immediate title to Latin-American foodstuffs for shipment to Europe. He estimated that one billion dollars' worth could be furnished "south of the border" each year.

Instead of paying cash for the food, he would set up a dollar drawing account for the Latin-American countries.

They would buy what machinery they wanted direct from United States manufacturers. Our Government would pay the manufacturers.

Senator Kem (R., Mo.) said "views on the other side," against the Marshall Plan, would be given during next week's hearings by other men "connected with things dealing with agriculture."

Kem and about 20 other GOP Senators who are critical of one aspect or another of the Marshall program were meeting privately last night in a second attempt to agree on joint proposals.

History Tests Tough, But Answers Easy

New York, Jan. 30.—Parents of New York City high school students have protested that a recent State regents history examination was too tough for the youngsters.

Assistant Superintendent of Schools William A. Hamm said students were given the benefit of the doubt if they gave any sort of reasonable answers.

For instance, Hamm explained, if they were asked to name "two ancient sports" and replied "Anthony and Cleopatra," they got full credit.

Chief Murphy Is Exonerated

"Judas Iscariot" and declared he had "demoralized" the department.

Commissioner Young, who had stated that if Conroy's charges were not borne out Conroy himself would face charges, yesterday said in a statement that, "I concur in the findings and recommendations of the board."

He commended Canfield and trial board members William P. McCracken, jr., and Joseph A. Wilner "for the public service they have rendered."

Young said:

"I have referred to Mr. Daniel B. Maher, special assistant corporation counsel, who prosecuted the (Murphy) case, the question whether Capt. Joseph W. Conroy shall be placed on charges, in the light of findings and recommendations of the board."

Point-by-point, Canfield read the board's opinion on all specifications. Five of the nine counts charged Murphy with "cruel, harsh and abusive language," two alleged intoxication on duty, one charged Murphy had ordered a Rescue Squad ambulance call for a friend "kept quiet," and the broadest count alleged reduced efficiency through a personnel rotation system.

Although Murphy admitted using some profanity in the incidents involving harsh language, the board's opinion declared: "Profane language may or may not be 'harsh, violent and abusive' and language need not include profanity to be harsh, violent or abusive."

On the transfer system charge, which the board termed "the real issue before us," the board pointed to discrepancies in prosecution witnesses' testimony and found that the personnel rotation system, "if properly administered," is "conducive . . . to greater efficiency," rather than less efficiency.

Said the fire chief's 71-year-old mother, Mrs. Catherine A. Murphy, a tiny, prim figure in black, wha had sat patiently through all 11 days of testimony and 2 days of pretrial argument:

"This is a very happy thing—but I never had any doubt about the outcome. I know what the department is to Clement; he just felt that every man in the department was fine. It's a great sorrow that he had to go through all this."

Sir Arthur Coningham, 53, who retired as air marshal in November, 1947, was an RAF hero in World War II. He served with the British Eighth Army in North Africa and also took part in Italian operations.

A fighter pilot who had battled Germans in World War I, Sir Arthur commanded the Second Tactical Air Force on the continent from January, 1944, until the Nazi collapse.

He was awarded eight of the highest honors of Britain.

U. S. Will Reject Two Russian Protests

By The Associated Press

Secretary of State Marshall prepared yesterday a flat rejection of two Russian protests against American military moves in the Mediterranean.

His formal replies to Moscow will be ready for delivery Monday or soon thereafter, a spokesman announced.

Diplomatic authorities forecast that the United States will tell Russia it intends to go ahead with plans to reopen the strategically important air field at Mellaha in North Africa and—if Italy gives permission—continue sending warships on visits to Italian ports.

Russia contended in two notes that these moves violated terms of the peace treaty with Italy.

New Tax Bill Is Prepared

cize the President for a larger budget than last year, their first bill shows a 20 per cent increase over last year for the identical agencies and functions.

"These are just the ordinary 'bureaucratic agencies' they've been saying are 'blocked.' There isn't a single item for national defense, foreign affairs, public debt, tax refunds or veterans, making up most of the President's budget, and really hard to cut."

Many of the first cuts were aimed directly at the President. For example, the President's emergency fund was cut back from the one million asked to $700,000. Funds for the President's Council of Economic Advisors were decreased from $400,000 to $300,000.

Road Building Increase

Wiped out completely was a $504,000 item requested by the Office of Selective Service Records for "planning and training in the mobilization and utilization of manpower for use in times of national emergency."

The rise in the bill's total over last year was chiefly due to a $195,588,854 increase for public road construction.

Virtually all the agencies received some pruning. Appropriations were as follows for these agencies: Civil Service Commission, $243,294,098; Federal Communications Commission, $6,300,000; Federal Power Commission, $4,049,550; Federal Trade Commission, $3,478,035; Federal Works Agency, $525,863,944; Interstate Commerce Commission, $10,819,317 Securities and Exchange Commission, $5,826,140; National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, $47,905,000 and $18,200,000 in contract authority.

House debate meanwhile raged around the GOP's proposed 6:5-billion-dollar cut in taxes, with Democrats continuing their tattoo of "deficit spending" warnings. The Knutson cuts anticipate a three-billion-dollar slash in the budget which Democrats said will take a lot of doing.

One Major Holdout

What worried Administration forces was the rift in their own ranks over tax reduction. The fear was that many a Democrat, favoring moderate tax reduction, will vote for the oversized Knutson reduction unles stheir own leadership offers a reasonable alternative.

For two days Minority Leader Rayburn and Minority Whip John W. McCormack (Mass.) have been conferring with Democratic Ways and Means committeemen on a motion acceptable alike to the Administration and a majority of House Democrats. Yesterday sentiment had just about jelled in favor of the three-point compromise, but there was one important holdout.

Representative Doughton, who wants to cut taxes four billion dollars without reviving the excess profits tax, is ranking Democrat on the Ways and Means Committee and the man who would normally make the recommit motion. Doughton's only comment on the proposed compromise: "I want to look into it further."

Labor Party Losing Prestige, British Opinion Survey Shows

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 30.—If the British Labor Party were forced into a general election right now, there are serious doubts that it could win.

The popularity of Prime Minister Clement Attlee is waning. The majority of British voters with opinions say that the government's record to date is unsatisfactory.

These facts are brought out in polls by the British Institute of Public Opinion.

The trend of sentiment on Mr. Attlee follows:

On the whole, do you approve or disapprove of Mr. Attlee as Prime Minister?

	Approve	Disapprove	No opin.
Aug., 1945...	68%	19%	13%
July, 1947...	51	36	13
TODAY	44	46	10

On the whole are you satisfied or dissatisfied with the government's record to date?

Satisfied	41%
Dissatisfied	49
No opinion	10

Former Prime Minister Winston Churchill, a member of the House of Commons, has tried repeatedly to force a vote of nonconfidence in Commons in the Attlee government, paving the way for a general election. So far the Labor ranks in Parliament have remained solid enough to defeat Mr. Churchill's strategy, and it is believed unlikely that there will be an election until the next scheduled date, which is 1950.

However, a poll by the British Institute last November indicated that if an election had been held at that time, the Labor Party would have run second to the Conservatives.

The vote, and a comparison with the 1945 election, follows:

	Election 1945	Nov. Poll
Labor	49%	40%
Conservatives ...	39	44
Liberal	9	11
Others	3	5

British Throw New Bouquets to Churchill

If the British people could talk to any person in British history, they would most like to talk to Winston Churchill and Queen Victoria.

A British Institute of Public Opinion poll asked a cross-section this question:

If you could have a talk with any person in British history, who would it be?

The vote:

1. Winston Churchill
2. Queen Victoria
3. Lord Nelson
4. Henry VIII
5. Disraeli
6. Shakespeare
7. Oliver Cromwell
8. Queen Elizabeth
9. Gladstone
10. Lloyd George

Free Trading In Gold Voted For France

Paris, Jan. 30 (AP).—The National Assembly tonight supported the final phase of Premier Robert Schuman's drastic French money program by approving a bill to permit free trade in gold.

Earlier the Assembly and the Council of the Republic completed action on a bill withdrawing all 5000-franc notes from circulation.

Communist deputies and some followers of Gen. Charles de Gaulle opposed the gold-trading bill in the Assembly. They were voted down, 324 to 226.

The gold measure allows Frenchmen with hidden assets in gold and foreign currency, whether at home or abroad, to sell them on an uncontrolled market on paying a 25 per cent fine.

Holders of 5000-franc notes will be repaid, but persons unable to show legal sources for their holdings faced either outright confiscation or loss of a high percentage.

Christian Leaders Group Meeting Is Well Attended

Annual meeting of the National Committee for Christian Leadership—sponsor of "the breakfast groups" throughout the United States, Canada and Europe—got under way here yesterday.

Opening sessions were highlighted by a luncheon presided over by Senator Alexander Wiley (R., Wis.) in the Senate dining room. Some 20 members of Congress, participants in the Senate and House breakfast groups, together with 30 delegates from similar groups over the country, were present.

Addresses by Dr. Walter Judd (R., Minn.) and Dr. John Bonnell of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York, featured a buffet supper meeting at Fellowship House last night.

Truman Joins Other Leaders In Paying Tribute to Gandhi

(From Press Dispatches)

News of Mohandas K. Gandhi's assassination brought expressions of profound sorrow from leaders all over the world yesterday.

President Truman sent his personal condolences to the people of India.

Mr. Truman said he hoped Gandhi's "tragic death" would inspire the people of all Asia to achieve the peaceful goals for which he gave his life.

"Another giant among men has fallen in the cause of brotherhood and peace," the President said.

Secretary of State George C. Marshall praised Gandhi as a "spokesman for the conscience of all mankind."

Members of Congress also expressed their regrets.

King George Sends Message

King George VI, who lost the title of Emperor of India last year after Indian independence, sent Earl Mountbatten, Governor General of India, this message:

"The Queen and I are deeply shocked. Will you please convey to the people of India our sincere sympathy in the irreparable loss which they and, indeed, mankind have suffered."

Prime Minister Clement Attlee paid tribute to Gandhi in a broadcast over the BBC. He said: "His death came as a profound shock. . . . It is the British government's earnest hope that his example of restraining communal bitterness will continue to guide men in the paths of peace."

Opposition leader Winston Churchill said: "I am shocked at this wicked crime."

George Bernard Shaw, commented sorrowfully, "It shows how dangerous it is to be too good."

Pakistan High Commissioner Ibrahim Rahimtoola said: "I condemn the dastardly attack in the strongest possible terms. I am sure every Moslem will feel likewise."

Amery Is Critical

L. S. Amery, former secretary of state for India, struck a critical note and held that Gandhi was chiefly responsible for division of India. "The very qualities which made Gandhi supreme over the minds and hearts of Hindu India inevitably serve to estrange Moslem sentiment," Amery said.

A Pakistan unity front spokesman, Jabol Hoque, said, "he gave his life so that Hindus, Moslems and others can live in peace."

The United Nations flag at Lake Success, N. Y., was lowered to half staff. Byron Price, acting Secretary General, cabled Prime Minister Nehru of India the death was an "irreparable loss to mankind."

Gandhi's son, Maniallal, wept when told in Durban, South Africa, of his father's death.

The Ambassador of India at Washington said: "Gandhi's demise spells the most appalling tragedy in India's history and the passing away of the greatest and the noblest of men of this world."

Last One for Peace

Fast Potent Weapon For Gandhi

London, Jan. 30 (AP).—Fasting was one of Mohandas K. Gandhi's most potent weapons.

He undertook at least 11 major fasts, 3 of which lasted for 21 days. Several were aimed at enforcing peace among India's rival Hindu, Moslem and Sikh populations as was his last fast, which he ended 12 days before his death.

Gandhi's most notable fasts were these:

1. Three days in March, 1918. He settled a mill strike.
2. Five days in November, 1921, in penance for Hindus who rioted in Bombay while the Prince of Wales, now the Duke of Windsor, was a visitor.
3. Twenty-one days starting September 18, 1924, in an attempt to induce Hindus and Moslems to relinquish their animosity.
4. Seven days in September, 1932, as a protest against a separate electorate for the depressed classes. This was his first "unto death" fast.
5. Twenty-one days starting May 5, 1933, as part of his campaign to remove disabilities for the untouchables.
6. Four days in August, 1933, in protest against treatment as an ordinary prisoner rather than a political prisoner.
7. Seven days in August, 1934, in penance for an attack on a Hindu leader.
8. Four days in March, 1939, to force settlement of a dispute over constitutional reform in the state of Kajkot. Another "unto death" fast.
9. Twenty-one days in February, 1943, to "crucify my flesh" unless released unconditionally from wartime internment.
10. Three days in September, 1947, protesting communal bloodshed in Calcutta.
11. Five days in January, 1948, to enforce peace among Moslems, Hindus and Sikhs.

Bishop Gordon to Speak

Bishop Buford Franklin Gordon, of Charlotte, N. C., secretary of the board of bishops of the A.M.E. Zion Church, will address "Men's Day" exercises tomorrow at 11 a. m. at John Wesley A.M.E. Zion Church, 14th and Corcoran sts. nw.

Durr Sees No Radio Permit Ban on Reds

By The Associated Press

Mere membership in the Communist Party is no legal reason to keep a man from operating a radio station, a member of the Federal Communication Commission says.

Clifford J. Durr told a House committee that during hearings on appropriations bill sent to the House floor yesterday.

He also questioned the "competence" of the Federal Bureau of Investigation to enter "the field of opinion" when it makes reports to the FCC on the character of people seeking station permits.

The committee passed Durr's remarks on to Congress without comment.

"I doubt," Durr told the Congressmen, "if we could legally consider the organizations to which a member belongs, or his politics, unless we got to the point of showing that the individual advocates the overthrow of our Government by unconstitutional means."

Asked by Representative Wigglesworth (R., Mass.) whether he did not know that Communists advocate overthrow of the Government, Durr replied:

"No, I do not."

He noted that "the Supreme Court has refused to take that view," and added that the court also has ruled that the FCC cannot consider the political beliefs of any applicant for a radio station permit.

The discussion started over questioning about the FCC's attitude toward FBI reports on applicants for station permi' .

Durr cited one FBI report which said merely that an individual "was reported, in 1944, to have been in contact with another individual who was suspected of possible pro-Russian activities."

Another report, he said, cited a speech in which Senator Bricker (R., Ohio) had la elled the Democratic Party as the "Hillman-Browder Communist Party, with Roosevelt as its founder, and Mr. X was mentioned as one who helped in Roosevelt campaign." The "Mr. X" was the man who had asked for a station permit.

Strife Dulled Gandhi Zest to Live

By Walter J. Mason
Associated Press Staff Writer

Mohandas K. Gandhi once wanted to live to be 125. But only three weeks ago he said he did not want to live that long in a world torn by strife.

In one of the last interviews he granted a foreign correspondent, Gandhi told me he did not want to live to see either "world carnage or the mutual destruction that is going on" in India.

I visited Gandhi just before I left India. He was sitting in the brilliant sunshine on the grounds of Birla House, only a few yards from the spot where he was assassinated. When I asked him if he still hoped to live beyond the century mark, the wizened Mahatma grinned.

"You are taking 25 years off my life," he said. "My ambition is to live to be 125."

But then, suddenly grave, he added:

"Here you may use the word despair. I don't want to live to see world carnage or the mutual destruction that is going on here. Today I am not playing an effective part (in restoring Hindu-Moslem peace). In the union (of India) all people must feel equally safe, whether Hindu, Parsi, Moslem, Sikh or Christian. I am sorry to say that now there are complaints even from the Christians.

"Nothing has happened, but all these things are in the air today and no one can say when his turn will come."

A week later Gandhi was to undertake his last fast for peace. If true peace were to come to India, Gandhi said then, it would double "my intense wish to live a full span of life doing service to humanity . . . at least 125 years or, as some say, 133 years."

But once before he expressed doubt he would attain the goal. That was last summer, when he told of his sorrow that rioting Indians had not observed the teachings of nonviolence.

Although his fast a year ago succeeded in stopping the Calcutta riots, he was bitter ovre the bloody Hindu-Moslem fighting which later swept India's capital of Delhi and the Punjab.

"Peace in Delhi, insofar as it is peace, is brought about by police and the military and not by my teachings," he told us.

did he despair of bringing about nonviolence?

"I did not say that," he replied. "A man who believes in nonviolence cannot despair; he cannot afford to despair.

"The people have not grasped the technique of nonviolence. Somewhere there is a link missing. Nonviolence is like God—it cannot fail.

"God and truth are not only convertible terms, but truth is God.

"It is like a coin. On one face truth is written; on the other, nonviolence. It is always possible for the nonviolent man to fail if he has not sufficient inward strength. I would place myself in that category."

In our last half-hour talk, all of Gandhi's words were taken down by one of his secretaries in accordance with the custom of preserving all of his utterances.

He sat propped up with pillows on his bed, both big toes bandaged. He apologized for not rising as my wife and I approached him. He said he did not mean to be discourteous but if he rose for one caller he would have to do it for all, and he was not physically able.

Gandhi remarked on the great interest Americans have in his activities. I asked if he thought he ever would visit the United States. Gandhi replied he had been asked to do so several times, "but always there has been so much to do here."

He smiled.

"Perhaps if I live to be 125 I'll be able to come."

He wished us Godspeed on a journey to the United States.

After the interview, in accordance with custom, I submitted the finished story to Gandhi. The mahatma decided it could not be published then because there was "nothing significant in it."

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—The New York Giants swung a deal yesterday that underlined the big business aspects of major league baseball and produced a set of figures startling enough to make the other club owners rub their eyes, after a double-take.

POVICH

They sold the radio rights and television privileges of the Giants' 1948 games to a cigarette company for $250,000, and the cigarette people will spend $400,000 more for station time and production and broadcasters' salaries.

The cigarette company, to get across its message to the people that its particular weeds are milder and that they satisfy, is spending more on the Giants ball team than are the Giants' owners. The baseball people are discovering that the by-products of their games can be more profitable than the game itself.

In fact, the National League club owners are holding a special meeting today with television the chief topic. They're still wondering what kind of a bonanza they have by the tail, and want to make the most of it.

THERE'S NO SET policy as yet as to how the big league clubs will deal off their television rights, in contrast to long established radio sales. The profits of television appear to be so immense that they wanted to act in concert, but they don't know yet how to gauge the price of their television rights.

And another thing. They don't know yet, either, what effect television may have on attendance, and thus they want to proceed slowly. But the Giants jumped into the business in a big way before any policy was laid down, and are apparently willing to take their chances the Polo Grounds attendance won't be hurt.

One club owner is still skeptical about the value of television to baseball. "I'm selling the television rights now," he says, "for as much as I get for the radio rights, and rights now I think it's the smart thing. Television isn't perfected yet to the point where it's good enough to keep the fans away from my ball games. I'm thinking if it ever does get good, I'll throw it out."

TWO YEARS AGO the Yankees set a new fashion in radio broadcasts when Larry MacPhail offered a new plan to sponsors. Irked by the wooden radio reports of the Yankees road games, read from a telegraph ticker and colorless, MacPhail sold sponsors the idea of live broadcasts with Mel Allen and Russ Hodges accompanying the team on the road.

The Cleveland Indians under enterprising Bill Veeck fell into line last season and they, too, were giving Cleveland fans live broadcasts of road games. The Giants next season will be new recruits to the idea, with Frankie Frisch, hired by the cigarette company, to give in-the-flesh descriptions of the Giants' games wherever they are played.

Another move of the Giants has been to beautify the park, at a profit, of course. Their agreement with Chesterfield also gives the cigarette people exclusive rights to the only signboard in the Polo Grounds, and thus the fences will be rid of the hodge-podge of billboards, that will be replaced by an eye-pleasing green except for the lone cigarette ad.

THE BASEBALL PEOPLE may be heading for trouble though, by getting into the radio and television business so solidly. Pending right now is a court decision that might shake the foundations of the game. Danny Gardella, the Giant outfielder who was boycotted by the majors after he jumped to Mexico, is suing for $300,000, charging that the ban is restraint of trade and deprives him of his livelihood.

Back in 1922, Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes delivered the opinion when the defunct Federal League sued the majors for damages, that baseball did not come within the Sherman Antitrust Laws because it could not be construed as interstate commerce.

Gardella's counsel is pointing out that times have changed since 1922; that radio and television is now a big and integral part of the baseball business and thus baseball must be called interstate commerce. And on Gardella's behalf he may collect some part of the $300,000 he is asking.

Terp Boxers Defeat LSU By 4½ to 3½

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Louisania State's Tigers put up quite a growl before losing a 4½ to 3½ decision to the University of Maryland boxing team before 5000 last night at Ritchie Coliseum.

The fiercely contested match wasn't decided until the last of the eight bouts when Heavyweight Kenny Malone, of the Terps, scored a narrow triumph over LSU's Jimmy Claitor.

Referee Eddie LaFond called the bout a draw, but Judges Marty Gallagher and Jimmy Sullivan gave the nod to Malone. Malone, spotting Claitor 10 inches in height, bored in t nthe last round with a concentrated body attack to win the round, the bout and the match for the Terps, their fourth of the season.

The defeat was the first for the Bengals who dumped Idaho, 1947 champions, in their only previous match.

Quattrocchi Wins Decision

The Bayou Tigers lost the match, but they had the distinction of showing up Maryland's knockout artists, Lightweight Andy Quattrocchi and Capt. Ken Rieder, 155-pounder.

Quattrocchi, winner of his first four bouts this season by first-round kayoes had to go the full three rounds to defeat LSU's captain and clever lightweight, Doug Ellwood.

After a close first round in which Ellwood showed he could recover from a punch, the speedy Quattrocchi moved into command and only the fight-ending bell saved Ellwood from a certain knockout.

Ellwood was on the canvas and Referee LaFond had counted to three when the gong sounded. The Brooklyn-born Quattrocchi, flashing a zipping, power-packed left and a straight right which he alternated between Ellwood's midsection and face, buckled Ellwood's knees in the second round and bored in for the kill in the torrid last session.

Ellwood's First Lass

Ellwood, unbeaten in college competition until last night, staggered Quattrocchi in the second round, but the classy Terp sophomore recovered nicely and flailed away at his would-be assailant the rest of the way.

Rieder dropped LSU's Nelson Clothier for a one-count in the first round, stayed on top all the way and easily won.

Although Quattrocchi's sizzling performance against Ellwood won the plaudits of the capacity throng, Maryland's Rowland Hyde got his share of applause with his comeback TKO victory over LSU's Pete Dorsey in a rousing welterweight scrap.

Hyde bounced back from a terrific first-round shellacking and stopped Dorsey in the third round for the only kayo of the night.

The results:

125 POUNDS—Wilbert Moss (LSU) decisioned Al Salkowsky.

130 POUNDS—Andy Quatrocchi (Maryland) decisioned Doug Ellwood.

135 POUNDS—Buddy Bourgeois (LSU) decisioned Barney Lincoln.

155 POUNDS—Eddie Rieder (Maryland) decisioned Nelson Clothier.

165 POUNDS—Sam Allgood (LSU) decisioned Bob Gregson.

175 POUNDS—Bob Hafer (Maryland) and Maurice Wilkinson (LSU) fought draw.

HEAVYWEIGHT—Ken Malone (Maryland) decisioned Jim Claitor.

Phils' Boss Stricken at Meeting; Set Many Marks

By Joe Reichler

New York, Jan. 30 (AP).—Herbert J. (Herb) Pennock, one of the greatest lefthanded pitchers of all time, died today after a cerebral hemorrhage.

The former New York Yankee, Philadelphia Athletic and Boston Red Sox mound star, rounding out his fifth year as general manager of the Philadelphia Phillies, collapsed as he entered the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel to attend a National League meeting. He was taken to the Midtown Hospital, where he died an hour later.

The slender, grey-haired Pennock, who began his major league pitching career 36 years ago at the age of 18, and who racked up 245 victories over a 22-year span, including five with out a defeat in World Series competition, would have celebrated his fifty-fourth birthday on February 10.

No Hint of Ill Health

There had been no hint that Pennock was ailing. Only a few hours before he died, he had invited friends to attend the fights at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Young Bob Carpenter, president of the Phillies, who accompanied Pennock to the hospital and remained at the bedside until he died, was broken up over the death of the man he had idolized since he was a child.

"This is the saddest day of my life," Carpenter said. "It is too bad Herb couldn't have lived to see the fruits of his efforts that were bound to come. He devoted the last years of his life to build up a strong organization in Philadelphia."

Born In 1894

Pennock was born February 10, 1894, at Kennett Square, Pa., of Quaker parentage. His love for the farm country of Chester County where he spent every winter hunting and following hounds, earned him the title of "Squire of Kennett Square." He was married to Esther M. Freck in 1915.

Although he never carried more than 165 pounds on his frail-looking six foot frame, Pennock was one of the most durable pitchers of his time. Only two other pitchers, Cy Young and Sad Sam Jones, matched his record of pitching 22 years in the majors. His chief assets on the mound were keen control, a baffling change of pace and a sharp1breaking curve.

Heero of 1923 Series

He reached the peak of his playing career during the 11 seasons he performed with the Yankees and the zenith was attained when he saved the world series of 1923 for the Bronx Bombers against the New York Giants by pitching three times in four days, winning two games. Four years later he set a series when he pitched 7 1-3 consecutive innings without allowing a runner to reach first base. That was his fifth and last world series triumph without a defeat.

Pennock was one of the select few who made Connie Mack liter-

Alexander Grabs Golf Lead, 63-130

Tucson, Ariz., Jan. 30 (AP).—Stewart (Skip) Alexander, Mid Pines, N. C., came out of the gathering dusk tonight with a seven-under-par 63 to take a one-stroke lead in the $10,000 Tucson Open with a 36-hole score of 130.

In second place with 131 is bushy browed Jimmy Hines of Chicago and Tuscon, the former Ryder cup player.

Vic Ghezzi, former PGA champ, is two strokes behind the pacemaker and might well have grabbed the lead today except for a troublesome putter.

Worsham at 137

Still within striking distance of the leaders are the favorites, Bobby Locke, Johannesburg, South Africa, deadlocked with a field of four with scores of 133. Ben Hogan, Hershey, Pa., and amateur Frank Stranahan, Toledo, Ohio, one stroke back wtih 134.

Defending National Open Champion Lew Worsham of Washington, D. C., was seven strokes off the pace with a 70, 67—137.

His brother, Buck Worsham, of Mamaroneck (N Y.), carded a 136. Harold Oatman of Norfolk (Va.) came in with a 144 for the 36 holes.

Douglas Drops Back

Dave Douglas, who led the field at the end of the first round, added a par 70 today and was included in the group with Locke.

Also at 133 is Chandler Harper, Portsmouth, Va., who added a 64 to the 69 he recorded yesterday.

The low 60 professionals will take out on the 18-hole third round tomorrow with the 72-hole tourney scheduled to wind up Sunday.

Montgomery Bows

Longwood Prep defeated Richard Montgomery, 27-21, in a rough and tumble basketball game last night at Rockville. Longwood's Jiras dominated the low-scornig contest with 15 points. Ward Fetrow was high for the losers with seven.

Lions Finally Win, Beating Hershey, 8-7

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

Two goals by Kenny Schultz in the last minute of play capped a six-goal last period Washington Lion rally that enabled the Lions to down the Hershey Bears, 8-7, in probably the most thrilling hockey game ever seen at Uline Arena.

Before 1375 frantic fans, the Lions put on a rally that almost defied belief. Trailing 6-2 as the last session began and 7-3 after 10 minutes, the freakiest goal seen here this year started the Lions on their way to victory.

Hershey goalie Gordie Henry tried to clear the puck from in front of his own net, but his little push hit teammate Rollie McLenahan and bounced into the net to make it 7-4. The goal was credited to Herb Lovett of the Lions, the nearest Washington man to the action.

The goals by Dan Porteous, Bob Walton and Schultz's two last minute scores turned what had seemed a crushing defeat into a Lion victory.

Hershey scored three times in the opening period. Johnny Pierson, Gordie Bruce and Paul Ronty were the goal-getters.

Washington's center, Red Raney, was carried unconscious from the ice after a hard fall during a scuffle near the Washington net. He was removed to Garfield Hospital for observation. Two stitches were required on his scalp.

In the second period, the Bears upped their margin to 6-2. Frank Mario, Jack McGill and Joe Schertzl sandwiched goals around a pair of Lion tallies by George Hunchuk and Joe Ciuman.

The lineups:

Anacostia, Roosevelt Win Interhigh Games

By Herb Heft

Central Defeats Coolidge, 47 to 34,

Led by Jimmy Pantos and Hal Sponsler, who chalked up 14 points apiece, Central defeated Coolidge, 47-34, last night in the first game of doubleheader at the National Guard Armory.

The smallest night crowd of the Interhigh season—about 1300—was on hand to see the Vikings chalk up their third win against one loss and move into a tie for first place with Roosevelt.

Central had an easy time of it except in the third quarter when Coolidge outscored the Vikings, 13-7, and pulled up to trail only 25-28 going into the final stanza. However, Ceneral rallied for 19 points in the last eight minutes to coast.

Bobby Rohr, playing the last game (he was graduated Thursday night), scored seven points. Tommy Boyle was top scorer for the Colts with 12.

Western, Eastern End Up as Losers

Anacostia's Indians and Roosevelt Rough Riders scored victories in yesterday afternoon's Interhigh doubleheader before 1224 spectators at the National Guard Armory.

In the first game, Western's Red Raiders fell before Anacostia and sharpshooters Wally Warner by a 49-39 count. In the nightcap, Eastern's Ramblers were upset by Roosevelt, 41-35.

Roosevelt's victory was its third in four games, while Anacostia's was its second in four.

Warner was the whole show in the first game as he flipped in 25 points, more than any Interhigh player has scored in a single game in at least 12 years.

Tapping 'em from under the basket, and hooking 'em up from the edge of the foul circle, the 6 foot, 4 inch whiz sank 10 out of the 20 field goals he attempted.

The whole Anacostia team was "hot" as a matter of fact, they dipped in 24 out of 52 field goals tries for a remarkable 46 per cent record. The Indians were ahead all the way, leading at the quarter-mark by 14-7, 25-14 and 41-24.

Roosevelt was off to a bad start in the second game falling behind 6-0, in the first quarter. But the Riders pulled up to a 13-13 at the end of the first period. They went ahead for keeps when Glenn Johnson dropped in a foul at the opening of the second.

All-High, All-Prep Game Set March 20 At Uline's Arena

The second annual All-High vs. All-Prep basketball game will take place March 20 at Uline Arena, the sponsoring Big Brother alumni of the Georgetown Branch Boys Club announced yesterday.

The opposing squads will be selected by sporterwriters. The All-High team will compose public high school stars, while the All-Preps will represent the District's private, parochial and prep schools.

Joseph R. Steelman, assistant to President Truman, is honorary chairman. Proceeds will go to the Boys Club, to be used toward construction of a new building.

Notre Dame Girls Defeat Immaculate

In varsity games of the Catholic Youth Organization girls basketball league, the results were Notre Dame 32, Immaculate 31; St. Patrick's 52, Holy Name 18; Sacred Heart 21, St. Cecilia's 29; Holy Trinity 28, St. Anthony's 16.

St. Cecilia's defeated Sacred Heart, 16-14, and St. Patrick's swamped the Academy of the Sacred Heart, 46-22, in freshman games.

Virginia Tech Wins, 71 to 49

Blacksburg, Va., Jan. 30 (AP).—After three consecutive defeats, Virginia Tech bounced back here tonight with a surprising 71-49 victory over Hampden-Sydney, generally considered one of the strongest "Little Six" basketball contenders in the state.

Oxon Hill Loses

Surrattsville High overcame a two-point halftime deficit to defeat Oxon Hill, 34-25, at the losers' gym yesterday. Dick Moore scored 10 points for the winners and Vernon Herath dumped in 13 for Oxon Hill.

Washington and Lee's grapplers defeated the University of Maryland, 25 to 3, today in a Southern Conference match at College Park.

Olympic Furor Marked by Sabotage, Riot, Disputes

St. Moritz Games Periled by Events;

and Sweden engaged in a free-for-all fist fight.

3. The International Olympic Committee ruled that the hockey competition could not be recognized as an Olympic event, and that the International Ice Hockey Federation—the Ligue Internationale de Sur Glace—no longer was qualified to represent world amateur hockey.

4. The speed skaters of the non-Scandinavian nations voted to protest the ruling of the International Skating Union on a complicated system of pairing for successive events.

5. The Amateur Hockey Association team of the United States was booed by a crowd, which included 200 Americans.

These events shoved in the background the actual athletic competition of the day which in hockey saw Switzerland defeat the A. H. A. 5 to 4; Sweden beat Canada, 3 to 1; Czechoslovakia overwhelm Italy 22 to 2; Poland triumph over Austria 7 to 5 and the Swiss team of Felix Endrich and Friedrich Waller pile up a commanding lead in the two-man bobsled competition.

At the halfway mark of the bobsled competition, one of the two American teams whose sleds were sabotaged was in a tie for fourth place while the other was in sixth position.

As the American teams went to the shed to get their bobsleds they found that nuts were loosened and he pushers broken on one sled and the main bolt holding the steering wheel to the runners was almost completely unscrewed here on.

"When we lifted the sled, the steering wheel fell off," Stevens said. "Had the bolt been unscrewed only part of the way we might not have noticed this. It could have come off during the run and badly injured our boys. We never dreamed it would be necessary to check such matters, but we will check every bolt and nut from here on."

"We are not taking any more chances on our bobs being damaged," Stevens added as he disclosed that he had posted a two-man guard over the equipment. "The smashing last night or early today of our sleds was deliberate."

He said the two sleds were stored between the door and other United States sleds "so there could have been no accident like a car running into them."

There was no indication whether an official investigation would be ordered.

The hockeey game between the A. H. A. team of the United States and the Swiss launched the competition after President Eurico Cello of Switzerland officially opened the winter games with the declaration that they were the "symbol of a new world of peace and good-will."

But the American team, apparently upset by the booing it received, started off badly. Among those booing were 200 Americans at ringside, including the members of the rival United States Olympic committee team who cheered each time the Swiss took the offensive. The USOC team left the stadium midway through the first period.

The Swiss piled up a 2-to-0 lead before the Americans scored and, although Ralph Warburton, the AHA's right winger from Cranston, R. I., made a valiant effort to make up for the bad start by scoring three goals, the Swiss prevailed.

But the Canada-Sweden game touched offi the real fireworks. With only two minutes left to play, the referee penalized one player from each team simultaneously for roughing, and when play resumed Sweden's Ake Andersson fell while attacking the goal. A Canadian player jumped on his back, crushing Andersson's head to the ice.

The free-for-all followed, with players from both teams pummeling away and the referee finally brought it under control by sending the Canadian player off the ice.

After the four games were played, the I. O. C., at a special meeting, voted to throw hockey out of the games so far as an official status was concerned.

The full committee, which had voted to bar both U. S. teams, also ruled that the International Ice Hockey Federation no longer would be recognized as the controlling body of the world's amateur ice hockey. The committee, too, expressed its regret at the action of the Swiss organizing committee "in permitting this match to take place."

A.H.A. Team Loses As U. S. Rivals Boo

The speed skating squabble developed today when the five-man Olympic ice skating committee ruled that the winners of tomorrow's 500-meter (546.8 yards) would be paired in the 1500 (119.6 yards less than a mile) and other competitors paired according to the comparative skill they showed in the 500.

The competitors themselves had voted last night to use Olympic drawing rules, which call for a new draw before each race to pair off racers to skate together.

Norway, Sweden and Finland liked the committee's decision because they believe the tougher the competition, the better they do.

But the United States skaters didn't and they drafted a protest along with 10 other nations. Ben Begade, United States speed skating manager, said the skaters even went so far as to propose a strike, but the United States advised against it and won out.

Across the Nation:

Dud DeGroot Eyeing Job At Humboldt

Eureka, Calif., Jan. 30 (AP).—Dudley DeGroot, former coach of the Los Angeles Dons of the All-America Professional Football Conference, admitted today he was "interested" in the coaching job at Humboldt State College here.

Arthur S. Gist, president of the college, had no comment on DeGroot's visit. The current football coach at Humboldt is Joe Forbes. DeGroot said he had offers from other schools.

Rickey Gets Award

New York, Jan. 30 (AP).—The New York Sports Broadcasters Association tonight selected President Branch Rickey of the Brooklyn Dodgers as the person who contributed most to sports in 1947.

Stydahar Signs

Los Angeles, Jan. 30 (AP).—Big Joe Stydahar signed a new contract as assistant coach of the Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League today, spiking reports that he might return as head coach of his alma mater, West Virginia.

Mikula Goes Pro

Williamsburg, Va., Jan. 30 (AP).—Tom Mikula, 200-pound blocking back from Johnstown, Pa., who has been a backfield regular at the College of William and Mary for three seasons, said today he had signed a one-year contract with the Brooklyn Football Dodgers.

Fined for Bashing

New York, Jan. 30 (AP).—Maurice Podoloff, president of the American Hockey League, today fined Center Lloyd Doran of the Indianapolis Capitals $100 for breaking his stick over the head of an opponent in a game in Providence last night.

13 Go in $100,000 Race

Arcadia, Calif., Jan. 30 (AP).—Thirteen candidates were named today to run in the turf's newest extravaganza, the $100,000 Santa Anita Maturity, tomorrow at Santa Anita Park.

Entered were On Trust, Double Jay, Miss Kimo, Triskelion, Hemet Squaw, Tropical Sea, Brabancon, Flashco, Lodge Night, Stag Night, Secnav, Cornish Knight and Wheatfield.

Fifth Clash May Break Crowd Mark

Those two feuding professional basketball families, the Washington Caps and Chicago Stags, have a go at each other again tonight in Uline Arena and prospects are that a record-breaking crowd will be on hand to watch the scrap.

The Stag-Cap rivalry is fast becoming a winter-time natural here, just as the Redskin-Bear football fuss, which always draws a full house whether the scrap is in Chicago or Washington.

To better the current attendance mark for Washington basketball, tonight's 8:45 game must attract 6800 onlookers and indications last night were that the tilt would do just that. Washington and the Philly Warriors established the local record January 10 when 6751 paid their way to see the locals win out, 106-99, in an overtime thriller.

The Washington-Chicago set this season stands at two wins for each club. Chicago features Forward Max Zaslofsky, second only to Philadelphia's "phenomenal" Joe Fulks, in scoring; Stan Miasek, the loop's third-best scorer, and Chuck Gilmer, a ball-hawking guard.

Freddie Scolari, Washington's "watchdog," has been assigned the task of checking Zaslofsky, while Big John Mahnken will watch "Stoop" Miasek.

The Gilmur-Bones McKinney battle started last spring in the playoffs when Gilmur put the brakes on Ole Bones and was one o fthe chief factors in the elimination of the Caps in the playoffs.

In the opening end of the double-header, Washington Cliftons, winner of 18 straight games, will be pitte dagainst the Hagerstown Cabineers, claimants of the Maryland State professional title.

The Montgomery Blair High School Band, drum and Bugle Corps and majorettes will parade between halves of the feature.

Colwill Appointed Secretary at Pimlico

Baltimore, Jan. 30 (AP).—J. Fred Colwill, who before becoming a turf official was a noted amateur rider, today was appointed racing secretary for steeplechasing at the Pimlico Track.

Colwill replaces J. Gilbert Haus, who resigned the position at both the Pimlico and Laurel Tracks.

Woodward Beaten By St. John's, 46-32

St. John's won its swtifth straight victory against local competition, defeating Woodward Prep, 46-32, yesterday at Woodward. Jack George led the winners with 18 points and Bob Kleinknecht was high for Woodward with 15.

A sidelight of the scrap was the battle of guards between St. John's Billy Martins and Woodward's usually high-scoring Al Martin. Billy held Al to 8 points before the former left the game with a bruised knee after a particularly rough scramble.

At the Penn Recreation Center, War Department and Navy Department all-star teams will compete and the fourteenth annual Reds Megaw Open will be held at the Clarendon alleys.

The Open, which starts at 12 noon, will feature top-notch bowlers from the District and Baltimore. The Army-Navy games will be televised over Station WNBW and broadcast over WRC at 7:30 p. m.

Suggs, Kirby Gain Finals at Miami

Miami, Fla., Jan. 30 (AP).—Louise Suggs and Dorothy Kirby both of Atlanta, won their matches today and advanced to the 36-hole finals of the Helen Lee Doherty golf tournament.

Miss Suggs, national amateur champion, defeated Evelyn Odom of Miami, 5 and 3 after equalling men's par of 36 on the outward nine, when she was 3 up.

Miss Kirby defeated Mrs. Charles Harting of Miami, 3 and 2. The Georgia girl shot a 37 on the outward nine to Mrs. Harting's 40.

DelPozzo Pays $1000 Fine in 'Fix' Attempt

Charles Town, W. Va., Jan. 30.—Peter DelPozzo of Baltimore and New York pleaded guilty to attempting to fix a horse race at the local track and was convicted and fined $1000 in Circuit Court today.

DelPozzo was charged with offering a bribe to Jockey Webster Snyder in the seventh race on the program of December 19, 1945. Snyder, after refusing the offer, won with his mount.

DelPozzo's conviction was the result of an intensive two-year investigation of his activities on Eastern and Florida tracks by the Thoroughbred Racing Protective Bureau, the turf's FBI.

He was acquitted of attempting to bribe and intimidate jockeys at Tampa, Fla., last February when State's witnesses, Jockeys Mike Sarno and Albert Vesselli, failed to appear at the trial.

Jockey Patrick F. Connolly, alleged to have cooperated with DelPozzo in his attempted "fix" here has pleaded not guilty and will come to trial on February 9.

Pennock Dies Unexpectedly

ally eat his words. After disposing of the then scatteredlarmed young southpaw to the Boston Red Sox for the waiver price in 1915, Mack said Herb would never become a successful pitcher. Pennock went on to enjoy his greatest success with the Red Sox and Yankees.

One of the few to jump directly into the major leagues without minor league experience, Pennock was plucked by Mack off a prep school nine in 1912 and signed to a Philadelphia contract.

Pennock appeared in six World Series and only the first World War prevented him from appearing in another. He was with the Athletics when they ruled the roost in 1913, although he did not get into the actual series with the Giants. He was with the Red Sox in 1917, but entered the Naval service and did not pitch again until 1919, thereby missing the 1918 series between the Red Sox and Chicago Cubs.

The war was not without its baseball honors for Pennock, however. He pitched in the famous 10-inning game between American Army and Navy teams on July 4, 1919, at London and won it for the Sailors, while King George, Admiral Sims and other notables looked on.

After his active playing days, Pennock was signed as a first base coach by the Red Sox. He was promoted to supervisor of the Red Sox farm system in 1939 and remained there until he took over the general managership of the Phils in 1943.

Redskins Sign Another Texan

The Redskins took on a deeper Texas tinge yesterday when End Sid Halliday, SMU captain last season, signed a contract. Of 14 the 'Skins have signed so far, seven have been Texans.

Halliday, 25, is 6 feet, and weighs 195. His rough and tough defensive play gained him All-Conference honors and he was named to the All-America third team. Halliday is a Marine Corps veteran.

Riskolater Wins First 1948 Start

Hialeah, Fla., Jan. 30 (AP).—Riskolater, the Circle M Farm's chief reliance for the approaching Widener and McLennan Handicaps, inaugurated his 4-year-old campaign with a length triumph in today's 7 furlong Key West Purse.

The dark bay colt, giving hedhot Jockey Ted Atkinson his well 4-to-5 favorite over six rivals despite the fact he hadn't started since running fifth in Aqueduct's Dwyer Stakes last June.

The Jayess Stable's Blue Badge took the place, a length and a half before Herbert M. Woolf's Leavenworth. Broad Gift, Bill Hardey, Foreign Agent and Moldy —the latter winner of Canada's coveted King's Plate last season—followed the first three home as named.

An estimated 13,300 fans, enjoying perfect weather, saw Riskolater step the distance in 1:25 3/5 over a track only slightly dulled by showers last night and early today.

Riskolater, a year ago, carried the Circle M. silks of the Edward S. Moores to victory in the Everglades Handicap here. Subsequently he was third in the Flamingo Stakes, won by Faultless, and also finished behind the latter on several other occasions. He failed in the Derby and Pearkness but managed to pick up $20,500 during 1947.

Atkinson, chalking up his ninth double and twenty-third victory of the 13-day-old meeting, had Riskolater away second to Broad Gift and snugged his mount along close off that colt's pace to the stretch. Then Isolater's classy son bounded to the front under pressure. Blue Badge offered stout opposition in the run tot he wire but was held safe. Leavenworth also wore down the tired Broad Gift in the closing furlong.

Dodds Heads Millrose Field

New York, Jan. 30.—National champion Gil Dodds, the Boston Athletic Association miler who has won his last 19 indoor starts at the distance, heads a field of six in the featured Wanamaker Mile at the forty-first annual Millrose Games in Madison Square Garden here tonight.

The pace-setting parson will be opposed by Gerry Karver of Penn State, national AAU outdoor champion; Leslie MacMitchell of the New York Athletic Club; Bill Mack of Michigan State; Browning Ross of Vilanova, and Quentin Brelsford of Ohio Wesleyan.

Georgetown University will be represented in the games by hurdler Bill Mitchell and the mile relay team of Alex Rorke, Ed Sause, Mort Kane and George Michiliades.

The University of Maryland will send its Southern Conference champion two-mile relay crew, while the Navy Olympians mile relay team will make its formal debut against groups from the Baltimore Olympic Club and six colleges.

Ott, Dyer Stalled As Mel Insists on Standout Hurler

New York, Jan. 30 (AP).—Several hours of trade talk between Managers Mel Ott of the New York Giants and Eddie Dyer of the St. Louis Cardinals have failed to result in any progress toward a deal, Ott said today.

"We have gone over the list of players from top to bottom, but so far it has been just talk," Ott said. "Maybe something will happen and maybe it won't. Dyer is the only National Leaguer I have seen so far on this visit, though I talked to most of them during the December meetings."

Ott, admitting that the Giants' biggest need was better pitching, said he was interested only in dickering for a standout hurler. He is not interested at this time in Shortstop Eddie Miller, who has been put on the trading block by the Cincinnati Reds.

"There aren't too many real good pitchers in the league," he continued. "I was offered ordinary pitchers, but they talked about Willard Marshall, Bobby Thompson, Johnny Mize and fellows like that.

Crockett 3d Regular To Quit at American

Reggie Crockett, high-scoring transfer from Washington and Lee, capped the wholesale wave of basketball resignations at American U. by quitting yesterday.

Crockett told Staff Cassell, coach and athletic director, he had "lost interest' 'in playing basketball.

The slender forward, who led the Eagles by tallying 143 points in 14 games, is the third member of the first team to walk out.

First, Bart Fugler decided that he couldn't play and keep up with his studies; then Don Hillock, also from W. and L., turned in his suit. Bill Tanney, who started the season with Cassell's zone defense team and moved up as playmaker on the first team, also left the squad.

Crockett Blames Ankle

Tanney, however, had planned to enter Washington College of Law after completing his pre-law course at American and the move was expected.

Crockett said yesterday that a factor in his decision was a hurt ankle. He complained that it kept him from practicing too much and he felt that he was out of shape.

He left for his Keyser, W. Va., home last night and said he didn't know definitely whether he would continue as an American U. student. Crockett passed his business administration exams and will be a junior if he returns.

Cassell Bemoans "Tough Break"

Crockett said he realized that he probably couldn't compete for any recognized school because he would be a double-transfer student.

Coach Cassell said, "Naturally, I'm disappointed over Crockett's decision and the other resignations. All I have to say is that if a boy doesn't care to participate in athletics, that's his business. I'm not griping but it's just been a tough luck season."

American U. started the season with high hopes for its best basketball season and thought it had a good chance to annex the Mason-Dixon Conference championship.

Instead, the team bogged down and now has an 8-7 record.

'Graw Dates Switch Fouls Bookkeeper

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 30 (AP).—Maryland's official bookkeepers will have to do a little extra figuring as a result of a change in racing dates this year at Havre de Grace.

The State Racing Commission advanced a proposed meet there in May to July 6 to avoid a conflict with New Jersey's garden state park.

Comptroller James J. Lacy said the bookkeeping changes would be necessary because the July meet will fall in the 1949 fiscal year. The state's fiscal year ends June 30.

Similar revisions will have to be made in some county and city books because racing revenues are shared by the state with the local units.

Last year the total revenue from Havre de Grace was $1,-59,000. This was divided under a law passed at the 1946 special assembly session.

Lacy explained that Baltimore City, Anne Arundel County and Frederick were on a calendar year fiscal basis and wouldn't be affected by the change. Others will have to revise their revenue expectations for the 1948 fiscal year.

Racing Results On Broadcasts O. K., FCC Rules

A radio station can broadcast horse race results if the information is not given with such urgency or detail as to suggest that gamblers might benefit, the Federal Communications Commission ruled yesterday.

The matter came up in connection with the application of radio station WWDC in Washington for routine renewal of its license.

The station asked the commission for assurance that it would not jeopardize its continued operating authority by continuing to broadcast over both its standard and FM outlets "race results, including prices" paid by winners.

The commisison, in renewing the station license, held that the race results formed a part of a well-rounded program service.

Savage Renews Long Legal Fight On Rooming House

Seventy-one-year-old John A. Savage yesterday renewed his legal battle, begun in March, 1946, over charges he operated a rooming house without a license and occupancy permit.

Savage was committed to jail January 20 by Municipal Court Judge John P. McMahon who sentenced him to 65 days or $210. But yesterday the elderly man was out—temporarily, at least.

Acting as his own attorney, Savage, 1303 Fairmont st. nw., got the United States Circuit Court of Appeals to free him under $500 bond pending a review by the Appelate Court of a denied habeas corpus petition.

Savage, who says he has never studied law, has served as his own attorney since the case began. Several of the judges have commended his legal skill in contending that his home is illegally declared a rooming house under an amended congressional act. Savage also maintains that three charges against him were illegally consolidated without his knowledge or consent.

Holy Trinity Girls Win

Lack of Room Delays 'Susie Cucumber' Trial

Trial of Mrs. Cynthia Richardson and her pet canine Susie Cucumber did not start in District Court yesterday as scheduled because of lack of courtrooms and judges.

Mrs. Richardson is being brought to court by a greeting card company because the name "Susie Cucumber is similar to their trade mark Susie Q."

Royall Urges Firms to Lend Brains to U. S.

Boston, Jan. 30 (AP).—Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall today proposed that business, labor and farm organizations lend their "most promising young executives to the Government to fill important administrative posts.

Royall

Royall made the proposal in a speech prepared for delivery before the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

Citing the unwillingness of top business executives to serve at present Government salaries, Royall said the problem "is in no way a partisan or political matter."

"I would like to see corporations, unions and farm organizations make available to the Government their most promising young executives for a reasonable period of service," Royall declared.

"I would like to see successful young executive, say of 40 years of age, look forward to service with their Nation for a year or two, even it that service be at personal and financial sacrifice."

The Army Secretary said many important Government positions need to be filled. There are business, financial and broad administrative problems, said Royall, waiting to be solved.

"For the best solution of these problems," he said, "we need men of the same caliber as those who conduct important civilian enterprises.

"But under our American system such success almost necessarily connotes, not only higher salaries but also accumulation of some financial competence. There is no attraction in a salary of $10,000 or even $15,000."

Turning to military affairs, Royall urged support of proposals for universal military training.

"The suddenness with which any future war would doubtless come," he said, "means that sufficient manpower must be promptly available.

"We should have at least three or four million military men in our armed forces who are ready and sufficiently trained for immediate service or for service within the first few months."

It Looks Like Sauer at Navy

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 30 (AP) —Anyone who could buttonhole anyone else today let it be known he had the very best inside information on who's going to be Navy's new football coach.

The almost unanimous opinion of the man in the street was that George Sauer, currently in charge of football at Kansas University, has it all wrapped up.

He is one of the only two "professional" mentors to come here for a quizzing about the job. The other, Charles (Bud) Wilkinson of Oklahoma, with drew his name from consideration last night.

About only other name to enter conversations today was Eddie Erdelatz, end coach at Annapolis for three seasons. Since he's right at home here, the former St. Mary's gridder could have been consulted without attracting any attention.

Sauer's prominence in the guessing was natural. The 37-year-old former All-America from Nebraska, who had two Big Six co-champions in as many years at Kansas, spent all day here Wednesday.

He didn't have anything significant to say, and neither did his hosts. But with the curtain drawn on any other interviews that might have taken place—here, elsewhere or by telephone—there was hardly anyone left to speculate on.

Lane Praises Md. Bureau of Parole

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 30 (AP).—Governor Lane praised the Department of Parole and Probation today for its progress and interest in its problems at a conference of the agency's personnel.

The Governor attended the wind-up session of the meeting at which there was a general discussion of department work.

F. Murray Benson, director, reported the department's 14 parole officers were handling 1283 cases. Of the number of persons supervised, there was a current rate of 7 per cent violations. These included 3½ per cent criminal violations.

Funds Refused For Md. Park Land Purchase

Funds to buy Maryland land for extension of Washington parks and parkways were refused yesterday by the House Appropriations Committee.

The Maryland and National Capital Park and Planning Commission asked for $1,494,000 to buy land in "critical areas," which ahe about to be subdivided for home building. It includes 2316 acres in Montgomery and 1665 acres in Prince Georges counties.

Fred Tuemmler, director of planning for the Prince Georges County regional office of the Maryland commission, told the committee that many owners of land had already granted "paper options on the basis that the land will be bought if we get the money."

He predicted that tracts needed in the critical areas would "cost double the amount we can get them for now if subdivision projects continue to expand in suburban Washington."

The committee, however, rejected the request because "activities of this character should be held to a minimum at this time when every tax dollar is required to meet the obligations of the Government for matters of vital importance both at home and aboard."

Representatives Lansdale Sasscer (D., Md.) and J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.) recommended that the funds be granted. They pointed out that it was authorized by the Capper-Crampton Act, which makes available Federal funds for parks and parkways in suburban stream valleys. Part would be a Federal grant and part loans without interest to the counties in which improvements are located.

Critical areas listed in the bill adjoin the following parks and parkways: Montgomery County—Rock Creek Park and Sligo Creek, Cabin John, Northwest Branch, Little Falls Branch and Paint Branch Parkways.

Prince Georges County—Anacostia Park, Northwest Branch, Sligo Creek, Indian Creek, Paint Branch and Oxon Run Parkways.

us, we are forced to conclude that there is a concerted drive by various forces to establish a Hitler-like ghetto in the far northeast section of the District," William D. Nixon, chairman of the Committee of the Federation of Civic Associations, testified.

"In the City of Washington, the cradle of democracy, the colored citizen can no longer select a place of his choice in which to live. General Grant (Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d, chairman of the Park and Planning Commission) openly states that the colored population, dispossessed by playgrounds, public buildings, parks and schools will be housed in the far northeast section and in the rear of Anacostia.

"The businessmen's organization advocates that the central part of the city be redeveloped and occupied by those of the high salary group."

Reiman, who said he was steered to the reception room by an "anonymous tip," also revealed that subpenas have been served on Victor R. Daly, personnel director, District offices, United States Employment Service, and Robert A. Morrison, USES District office manager in charge of employment referrals.

The committee staff member said he had been "informed" that the USES offices had been assisting the CIO in the strike to the exclusion of other workers.

Daly and Morrison, he said, are also scheduled to appear at 10 a. m. Monday before the House subcommittee.

Reiman said the names of three other union officers have been added to the subpena list, but the papers have not yet been served. Ethel Thompson, identifieed as a Cafeteria Workers Union receptionist, was served a similar summons Thursday. Union officials denied she was affiliated with the union.

Year Given in Theft From Invalid Mother

Frederick, Md., Jan. 30 (AP).—James Baker, 24, of Old Braddock, has been sentenced by Magistrate Manuel M. Weinberg to one year in the State House of Correction for stealing a watch from his bedridden mother's wrist.

Relatives sought to have the defendant sentenced to stay at home to tend his mother, but the magistrate said there was no indication on Baker's part that he would carry out the duties.

Baker was found guilty of selling the $24 watch for $3.50 preparatory to going south to join a carnival.

16 Support Rent Control At Hearing; 4 Opposed

Paul Porter Says End Would Mean Mass Evictions, 'Great Hardship'

By James E. Ficken
Post Reporter

Removal of rent control here would bring zooming rents, mass evictions and "great hardship," former OPA Administrator Paul A. Porter told the Commissioners yesterday.

Porter, Rent Control Administrator Robert F. Cogswell and 14 others asked for rent control to at least March 31, 1949. Two urged extension to June 30, 1950.

Only four favored elimination of controls March 31.

Limitations Suggested

Six witnesses who wanted control limited if extension is granted gave these suggestions:

1. Voluntary 15 per cent increases and exemptions for hotels, motor courts or housing completed, converted or first rented after February 1, 1947, were favored by F. Moran McConihe of the Washington Real Estate Board and Mrs. Anna Kelton Wiley, representing the D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs.

2. Blanket rent increases were urged by Ernest Henry of the Home Builders Association and Mrs. Irvine Lenroot, who is both a home owner and apartment tenant. Henry did not specify how much. Mrs. Lenroot asked 15 to 20 per cent.

3. Removal of all controls from new rental units was proposed by Henry and seconded by John B. Gilliland, a housing operator.

4. Immediate decontrol of housing that rents for more than $150 a month, proposed by Charles J. Bauer, secretary of the Building Owners and Managers Association.

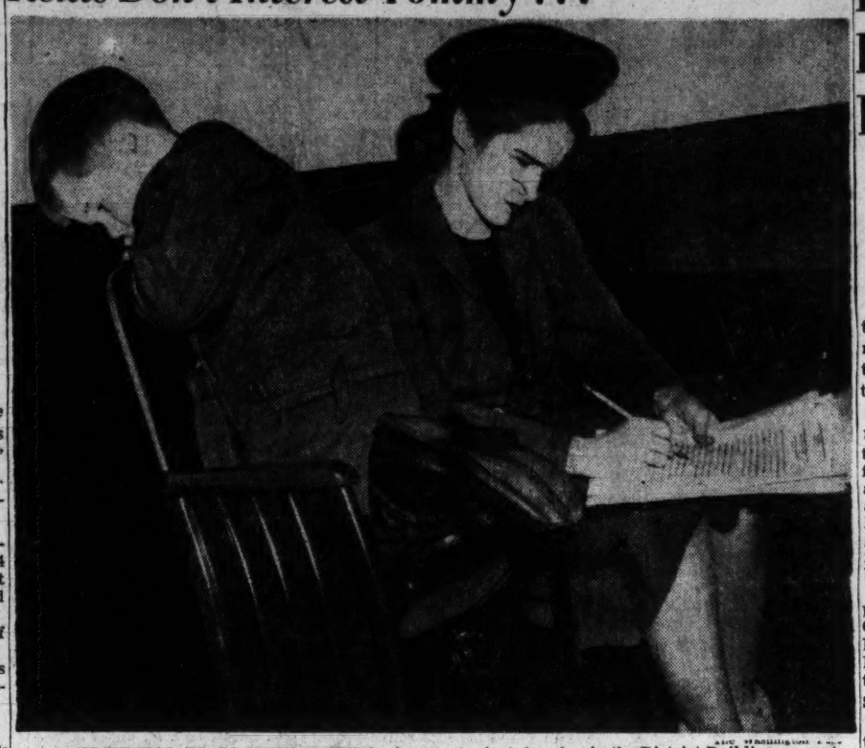
Housing "Very Critical"

Rent Control Administrator Cogswell said housing here remains "very critical," particularly for apartments and houses. Conditions are improving at rooming houses and transient hotels, he said.

He predicted that if controls are removed, rents will skyrocket.

Opposing extension was Rufus S. Lusk, resident of the Washington Taxayers Association. He said the District has enough housing.

Rents Don't Interest Tommy . . .



. . . BUT HE HAD TO GO WITH MOMMY—As Mrs. Frances Adams of 3720 39th st. nw., looks over her notes, son Tommy, 5, looks over the floor. She represented the Washington Chapter of Americans for Democratic Action at yesterday's hearing in the District Building on rent controls. Mrs. Adams said her group wants the District Emergency Rent Act extended until June, 1950, and that no general increases in rents be permitted

Sex Offender Bill Hearings Slated Soon

Congress Plans to Enact Legislation By Mid-February

Representative A. L. Miller (R., Neb.) said yesterday hearings will be scheduled for mid-February on legislation to curb sex offenders in the District.

Miller is chairman of the House District subcommittee on health, education, and recreation. The group yesterday conferred on the proposed sex-offender law with U. S. Attorney George Morris Fay who help draft it.

Miller told reporters after the executive conference that he fells legislation of the type submitted by Fay is necessary. He said the bill will be printed with technical corrections, and that officials including Federal Prison Director James V. Bennett and Dr. Winfred Overholser, superintendent of St. Elizabeths Hospital, will be asked for their views on the plan.

And It's All Legal

'Equitable' Loan of $300 Costs $420

A woman who complained of borrowing $300 and having to pay back a total of $420 was left without a legal leg to stand on yesterday.

Mrs. Olivia R. Williams, a drug store employe of 824 Division ave. ne., said she borrowed the $300 from the Equitable Credit Co., Inc., giving an automobile for security.

She is now in the process of paying back $420, although the interest rate is only 3.3 per cent.

Her added costs, company Vice President Harold Freeman told Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark F. King, amounted to this:

A policy insuring her life for period of the loan—$4.20.

A $150 monthly benefit health and accident policy for duration of the loan—$105.

Notary, recording and registration fees—$1.50.

Interest—$9.30.

And all of it is legal, King told the woman.

He did elicit a promise from Freeman, however, to make notations on credit cards in the future, showing what fees are charged.

King urged that future borrowers not sign anything in blank; read whatever they sign and get a copy of everything.

D. C. History Teaching Hit And Defended

School Heads Differ On Bill to Increase Patriotism Emphasis

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

School officials differed sharply yesterday on the effectiveness of history teaching in the District schools, and on the merits of a bill to force increased emphasis on patriotic history courses in all publicly supported schools here.

The difference turned up in a hearing before a House District Subcommittee headed by Representative A. L. Miller (R., Nebr.) He introduced the proposed legislation that would increase required public school courses in American history and the Constitution, ban subversive material from the schools, and limit Board of Education members to two three-year terms.

School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning told the subcommittee "we are committed to the thorough teaching of American history and to keeping out of our courses anything that is established as being subversive."

Would Boost Requirements

Corning said the bill would boost from two and a half to six the number of full year courses in American history and the Constitution required in the schools. That, he said, "throw the curriculum out of gear."

On the other side, Board of Education Member Adelbert W. Lee, who emphasized he was speaking as an individual since the board had not acted on the bill, charged that "not enough emphasis is being placed on teaching history and the Constitution."

"There is too much emphasis on world citizenship and not enough attention to pro-Americanism," he added.

Lee also urged the plant to limit school board service to two terms, saying it had become a policy to reappoint school board members as long as they want to serve, and declaring:

"New blood within the Board of Education would be very desirable."

Also testifying for the bill were Attorney Franklin T. Miles, who drafted it, and Charles S. Sullivan, jr., chairman of the committee on Un-American activities of the District Veterons of Foreign Wars.

Success is Questioned

Chairman Miller raised a question about the success of the history courses taught in the District schools when he reported that seven of eight candidates for admission to the United States Military Academy at West Point had failed the history part of the examination given here two weeks ago.

He said out of 240 possible points, the scores ranged from 58 to 153 for the seven and that the eighth score was 231.

Lee said it was a "very distressing record."

Corning asked, "Is it fair to judge the great service of the schools by eight examinations?"

"I would refer to the great numbers of District boys who have gone to the Military and Naval Academies," said Corning.

Miller said the examination results were "damaging evidence that something is wrong."

Backed-Up D. C. Docket Is Discussed

Judges and Lawyers Confer 2½ Hours But Announce No Conclusions

A closed meeting of shouting, table-pounding lawyers and Municipal Court judges talked over the court's dragging docket yesterday.

The conferees agreed that too many cases have piled up, and that the law's delays in Washington are far too long. But when the two and a half hour session broke up at 6:30 p. m., the judges and lawyers were a long way from getting together on what is causing the trouble or what ought to be done about it.

"No comment," was the only public statement of Chief Judge George P. Barse and of John L. Laskey, who is chairman of the District Bar Association Committee on the Municipal Court.

Sizeable Backlog

The meeting began at 4 p. m., in the Municipal Court library. From time to time, speakers could be heard through the heavy doors of the room.

The bar committee has spent several months studying conditions at the court, where about 900 civil cases and 400 criminal cases are waiting for trial. The civil cases involve more than $50 each, and 700 of them involve more than $500 each. Jury trials have been asked for in the backed up criminal cases.

Year before last the court handled 108,000 cases, last year the total went up to more than 125,000. The number is still going up, and the increase this year may be as much as 20 per cent.

A bill to add three judges to the court was offered in Congress last year, but was dropped.

Bar Suggestions

The bar committee is understood to have suggested that the judges give up their vacations until the court is up to date, and that two judges be borrowed from the Municipal Court of Appeals.

The bench regards both these ideas as stopgaps, which might be useful in some temporary emergency but can be of little help against a continuing situation that grows out of the court getting more work without getting more judges to do it. Some of the judges say, also, that the Court of Appeals has its own docket to keep up, and can hardly spare of its three members for very long.

The judges at the meeting were not pleased by suggestions that they doing less than their best. One judge opened his remarks by booming:

Leyde Acquitted In Life Raft Case

Glenn W. Leyde, 37, formerly of Falls Church, yesterday was acquitted by a District Court jury of charges that he attempted to swindle the Government out o $75,000 in a contract for constructing 561 life rafts.

The jury, after beginning its deliberations Thursday afternoon, announced its verdict last yesterday.

Leyde, now of Wayside, Md., controlled the firm of Leyde & Leyde, which completed 124 rafts before the agreement ended in 1945. The Department of Justice, in prosecuting the contractor, contended he padded costs of materials and labor.

Sanding of Md. Roads To Exceed $200,000

Baltimore, Jan. 30 (AP).—The State Roads Commission said today it expected snow removal and road sanding costs this winter would exceed the yearly average of $200,000.

To date, "this has been an unusually bad winter from our standpoint," the commission said, "because of frequent cycles of freezing and thawing."

The commission has a fleet of about 300 trucks, and 60 to 70 auto patrols, available in its seasonal struggle to keep the Maryland arteries from clogging.

Annapolis Bus Proposed

Baltimore, Jan. 30 (AP).—West Shore Lines, Inc., notified the Public Service Commission today it would apply for authority to operate an express passenger bus service between Baltimore and Annapolis. The proposed service, on the hour, would take about 40 minutes.

More Fuel Oil Arrives; Outlook Remains Serious

Chief Justice Groner Plans To Quit U. S. Court of Appeals

Harold M. Stephens | James M. Proctor | D. Lawrence Groner

Justice Stephens is slated to succeed Chief Justice Groner of the Court of Appeals and Justice Proctor is scheduled to get the appellate judgeship

Chief Justice D. Lawrence Groner plans to announce his retirement from the United States Court of Appeals here in a few days.

Justice Harold Stephens, senior associate justice of the court, has tentatively been chosen to succeed the Chief Justice, and Justice James M. Proctor of the District Court is slated for promotion to Stephens' place on the Court of Appeals.

Chief Justice Groner, who is 74 and has been in poor health for some time, has presided over the highest court of the District for 10 years. He was an associate justice before that, having been appointed in 1931 after he served 10 years on the Federal bench in Virginia.

Justice Stephens has served on the appellate bench since 1935, having been appointed by President Roosevelt. Before that, Justice Stephens was an assistant to the Attorney General. When Chief Justice Groner decided to retire, Justice Stephens and Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws of the District Court were foremost among those considered to take his place. Laws is understood to have preferred to stay at his present post.

Justice Proctor, a native of Washington and a former prosecutor here, was appointed to the District Court bench in 1931. He presided in many famous trials.

Justice Proctor's successor was believed likely to come from the Washington bar. Among those whose appointment is being urged are George E. McNeill, president of the District Bar Association; James F. Reilly, former Prosecutor John Wilson and Austin F. Canfield, former Bar Association president.

Stocks Threatened Despite Incoming Shipments of Million Gallons, Oil Men Say

Another million gallons of oil—heavy fuel oil for heating large buildings—reached here yesterday, but officials warned that the fuel outlook remains serious.

Despite this addition to the million gallons of home-type oil brought here through the ice-jammed Potomac River the day before, oilmen said falling temperatures can still play havoc with limited stocks on hand, authorities said.

Standard Oil Co. early yesterday received 395,000 gallons of the heavier oil, used for apartment houses, hospitals and similar buildings. A few hours later, barge with 700,000 gallons of heavy oil reached the L. P. Steuart & Bro. oil terminal.

A spokesman for Steuart said the shipment yesterday amounts to a two-day supply. He estimated that 80 per cent of the city's heavy oil, including all oil supplied to Government buildings here, is channelled through the Steuart terminal.

The 735,000 gallons of home-type oil, loaned by the Navy to the District this week, is en route here in a Steuart barge, and may arrive late today.

Gasoline, Kerosene Arrive

Standard Oil reported last night that barge deliveries also brought 1,160,000 gallons of gasoline, and 130,000 gallons of scarce kerosene. Standard said it expects delivery of 588,000 gallons of home fuel oil next week, and stated its own fuel position is "just fair—for about six days."

J. Thomas Kennedy, District Fuel Oil Coordinator, declared, "If we get over this weekend we're still going to have some praying to do about the future."

He said he received a promise yesterday of 50,000 gallons of fuel oil from the Merchants and Manufacturers Association's dealers for the District's emergency set-aside. This, Kenndy said, raises the emergency pool to about 100,000 gallons, with about 18,000 gallons of kerosene on hand.

Kerosene deliveries on emergency calls have been cut to 25 gallons, Kenndy said, and fuel oil deliveries for emergency may be reduced from 100 to 50 gallons.

Advance Delivery Arranged

The Senate Small Business Committee, headed by Senator Wherry of Nebraska, announced yesterday that it has made arrangements for the American Ice Co. here to receive a 190,000 gallon advance on February contract allocations.

Suppliers generally have ordered that February allocations will be made on the basis of no more than one-third of the particular allocation for each 10 days of February.

Senator Wherry's committee also reported that next week it will make efforts to obtain through the Navy a loan of 700,000 gallons of fuel oil, in addition to the 735,000 gallons already loaned through the committee's intercession.

The Coast Guard reported yesterday that it will have three ice breakers in service today to aid fuel barges. "Very heavy" pack ice was reported in the Potomac between Indian Head and Maryland Point.

In the Eastern Shore area, the sailing of three loaded fuel barges from Baltimore to Salisbury, Md., was postponed because of heavy ice. At Baltimore, Judge Emory H. Niles, State fuel coordinator, appealed to suppliers to release February oil deliveries today.

The Associated Press reported that in New York several health centers were forced to close because of lack of fuel oil.

Tax Primer

Many in Md. Can File on 'Short Form'

(This is the second of a series of three articles dealing with filing Maryland income tax returns.)

By John Trimmer

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 30 (AP).—The Marylander who can use the "short form" to fill out his State income tax return will find his task fairly easy.

The form (503) may be used if you don't make more than $5000 a year. Besides, you may not have more than $100 of that income from other sources such as dividends, interest and the like.

The form is mostly for persons who work for salary or wages. It gives you a special benefit in one way. It figures the tax with a 10 per cent cut for what you gave to charities and churches and paid in other ways which may be legally deducted.

Three Things to Figure

To figure out your income tax by using the short form, you need three bits of information: How much pay you received for the work you did in 1947, how much you got from other sources and how many dependents you have.

The first two items are generally easy to get. As for the third, the question arises: Who is a dependent?

The State answers: A dependent is a person who had an income of less $500 last year. Besides, the dependent must have received over half his support from you for the entire year.

Dependents include: Children (natural "step" or adopted), brothers, sisters, stepbrothers and stepsisters, parents, grandparents, stepparents, nephews, nieces, uncles, aunts or "in-laws."

In filling out the form, give first the information required to identify you, the name and address, and the county and corporate town in which you live.

$400 for Each Dependent

Then you list dependents. In listing them, you do not list your husband or wife. If you are the "head of a family," you omit credit for one dependent. (The head of a family is one who may not be a parent of the dependents, but who maintains a home for them.)

For each dependent a $400 credit is permitted.

Once the credits for the dependents are totaled, you list your pay for any work you did. Then you add whatever you got from other sources. The total income minus the total credit for dependents gives "income subject to tax."

When you know the amount of your income subject to tax, you turn to the back of the form. Here you will find a table of payments.

First, in two large blocks above the table, you will find six different tax-paying groups. Check the one that applies to you. If you are of the first three groups, your personal exemption is $1000, if you are in the second three groups, your personal exemption is $2000.

Tables Show Amount

Once you know your personal exemption, you consult the tables below. In the column marked "Gross income less allowance for depenudents," note the block in which your "income subject to tax" belongs. Your "income subject to tax" is the figure you last inserted on page one.

If your personal exemption is $1000 you will find how much you owe in the first column listed as "optiinol tax." If your personal exemption is $2000 the amount will be in the gsecond column.

Once you find out how much you owe, turn again to the first page and insert the figure after the word "tax."

Write your check or money order payable to "Comptroller of the Treasury," and mail to the income tax division in Annapolis. Do not send cash, Controller Lacy advises.

Yearly thousands of checks are payable to the United States Treasury in submitting State income tax forms. This means extra work for State employes who handle thousands of returns annually.

Bus Changes Slated to Ease Barney Circle

New Routing and Traffic Signals Due By February 15

Experimental changes in bus routing and traffic signals designed to improve traffic conditions at Barney Circle were ordered yesterday by the Public Utilities Commission and the Commissioners.

They asked the bus companies and District agencies involved to put the plan into effect by February 15.

The changes include:

1. Rerout Capital Transit Co.'s B-2 (Fourth st.) bus line to continue southwest on Potomac ave. to 15th st., then south on 15th to Pennsylvania ave. and Barney Circle.

2. Rerout CTC's V-6 (South Washington) by way of Potomac ave., and Pennsylvania ave. to Barney Circle.

3. Permit short route buses of Washington-Marlboro and Annapolis Motor Lines, Inc., to use CTC's Barney Circle terminal.

4. Stop through buses of WMA at Pennsylvania ave. and 15th st. se., instead of Barney Circle.

5. Make K st. se., one-way eastbound from 15th st. to Barney Circle.

6. Discontinue traffic signal on south side of Barney Circle.

7. Change timing of traffic signal on Barney Circle's west side to provide smoother traffic flow.

8. Install on north side of Sousa Bridge signs directing 17th st. traffic to keep in right lane.

The change will not affect CTC's Sousa Bridge lines C-2, C-4, C-6 or C-8.

PUC Chairman James H. Flanagan said the plan was submitted by Capital Transit Co. engineers and approved by city traffic, highway and police departments.

Highway Director H. C. Whitehurst said the Public Roads Administration would make studies to determine the effectiveness of the plan.

Horan Back at Office

Representative Horan (R., Wash.), who has been ill with virus pneumonia, returned to his office yesterday. He said he expected to be present daily at committee hearings on appropriations for the United States Forest Service. He has been confined to the Naval Hospital at Bethesda, Md.

Cloudy, Cold Day Forecast For District

The local weatherman last night pulled up his coat collar a bit tighter and predicted cloudy and continued cold today, with snow likely tonight or tomorrow.

He otherwise refused to stick out his neck and say how much or how little snow he meant.

By cold, however, he said he meant the thermometer will be at its day's highest at around 20 degrees, after a night's low of about 10. Northeast winds ranging between 10 and 20 miles an hour today will make it seem even colder, he said.

Tonight's low temperature reading, he added, should be around 12 degrees.

Yesterday's high here was 28 degrees at 12:42 p. m., after an early morning low of 23.

Intense cold that gripped most of the Nation eased off a bit yesterday in the Midwest and the South. In California, indications of serious damage from a three-day cold spell increased as the weather bureau reversed its earlier prediction of weekend rain.

Elsinore Valley (Calif.) residents planned a valley-wide prayer meeting to plead for rain as the water level in Lake Elsinore dropped dangerously. Vegetable losses in Imperial County, Calif., were reported heavy, with damage to all crops tentatively set at $500,000 by Agricultural Commissioner B. A. Harrigan.

Freezing rain glazed highways throughout Kentucky and Tennessee yesterday, stranding hundreds of autos, trucks and buses.

Recommended Agency Budget Would Increase Personnel

vestigations of all new appointees to the so-called "sensitive" Federal jobs. The President ordered such inquiries in his loyalty order.

The committee sai it "doubted" the value of the Federal Personnel Council, and it took an uppercut at the commission's personnel and information staffs. And finally, it called for a speed-up of Civil Service exams and the ouster of inefficient war service and temporary employes.

CEA: A $300,000 budget was recommended for the Council of Economic Advisors, reduction of $50,000 under this year's budget. If the cut stands, a small layoff would have to be made.

The committee report said many of its members were "dubious" as to the value of CEA. These members believe that CEA economic reports could be written by other agencies.

BUDGET BUREAU: It was given $3,192,000, which is $62,608 less than its present budget and $100,000 smaller than the President's request. The cut would require a small layoff.

The committee spanked the bureau for some of its bookkeeping methods, which, it said, were "confusing" to members of Congress. Also, it criticized the agency for "endeavoring to interpret the will of Congress" in its reports to congressional committees.

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS was given funds to retain its present staff. The $60,000 increase is to be used for automatic promotions. A request for $240,000 to hire new employes was denied.

The committee charged that several offices are overstaffed. It said they were: Planning division, personnel office, secretary's office, litigation division and the review section. It suggested that people be taken out of these offices if additional peopl are needed to process applications for radio licenses.

FEDERAL POWER: No change in personnel for this agency. A plea for additional employes was denied. The committee did give it an increase of $59,550 for in-grade promotion, and $73,500 additional for flood control work.

FEDERAL TRADE got an increase of $522,915 over this year's budget, enough to hire about 100 new employes. The major share of the increas must be used for antiminopoly work. The committee refused to make additional funds available for finanical reports and general economic studies.

FEDERAL WORKS: The administrator's office was given $344,540, about the same as this year.

PBA: Public Buildings would be able to hire a few new employes to maintain buildings here. It was given an increase of $400,000. PBA also was given the budget estimate of 10 million dollars for the repair of buildings.

PUBLIC ROADS was given a whopping increase in road construction funds, $195,588,854 more than this year, which would bring about an expansion of the agency's personnel and activities. PBA's budget was cut only one million dollars, and that on continuation of construction of its research laboratory at Langley, Va.

GENERAL ACCOUNTING would have to lay off about 600 employes in the next year, but no more than it had planned. In fact, the committee gave it every cent it requested, $33,161,000. GAO volunteered to again reduce its staff. The committee suggested an additional cut could be made in the GAO personnel office.

INDIAN CLAIMS was given $90,000 for operating expenses because its work has developed slowly. A small reduction in staff would have to be made.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE: No personnel changes here. The committee provided funds for the present level of operation and denied requests for additional money and people.

NACA: A big increase was given the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, $4,320,000 additional for salaries which would enable the agency to hire about 1000 more employes. The expansion would be mainly at NACA laboratories outside of this city. About 25 new employe could be hired at headquarters here.

NATIONAL ARCHIVES was given $1,358,055, an increase of $96,720 over this year's budget. The committee said the money should be used to hire personnel in the low grades.

OSSR: The Office of Selective Service Records was given a big cut, $1,773,300 below its present budget and $718,300 under the President's request. The committee knocked out the entire item of $504,000 for the planning of manpower use in an emergency. The agency would have to reduce personnel under the committee budget.

SEC: No personnel change for Securities and Exchange. A request for 28 new jobs was turned down. The committee said if SEC needed additional help it could get it by reducing its personnel division, the number of opinion writers, and assistants to the commissioners.

TARIFF: A small increase of $51,651 for this commission, enough to hire 10 new employes.

SMITHSONIAN: This famed institution was given $2,090,000 which is an increase of $289,688 over this year. A few new employes could be hired.

Installation Set For Archbishop

Baltimore, Jan. 30 (AP).—Invitations were mailed today to high-ranking Roman Cathalic clergy in the United States and to Government officals for the installation of the Most Rev. Francis P. Keough as Archbishop of Baltimore on February 24.

Since Baltimore is prima see of the church in this country, the installation will bring to the city one of the largest concentrations of prelates in decades.

The archbishop, now Bishop of Providence, R. I., will be enthroned by the Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, apostolic delegate to Washington, at a high mass in the cathedral.

Tons of Relief Wheat Lost in Train Wreck

Connellsville, Pa., Jan. 30 (AP).—An estimated 3000 tons of wheat headed for hungry Europeans were lost when a Western Maryland Railway freight train of 46 cars was derailed at Indian Creek, about 12 miles east of this southwestern Pennsylvania town.

Trooper Wins $23,000 Verdict Over Collision

Orange, Va., Jan. 30 (Spl.).—A jury of12 men today granted $23,000 damages to State Trooper R. E. Thompson for injuries he said he suffered in a collision with a car driven by Robert Downing, 21, a former University of Virginia student, last March 22.

Attorneys for Downing asked that the verdict be set aside on grounds that it was contrary to the law and evidence in the case. Hearing on the motion will be held at a later date.

Weekly Adds Edition

Manassas, Va., Jan. 30.—Beginning Tuesday, the "Manassas Messenger" will appear twice weekly, according to the publisher, Col. Benjamin A. Muse. Publication dates will be Tuesday and Friday. Colonel Muse said the change would not involve an increase in the subscription rate.

Midyear graduation exercises were wound-up in Greater Washington high and junior high schools yesterday with 1276 students receiving diplomas at 17 ceremonies.

Graduations were held yesterday at McKinley, Western, Armstrong, Cardoza and Chamberlain high schools, and at Deal, Hine, Paul, Powell, Stuart, Banneker, Francis and Shaw junior high schools in Washington. Exercises were held in Arlington at Washington and Lee high and junior high schools, and at the Thomas Jefferson Junior High School, and in Alexandria at the George Washington High School.

Area News in Brief

D. C. to Start Mailing Large '48 Auto Tags

The District traffic department yesterday squared away for its rush season—issuance of more than 150,000 automobile licenses.

Black with yellow and large numerals, the new tags are the first full-sized ones issued since 1946. The 1947 license consisted of a tab attached to the 1946 plates.

Department officials will begin mailing about 10,000 per day beginning early next week. They urged all motorists to order their plates by mail, enclosing automobile registration and a check or money order payable to the District collector of taxes and addressed to the Department of Vehicles and Traffic, Municipal Center.

Teller Held in Thefts

A $2300-a-year teller at the Union Trust Co., 14th and G sts. nw., yesterday was held for the grand jury in embezzlement of $1872 over a four-month period.

Bank officials said Robert E. Rhodes, 23, of 70 Farragut st. nw., had confessed taking the money in $20 and $120 lots. He has been at the bank three years is married and has one child.

He was held on $1000 bond by United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage, charged with violating the Federal Reserve Act.

2 Get Execution Stay

Jesse James Patton and Reginald J. Wheeler, convicted of a holdup murder in 1946, yesterday were given stays of execution to allow time for Supreme Court study of the cases.

The new execution date is April 9.

March of Dimes Theft

Five Rockville, Md., boys ranging in age from 12 to 17 were turned over to the Montgomery County Juvenile Court yesterday charged with having stolen approximately $85 in March of Dimes funds from the Rockville Elementary School. Police reported the youths were picked up when they were seen spending money freely in Rockville stores.

Publisher Is Sued

A suit for $4065 was filed yesterday against Eleanor Patterson, publisher of the Times Herald, by Rudolph Wendell, Inc., of New York.

Signed by Vice President Carl H. Glaser, the action asks payment of the amount for "materials and services" that went into decorative lighting of the Patterson residence, 15 Dupont Circle.

Bid Astonishes PBA

The Public Buildings Administration yesterday opened bids on the renting of a two-story, six-bedroom, $30,000 mansion and found it to its surprise that only one person bid—and he offered $75 a month.

The structure, located at 4510 Silver Hill rd., Suitland, Md., was used by the Navy Department during the war, but is now available for rental. A PBA spokesman said the home will probably be advertised once more in hopes that the $75 bid will be improved.

4 Apartments Robbed

Police were searching last night for a prowler who ransacked four apartments at 88 and 90 G st. sw. and finished off a cooked chicken in one before he left. One of the apartment residents, Gertude Contee, reported the thief took a watch and a pair of hose, while Nathaniel Cousar, who was left with only the chicken bones, reported a cigarette lighter also missing.

Arlington Safety Drive

That uniformed policeman tailing cars of Arlington residents in the next few days won't be after speeders. County safety officer Frank Palmer is looking for a good candidate for the honor of "safety driver of the week."

..Whoever wins the distinction will appear on a radio broadcast Tuesday at 5:30 p.m. on Station WARL. Also speaking will be Police Chief Harry Woodyard and County Manager A. T. Lundberg. Another traffic safety program will be broadcast Thursday at 11:15 a. m. over the same station.

On Liquor Profits

Bill to Hit 'Dry' Areas In Virginia

Richmond, Va., Jan. 30 (Spl.).—A bill designed to bar "dry" localities from sharing in Virginia liquor profits was introduced in the House today, shortly before the General Assembly adjourned until noon Monday.

The controversial measure, which would distribute ABC proceeds only to those areas permitting the sale of beer, wine or liquor, was introduced by Franklin County Delegate John B. Allman during the brief House and Senate sessions marked by these developments:

1. Announcement that Governor Tuck had signed House Bill 46, authorizing a special referendum in Alexandria March 2 on the question of whether city councilmen shall be elected by wards or at large.

Would Allow Saturday Close

2. Introduction of a bill by Delegate Robert McCandlish of Fairfax, which would permit that county clerk's office to close all day on Saturday and on all legal holidays, subject to the approval of the board of supervisors.

3. Introduction in the Senate by Senator Andrew W. Clarke, Alexandria, of four bills revising regulations governing sanitary districts in Fairfax County.

4. Senate approved on recorded vote of 31 to 4 the Blanton-Clarke bill which would allow banks to close on Saturdays subject to approval of their boards of directors.

5. Delegate Edmund T. DeJarnette of Hanover, a bill to put the examination for drivers' licenses entirely under the division of Motor Vehicles instead of the State police.

Permits Vote on Council

The Alexandria referendum bill, which became law when Governor Tuck affixed his signature, will enable Alexandrians to vote on whether they wish to retain the present nine-man ward council or elect a seven-man council-at-large. Whichever method is approved by the voters, nominees for the council will be chosen in the regular Democratic primary in April.

The bill providing extra holidays for employes in the clerk's office at Fairfax was introduced by Delegate McCandlish at the request of Thomas P. Chapman, jr., clerk of the Circuit Court. He and his staff now work half a day on Saturdays, and receive holidays only on Sundays, July 4, Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Sanitary district bills introduced by Senator Clarke follow recommendations of the county sanitary engineer, James J. Corbalis, which were approved by the board of supervisors two weeks ago. They would provide for (1) simplified steps for creating a smaller sanitary district within a district; (2) Authorization for the county to levy a tax to finance sanitary district construction or acquisition of utility systems; (3) Elimination of a clause limiting to 25 years the maturity periods of bonds issued for sanitary district work, and (4) Authorization for the county to pay individuals for acquisition of existing utility systems.

Arnold Bus Pension Fund Causes Suit

The Arnold Bus Lines, emerging from an administrative and financial shakeup, ran into court action yesterday involving three of its officials.

Howard H. English, who resigned December 27 as Arnold general manager, asked Arlington Circuot Court to determine whether pension fund papers should be turned over to the three officals, who are also trustees of the fund.

His bill of complaint named Joseph L. Arnold, president; Samuel J. Davis, majority stockholder, and Jesse F. Stokely, traffic manager.

Hesitant on Transfer

England said he was hesitant to hand over his trusteeship to a pension board "dominated" by Arnold and Davis. His suit alleged the "approximately $200,000" pension fund consists chiefly of notes given by Davis in exchange for $158,000 they have borrowed from it.

The suit claims that Davis, on July 16, 1946, borrowed $150,000 from the fund and left a note covered by 19,800 of his shares of Arnold capital stock.

By this move, England declared, Davis left $65,000 worth of his company stock to cover a $150,000 note.

England also contends that Arnold, on December 28, 1942, borrowed $5000, later repaid $1200, and still later took an additional $4200 for a total of $8000.

Gave Personal Note

To cover this, the suit said, Arnold gave his personal note secured by his 3500 shares of stock.

"Both of the said notes remain unpaid and are in the possession of this complainant," England's suit said. He added that the safe deposit box in an Arlington bank containing the pension fund papers could only be opened in his presence.

In a scheduled major stock transfer, Davis has said he will sell all but 2000 of his 29,800 Arnold shares to a group of investors headed by Arnold and his wife.

Complete administration of the Virginia bus company will be taken over next Monday by Col. M. D. Mills, who recently reorganized bus operations in Oklahoma City.

D. C. Man Fined

Profitt, Robey Freed In Bank Case

Richmond, Va., Jan. 30 (Spl.).—Harry Lamson, 82, Washington real estate man, was fined $3000 here today for his role in financial juggling that broke a bank in Fredericksburg, Va.

Judge Johnson J. Hayes, in Federal District Court, imposed the fine for Lamson's relatively minor part that aided a bank official's scheme to misapply some $435,000 funds of the old Farmers & Merchants State Bank.

William Reeves Gardner, former vice president, who pleaded guilty, was given five years' imprisonment to run concurrently with a seven-year State sentence.

Judge Hayes, in role of judge and jury, acquitted two Virginia bank presidents of complicity in what the Government contended was a vast scheme of check kiting. They are Clarence L. Robey, Purcellville National Bank, and Joseph E. Proffit, Floyd County Bank.

Disposing of charges against other defendants, Judge Hayes sentenced:

Hugh N. Rakes of Leesburg, Va., dairyman, who pleaded innocent, to three years' imprisonment, a fine of $10,000, and five years' probation after end of the prison term.

Kyle M. Weeks, law partner of Proffit, to a fine of $5000.

Joseph A. Sowers, Floyd County Bank cashier, to a $3000 fine.

The eighth defendant, Mrs. Lillian C. Rakes, was acquitted earlier this week by the 12-man jury which convicted her husband.

H. W. Offutt Dies; Realty Developer

Henry Wootton Offutt, 85, real estate man who developed Friendship Heights, Md., died yesterday at his home, 200 Wootton ave., in that town, after an illness of several weeks.

A native of Montgomery County, he came from one of the oldest families in the area. As a young man he entered the real estate business in Georgetown, and later developed Friendship Heights. He retired about 18 years ago.

Mr. Offutt was at one time president of the Potomac Savings Bank, now the Georgetown branch of the Hamilton National Bank. He had been a Mason for more than 60 years and at the time of his death was junior warden of St. Johns Church, 3244 O st. nw.

Survivors are two daughters, Mrs. Lucy Lee Mourning, at home, and Mrs. Harold Walker Breining, 1724 Crestwood dr. nw.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. Monday at St. Johns Church, with burial in Oak Hill Cemetery.

Roy F. Collins

Front Royal, Va., Jan. 30.—Funeral services for Roy F. Collins, 73, for 18 years Warren County sheriff, will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m.

A native of Warren County, he was a meat dealer here for 45 years. Mr. Collins served as sheriff from 1917 until 1935. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mamie Lockhart Collins; two sons, Raymond of Miami, Fla., and Browning A. of Front Royal; three daughters, Shirley of Washington, Mrs. Rebecca Boyd, Front Royal, and Mrs. Newell Chadwick of Richmond, and three sisters, Mrs. Louisa Kelley, Asbury Park, N. Mrs. Senior's Funeral Held In Connecticut

Funeral services for Mrs. Samuel Palmer Senior, 74, of Easton, Conn., sister of Enos S. Newman, retired Washington lawyer, were held Thursday in Bridgeport, Conn. Burial was in Mountain Grove Cemetery in Bridgeport.

Mrs. Senior died January 26 at Bridgeport Hospital following a long illness. Her death was reported here by the Bridgeport Post.

A native of Manassas, Va., she was the daughter of Enos K. Newman and Augusta Walser Newman. Mrs. Senior moved with her family to Washington in 1881, where she was educated. In 1901 she married Samuel Palmer Senior of Sport Hill, Easton, Conn., president of the Bridgeport Hydraulic Co.

Besides her husband and her brother, Mrs. Senior leaves a son, Samuel P. Senior, jr., of Fairfield, Conn.; a daughter, Mrs. G. Russel Blanchard of Uxbridge, Mass.; two nephews, E. P. S. Newman and Hobart Newman, both of Washington, and three nieces, Miss Helen Newman of Washington, Mrs. Rouben Mamoulian, formerly of Washington, and Mrs. Arthur Drew of St. Louis, Mo.; seven grandchildren, and a brother-in-law, E. R. Connor of Manassas, Va.

Mrs. Moser's Rites Today; DAR Member

Funeral services for Mrs. Gertrude Warren Moser, former Daughters of the American Revolution officer, will be held at 2 p. m. today at Gawlers funeral home, 1756 Pennsylvania ave. nw. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mrs. Moser died at her home, 4855 Reservoir rd. nw., Thursday, after a brief illness. A native of Oldtown, Maine, she attended Boston University. Before her marriage to the late Robert McDowell Moser in 1897, she was a concert singer.

In 1899 she came to Washington, where she was a member of the Burleith Citizens Association. She was a past president of the Burleith Garden Club.

Active in DAR circles, Mrs. Moser was a member of the Deborah Knapp Chapter and served as treasurer and president of the Chapter House. She was State treasurer of the District DAR in 1922-23.

Only survivor is a daughter, Mrs. Helen Clyde Moser Myer, who lives at the Reservoir address.

Mrs. Amanda S. Dudrow

Mrs. Amanda S. Dudrow, 77, for many years a resident of Hyattsville, Md., died early yesterday at the home of her son, Otis B. Dudrow, 5501 43d pl., Hyattsville, after a long illness.

Born in Terra Alta, W. Va., Mrs. Dudrow was the widow of O. G. Dudrow, of Hyattsville, and had lived in the nearby community since 1918. She was a member of both the Mt. Rainier Christian Church and the Hyattstown Christian Church.

In addition to her son, Otis, she is survived by another son, Ralph C. Dudrow, of Hyattsville; 10 grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a. m. Monday at the Mt. Rainier Christian Church, and at 2 p. m. the same day at the Hyattstown Christian Church. The Rev. Charles H. Frick, pastor of the Mt. Rainier Church, will conduct both services, but will be assisted in the Hyattstown service by the Rev. La Due Magill, pastor of the church there. Burial will be in Hyattstown.

A. N. Brown, Ex-Newsman, Dies in Florida

A former president of the Gridiron Club and winner of Pulitzer prize honorable mention for his Washington correspondence, Mr. had gone to Florida for the winter on January 13.

Prior to his retirement, he had been Washington correspondent for the Providence Journal for 22 years, but his newspaper career, spanning a half-century, was part of the history of journalism from the Pacific Northwest and Alaska to the East.

He was born in Seattle, Wash., December 6, 1872, the son of Beriah and Jenie McHugh Brown. His was an old Rhode Island family of Colonial days—one ancestor was a sheriff under the British Crown—which had moved successively westward by States until it reached the Pacific Coast.

Met Rathom in Canada

He entered newspaper work in Seattle as a cub reporter of 18, after beeing educated in private schools in Washington and California. Between 1890 and 1896 he worked successively as a reporter in Tacoma, San Francisco and Victoria, B. C. In the latter city he first met another reporter, the late John R. Rathom, who years later became the World War I editor and general manager of the Providence Journal," with which Mr. Brown was to spend his last active years.

In 1896 he became city editor of the Spokane Spokesman-Review, a post he held three years until he became city editor and Sunday editor of the Anaconda (Mont.) Standard. In 1902 he became city editor of the Butte (Mont.) Inter-Mountain, staying there two years, when he joined the staff of the Seattle Post Intelligencer, of which he became news editor in 1907. In 1909 this newspaper made him its Washington correspondent.

Visitor to Naval Academy

From 1911 to 1914 Mr. Brown free-lanced as a syndicate and magazine writer in Washington, also serving during this period as associate editor of Arms and the Man, published here. In the latter year he rejoined the Seattle Post-Intelligencer as its Washington correspondent, serving in that post until he became Washington correspondent of the Providence Journal in 1920. For about a year he was Washington correspondent for both the Seattle and Providence papers, but this coast-to-coast coverage was too much for a man of even his energy, and he relinquished the Seattle post.

He had two brief excursions into politics, one as private secretary to the Governor of Washington between 1905 and 1907, and another as private secretary to the Secretary of the Interior in Washington in 1910-11. He declined a third, to become press secretary to President Herbert Hoover in 1929, although the declination did not injure the cordial relations between Mr. Hoover and Mr. Brown, a staunch Republican. He served as an appointee of President Hoover in 1931 as a member of the board of visitors of the United States Naval Academy.

Gridiron President in '27

He was elected as one of the 50 active members of the Gridiron Club in 1919, served as its president in 1927. He retired from active work in June, 1942, and divided his time among Washington, Florida and a summer cottage in northern Maryland. He was a member of the National Press Club. He wrate "A Study of the Cotton Industry" in 1923 and "Canada, Our Most Agreeable Neighbor," in 1925, and declined urgings of friends to write an autobiography which would have been a contribution to the history of American journalism after his retirement.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Florence Coleman Brown, who was with him when he died, and a nephew, Nat Brown, of Yakima, Wash. His body will be brought here Sunday night. The funeral probably will be on Tuesday, with burial in Glenwood Cemetery here but details have not yet been arranged.

Roscoe C. Thomas

Groton, Mass., Jan. 30 (AP).—Roscoe C. Thomas, 62, a master of Groton School and a mathematics instructor there for 32 years, died today.

MISS CARLA SPAATZ, subdeb daughter of Gen. and Mrs. Carl Spaatz, has a congratulatory hug for Iack V. Fruhlingshein—Rex to those who knew him—for winning a blue ribbon in an afternoon class at the Potomac Boxer Club's show yesterday at Fort Myer. The boxer was bought in Europe and trained by John G. Govatos, jr.

Country's Prize Boxers Vie In Dog Show at Fort Myer

The Potomac Boxer Club's show yesterday at Fort Myer drew boxer lovers from many parts of the country and top names in Capital society.

Mrs. Toni Caro of London, England, president of the British Boxer Club, who has been in the United States since the holiday season, flew down from New York with her husband for the occasion.

Arriving early at the show which lasted all afternoon and evening were former Foreign Minister of Austria and Mrs. Edgar Prochnick, Assistan Secretary of the Air Force and Mrs. Eugene Zuchert, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Merlin O'Neill, Mr. and Mrs Keith Merrill, Mrs. C. A. Buchanan, and Col and Mrs. Curt Schiffeler.

Then there were Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Hobart Clay, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. William H. Arnold, Mrs. William Castle, Col. and Mrs. Murray B. Sheeler and Comdr. and Mrs. K. V. Patrick.

Mrs. Eugene Zuckert awarded prizes to John Lynch of Vienna, Va., and Jeanne Taylor of Washington for being the best boy and girl handlers at the show.

Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower arrived later to award the best-in-the-show trophy.

Mrs. Jouett Shouse, president of the Potomac Boxer Club, served as hostess, and members of JANGO, to whom all proceeds of the affair are directed, presided at the buffet table and sold programs.

Gen. Bradley Makes Plea For Training

By Genevieve Reynolds

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Chief of Staff, United States Army, designate, yesterday issued a strong plea for universal military training in a luncheon address before delegates of the Association of Women Broadcasters of the National Association of Broadcasters, now in conference here at the Mayflower Hotel.

"UMT boils down to one thing," he explained, "whether something isn't necessary for our defense and security in a world of chaos.

"Conditions today are not indicative of peace," he continued. "We must have an adequate armed force to back up a strong foreign policy, and if attacked we want to be able to protect ourselves."

Pointing out that many people have the conception that men no longer are needed to fight war, the general declared, "there will not be complete push button warfare during our generation."

General Bradley said that it is hard to conceive of our attacking anyone first but that we must be ready to retaliate immediately in the event that an enemy strikes first. "If attacked we will need several million men and they must be trained," he emphasized. "The Army will need two million men immediately and would have to depend on 1½ million from the reserves and National Guard."

A soldier needs 2500 hours before going into the field. The National Guard provides only about 20 per cent of necessary training over a three-year period whereas UMT would provide 1000 hours training. With the UMT and National Guard training the soldier would have 60 per cent of what he needs, according to General Bradley.

"Peace of world depends on contentment of nations plus their willingness to get along with one another either because of desire to do so or their respect for force," concluded General Bradley. "And in the world today there's an aggressive ideology which might cause us trouble."

Judge Justin Miller, president, NAB, introduced General Bradley, and Miss Ruth Crane, acting president of AWB, presented the honor guests among whom were the Secretary of the Navy, John Sullivan, and Mrs. Sullivan; Maj. Gen. Lemuel Shepherd, jr., USMC, assistant to the Commandant of the Marine Corps, who came with Mrs. Shepherd; Mrs. Bradley and Mrs. Miller.

Entertain at Concert

Mrs. Virginia Rollwage Collier, treasurer of the D. C. branch, National League of American Pen Women, will take a group of friends tomorrow afternoon to hear the National Symphony Orchestra concert at Constitution Hall. The symphony's guest artist is the young American violinists, Arnold Eidus, who won first prize over representatives of 23 countries at the international competition in Paris last year.

Among Mrs. Collier's guests will be Mrs. Merle Lyon, president of the Washington Chapter of the Pen Women.

Ask Anne — Your Questions on Homemaking

Have any of your readers had a large dining table successfully remodeled into a dropleaf style? My 6-foot-long walnut veneer table is much too large for my present one-room apartment. I have asked at all of the good furniture stores in town, and have tried the phone book with little success so far in locating a cabinetmaker experienced in this type of work. One or two are willing to try but none seems to have done a similar job. I would appreciate your advice or the advice of anyone who has been able to get such work done in Washington. E. B.

I discussed your problem with a cabinetmaker specializing in tables and he tells me your table can be converted into a dropleaf table, but so much work would be involved that the job would cost as much or more than a new dropleaf table. Unless the table is valued sentimentally or it is a part of an expensive set which you wish to keep intact, he suggested you replace the table. If you wish to discuss the problem further, I would suggest you call the cabinetmaker at Sterling 8160.

How can "decals" be removed from a painted wall, enameled cabinet door and refrigerator? M. D. M.

"Decals" can be removed from painted and enameled surfaces by soaking them with a sponge or cloth wrung out of hot vinegar. Allow to stand 20 minutes after soaking and pull them off.

I have some new plastic bathroom curtains which hang directly over the radiator in the bathroom. They are covered with soot and when I washed them (in soap and water) the soot would not some off. Can you tell me anything to use that would remove the soot? D. H. W.

Spread the curtains on a flat surface and wash them with mechanics' hand soap and a brush. This soap contains a mild abrasive and should help to dislodge the soot without harming the plastic. Be sure to rinse thoroughly with clear water and dry well when cleaned.

Do you know of any place in Washington I could get instructions on covering lamp shades? I saw a very pretty shade last summer I thought looked so easy to make, but it seems to have me stumped. Would appreciate any information you could give me. H. T. M.

We have called many of the places in Washington where hobbies are taught and have found no one who teaches lamp shade making. There seems to be quite an interest in this handicraft at the present time, so if any of you readers teach it or know of someone who does, will you pass along the information?

We have wicker furniture on a screened porch. This has a varnish finish, but I believe for outside use an oil finish would be more durable. How can we take off the varnish and refinish the furniture for practical use on this porch? L. I.

In discussing your problem with a professional furniture refinisher, he suggested that an oil finish would be very difficult to put on your furniture since it is now varnished. The old varnish would have to be removed before an oil finish can be applied. This is difficult to do on wicker because it would be hard to get all of the varnish and remover from the many cracks. If it wasn't completely removed, the oil finish would not harden properly and so would rub off and stain anything getting in contact with it. A much more durable finish could be obtained by applying enamel to the furniture. This can be applied right over the varnish. Apply a good undercoat than a coat of enamel suitable for outdoor use.

Amazing Hats Win Prizes

Spring Styles Paraded At Vassar Fashion Show

By Peggy Preston

VASSAR grads and undergrads joined forces yesterday to put on the season's biggest fashion show to date.

Staged for the benefit of the Vassar Scholarship Fund, the Vassarines managed to pack everything into the act from clothes to a contest for the most amazing headgear. The show, two hours long, took place at the Statler Hotel at 12 noon and at 4 p. m.

Top attraction was the parade of new spring and summer fashions by well-known American designers, presented by Julius Garfinckel & Co. But other highlights included a program of songs by 10 pretty undergraduates from Poughkeepsie, known as the Vassar Night Owls.

A series of contests closed the show, with Mrs. Bennet Champ Clark as master of ceremonies. First, the audience identified Designer Nettie Rosenstein from a program jingle entitled "Who is Miss Fash?" Then followed contests for the lady with the largest number of potential Vassar students; the brave male present without a single Vassar relative; the most recent mother in the room; the youngest person in the room; and the five women wearing the most amazing headgear.

Winners in the last group were Mrs. Will Shafroth, in a homemade creation of wads of a scouring agent named "Brillo," Mrs. Owen Brewster, in a black hat with a great sweep of green feathers; Mrs. Charles Allen, spectacular in royal blue plumes; Countess de Bonrepos, wearing a halo net hat, and Mrs. Theodore I. Messenger, whose hat was of green net and felt.

Many of the new costumes which this reporter viewed a few weeks ago in the designer's showrooms in New York were on display in the fashion show. About 65 ensembles were shown, with such designers represented as Nettie Rosenstein, Adele Simpson, Pauline Trigere, and Clare Potter.

The quaint, little costume suits by Adele Simpson were outstanding in the group. These consist of wide, swirling wool skirts, patent leather belts, white blouses and jackets cut to look like shawls, bound in fringe.

The princess coat was stressed throughout the show as the important coat silhouette for spring. In other instances the princess lines were carried over into suits, a new fashion item this spring.

Easter Bonnet For First Lady

Mrs. Truman has a new Easter bonnet—with pink ribbon on it!

A gift of the Millinery Fashion Bureau, it was presented to her yesterday at the tea which she gave for members of the Association of Women Broadcasters at the White House. Made by Florence Reichman, the hat is a froth of pink veiling and straw and is trimmed with flowers.

When Mrs. Truman tried it on for the Radio girls, she exclaimed, "This is one hat that Margaret won't get away from me!"

Mrs. Booth Comes For Preview at National Gallery

Mrs. Ralph Harman Booth of Grosse Pointe, Mich., will arrive today to attend the preview tomorrow evening at the National Gallery of Art of the paintings which she has just given to the gallery. She will be accompanied by her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Lord Booth of Detroit; her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Vogel of Milwaukee; Miss Esther Booth and Mrs. Richard Joy of Detroit.

David Edward Finley, director of the National Gallery, and Mrs. Finley will entertain at dinner this evening at the 1925 F Street Club in honor of Mrs. Booth, and she will have luncheon today at the gallery.

Mr. and Mrs. John Walker will be hosts at luncheon tomorrow in honor of the visitor, and Mr. and Mrs. Finley will give a dinner for her tomorrow evening.

Mrs. Vanderlip Feted

In honor of Mrs. Frank Vanderlip, who is leaving for Florida today, Mrs. Douglas Hatch entertained at a small luncheon yesterday at the 1925 F Street Club.

Dr., Mrs. Cullen Give Reception

IN HONOR of Mr. and Mrs. Auguste Boas and to celebrate the birthday of Mrs. Boas, a reception was given yesterday at the Washington Club by Dr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Cullen. White orchids worn by the hostess and Mrs. Boas, and red camellias worn by the assistants were products of the host's greenhouse and favorite hobby.

A birthday cake centered the tea table, and a strolling musician played an accordion. Assistants who took turns pouring tea were Mrs. Arthur MacArthur, Mrs. Edward Bartelt, Mrs. Robert Freer, Mrs. Edgar Quayle, Mrs. James Horton, and Mrs. James Macpherson.

Senora de Caceres, wife of the Ambassador of Honduras, and the Assistant to the President and Mrs. John R. Steelman were among the guests.

By Harry Goodwin—The Washington Post

JOSEPH WHITEHEAD'S lovely white organdie "garden party" dress was one of the highlights of yesterday's fashion show at the Statler Hotel for the benefit of the Vassar College Scholarship Fund. The gown is available at Julius Garfinckel & Co.

U. N. Club Plans Dance Series

Mrs. Henry Williams Morgan, jr., general chairman of the United Nations Club Sunday Night Dances, has arranged a varied program for February.

Miss Edwina Pou Wadden has accepted the chairmanship of the "Post Debutante Evening" scheduled for tomorrow night. Among the guests of honor will be the Misses Monica Gailliard, Polly Norment, Mary Echols, Elizabeth and Emily Arnold, Patricia Palmer, Beverly Farrington, Katherine Elkins, Betsey Wells, Cathie Colean, Carolyn Wendt and Ann Mundelel.

February 8th is to be "Debutante Evening," with Miss Betty Jeanne Harrell, chairman. On February 15 the Senate and congressional daughters are to be honored, and co-chairmen are Mrs. Mary Senate George and Miss Annie Laurie Rankin.

Jack Van Devanter will serve as chairman for the "Bachelor Evening" on February 22 and the Misses Jane Lingo and Anne Gillespie will be in charge of the "Leap Year Dance" on February 29.

Wedding Bells Ring

Mrs. Virginia Athey McGee of Washington became the bride of Comdr. Carson Hawkins, USN, on January 17 in the Naval Academy Chapel, Annapolis, Md., Capt. E. P. Kuebbens, chaplain of the Academy, officiating.

The bride was given in marriage by Dr. Fred Haynes. Miss Patricia McGee of Cumberland, Md., was her only attendant. Capt. Ben Scott Custer, USN, was best man, and Lieut. James McGee seated the guests. A reception followed at the home of the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Ben Scott Custer of Chevy Chase, Md.

The newlyweds will make their home in Washington.

Klima—Gustafson

The marriage of Miss Jean Anne Gustafson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert A. Gustafson of Washington, to William J. Klima, son of Mrs. Marie Klima of Flushing, N. Y., took place on January 17 in the Shrine of the Blessed Sacrament, the Rev. F. Miller officiating.

The bride wore an aqua suit with a corsage of white orchids and lilies of the valley. Her sister, Miss Joan Clara Gustafson, maid of honor, wore a beige suit with a lavender orchid corsage. Stanley Klima served his brother as best man. A reception followed at Hotel 2400 after which the couple left for a honeymoon in the Poconos. Mr. and Mrs. Klima will reside in Virginia on their return. Mrs. Klima attended Strayer's College and George Washington University. Her husband is a graduate of Notre Dame University and New York Law School.

Chipman—Gaegler

Miss Anna May Gaegler became the bride of Albert William Chipman, jr., at 7 a. m., January 26, at St. Matthew's Cathedral. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Anthony Gaegler of this city, she was given in marriage by her father. The Rev. Edward H. O'Brien officiated. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert William Chipman of Washington.

The bride wore white satin trimmed in seed pearls. Her veil of illusion was held by a headpiece of shirred illusion and orange blossoms and she carried white roses.

Mrs. Arthur Harmon, wearing pale rose satin and carrying a colonial bouquet, was matron of honor. The bride's sister, Miss Margaret Gaegler, was maid of honor, wearing ice blue satin and carrying a colonial bouquet. The bridesmaids, Mrs. William Charles Hall, Mrs. William Hill, Miss Geraldine Wright and Miss Jeann Chipman, sister of the bridegroom, wore pale green satin.

Attanasio—Bonanno

Miss Rose Marie Bonanno, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carmelo Bonanno of Washington, was married on January 18 in St. Gabriel's Church to Angelo S. Attanasio, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo S. Attanasio of Linden, N. J. The Rev. Lewis W. Albert officiated.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, was costumed in ivory satin with seed pearls trimming the sweetheart neckline. Maid of honor, Miss Sara Bonanno, wore pink brocade satin and carried Talisman roses. The bridesmaids, Misses Connie LoFaro, Marie Fusco, Teresa Attanasio and Mary Attanasio, were gowned in pale blue rayon satin and carried American Beauty roses. Dr. Joseph P. Attanasio was his brother's best man. Salvatore Attanasio, Tom Bonanno, Teddy Bonanno and Salvatore Bonanno were ushers. A reception followed at the American Legion Hall.

On return from a honeymoon in New York City, Mr. and Mrs. Attanasio will reside in Linden.

Downtown Flicks Uniformly Fine

By Richard L. Coe

IF YOU KEEP UP with the movies, you know that this is a rare weekend . . . Four downtown screens are showing pictures that are likely to wind up on anyone's "best" list . . . This amounts to news; it's certainly the first time in the past two years that four films of such excellence have been on tap at once . . . "I Know Where I'm Going" has been around the longest and today starts it's fifth and final week at the Hippodrome . . . This observer and the Star's Harry MacArthur both wrote that the Wendy Hiller romance had "rare charm," and we weren't in cahoots over it, either . . . "Road to Rio," at the Palace, is generally agreed to be the best Crosby-Hope trip of them all, a lively, always amusing comedy . . . The Warner's "Treasure of Sierra Madre" is a splendid picture, the best to come out of Hollywood in a long time . . . Walter Huston is superb as a wise old prospector and Alfonso Bedoya's "Gold Hat" is unusually fine in that he reminds us that evil can be purely vicious ignorance . . . And the Little's newly arrived "Shoe Shine" is probably one of the finest pictures to come out of anywhere.

THIS EMBARRASSMENT of riches is one answer to the publicly uttered whines of the film moguls about the low state of the box office . . . Three of them are well out of the ordinary in design and "Road to Rio" obviously was made with enormous effort; when two such performers as Bing and Bob work harder than they've ever worked, the funnier they are . . . Despite those few inches of snow which so crippled our motor-age habits, and despite radio warnings to stay home, only one of the three then running admit to having been affected by last weekend's rough weather . . . With this weekend's conditions anyone's guess (including the weatherman's), it'll be interesting to see how many customers are lured by this exceptional foursome.

THE NATIONAL will not be affected by a walkout of New York stagehands which may come off Monday night . . . The union delegation has served notice to the League of New York Theaters, which is fancy for the producers' alignment, that they want a 20 per cent wage increase by February 1—"or else," as Sam Zolotow puts it in the Times . . . The basic contract ends today in Manhattan and the managers have served dismissal notices to 27 backstage crew hands . . . A compromise may be reached; if not, there'll be strange goings-on Monday night . . . The National's contract with the local union has until September 1 to run, so, Providence willing, Bert Lahr and "Burlesque" will be with us no matter what happens in the theater capital.

WEEKEND BRIEFS: The Southeast Dramatics Association is holding its first auditions tomorrow afternoon at 3 for its one-act tournament entry, "The Kite." The place to be is in Northwest, though, the apartment of Director Vera Mowry, 1809 G st., Apt. 314 . . . The Little's scheduling an unprecedentedly early showing of "Shoe Shine" this morning at 9:30; doors open at 9 . . . The Capitol goes back to four Sunday stage shows tomorrow, with Hal Leroy's taps preceding "Cass Timberlane" as the afternoon's first event . . . Theater men round town rate bows for their part in putting over the March of Dimes campaign; as usual, when there's a charitable cause, theater folks are asked first and respond first . . . "Modern Dance for Children" titles a recital tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 by Dance Theater, 2012 P st. nw.; Batya Heller and Erika Thimey are directing the youngsters . . . Tonight is open house at the Variety Club, with Herb Sachs in charge . . . Rudolph Valentino in "The Eagle" is tomorrow night's revival at Community Education, Inc., 914 20th st., at 8:15 . . . Tonight at 8:30 International Student House is showing "A Nous La Liberte," the Rene Clair classic, at 1825 R st. . . . Clare Tree Major's Children Theater plays "The Sleeping Beauty" this morning at 10:30 and this afternoon at 2 in Lisner Auditorium.

Show Time for Stage and Screen

U. S. Detains 206 Reds, Russian Leader Says

Berlin, Jan. 30 (NYHT).—The Russian commander in Germanl, in a letter to the American Military Government, today accused the Americans of keeping 206 Soviet citizens in jails in the American occupation zone and of having illegally sentenced 30 of them to death by shooting.

Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American military governor, immediately ordered an investigation. Probers said a preliminary study showed most of the people involved are not Soviet citizens at all but are displaced Poles, Lithuanians and Esthonians who have refused to return to their homelands under Russian domination.

10,000 Chinese Troops Flee Fall of Sinlitun

Peiping, Jan. 30 (AP).—Ten thousand Chinese government troops broke out of encirclement and escaped when Communists captured the Manchurian city of Sinlitun Monday, Nationalist dispatches said today.

(The Communist radio reported 6929 government troops had been captured.)

There was no report of current operations in Manchuria.

Ruhr Workers Sidestep Strike Plan, Ask Coal

Frankfurt, Germany, Jan. 30 (U.P.).—Representatives of 1,500,000 organized Ruhr workers today sidestepped reported plans for a general strike in the Rhur Valley and demanded instead immediate release of one million tons of coal for the purchase of food.

More than tree million western German workers, including the Rhur workers, threatened yesterday to strike for 24 hours next Tuesday over food and clothing.

A STUNNING PERFORMANCE: Walter Huston, as Howard, the wise old prospector, with Humphrey Bogart, in "Treasure of Sierra Madre." Adapted from a novel by "B. Traven" and also directed by Huston's son, John, the picture has been generally hailed as one of Hollywood's best efforts in a long time. "Treasure" is in its second week at the Warner

'Esther' Signatures Genuine, Expert Says

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

Attorney James J. Laughlin's contention that his former sweetheart, Mrs. Esther Pickard Hobbs, had absolved him from blame in connection with an abortion performed on her last March, was strengthened yesterday by testimony of a handwriting expert.

The expert, James Newton Baker, 1831 M st. nw., testified in District Court that the signature "Esther" on typewritten letters of last March 20 and May 16 was genuine. Baker had been called by Laughlin as a defense witness.

The May 16 letter addressed to Laughlin said in part "you were not responsible for my pregnancy and you had nothing to do with the abortion . . ." The attorney and his codefendant Dr. Henry L. Peckham, jr., are charged with complicity in the abortion. They face a maximum penalty of five years' imprisonment if convicted.

Was Connors Witness

Baker, who said he was a member of the bars of the District and United States Supreme Courts, revealed under cross-examination by Prosecutor Arthur McLaughlin that he had appeared as a witness for Raymond Connors charged with first-degree murder in 1946. Laughlin was Connors' lawyer at the time and secured an acquittal.

Declaring that he had compared the disputed signatures with those admitted by Mrs. Hobbs to be hers, Baker declared: "My opinion is that the same person wrote all the signatures."

The witness declared the signatures were "flash signatures"—that they were written freely without interruption.

Greatly enlarged photos of the signatures were passed to the jury for examination while Dr. Baker pointed out penmanship "characteristics" of the writer and similarities appearance of the writing.

Admits Similarity

He agreed that the appearance of the name "Esther" on one of the disputed letters was very similar to the signature on the other but declared "if they were exactly the same and could be superimposed one on the other—one would be a forgery."

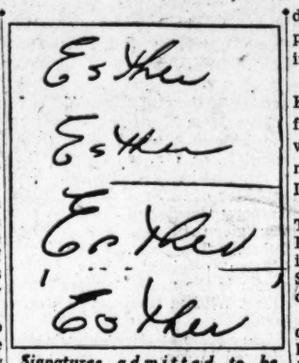
At one point McLaughlin asked the witness if he were'nt drawing a disability pension for poor eyesight.

The witness replied that he was drawing a Government retirement pension and the line of questioning was disallowed.

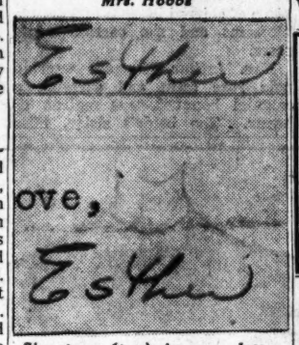
First witness was Luke McKenzie, 1301 East Capitol st., a former business associate of Hobbs who corroborated Hobbs' testimony Thursday about visiting Laughlin's office on May 16.

The trial was recessed until Tuesday. Chief Justice Bolitha Laws, presiding at the proceedings, has duties at the United States Court of Appeals on Monday.

The Government expects to call one more witness, probably a handwriting expert and the case is expected to go to the jury Wednesday.



Signatures admitted to be Mrs. Hobbs'



Signature (top) is on a letter to Laughlin of March 20, 1947, in which the writer speaks of returning home that day. Other signature is on a letter dated May 16, 1947, in which the writer says "you are not responsible for me being pregnant and you had nothing to do with the abortion." Prosecution charges both may be forgeries

Congress Urged to Refuse Price Controls and Rationing

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Business, industry and meat producers yesterday urged Congress to refuse price controls and rationing.

There was one exception. The National Used Car Dealers Association asked Congress to impose ceilings on cars, both new and old.

Oliver W. Wood, president of the association, said that he and his associates fear they will get stuck with a lot of high-priced cars they can't sell if ceilings are not reimposed. Something will have to be done to bring prices down, Wood said, or buyers will be driven out of the market.

Tobey Startled

Chairman Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.) of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee was startled.

Price Controls: The National Association of Manufacturers contended that a return to price controls would mean a "police state." Morris Sayre, NAM president, contended the United States should not aid foreign nations unless they "modify and eventually eliminate" price controls and other controls over their internal production and distribution. The Government, he said, should encourage labor leaders to forego demands for further increases in wages without a corresponding increase in productivity, except in cases of gr s inequity. He also urged a cut in Government spending, cut in individual income taxes, and foreign relief in goods not dollars.

Meat Rationing: Senator Homer E. Capehart (R., Ind.) proposed calling off all further hearings on meat rationing, since President Truman has said he isn't sure it is needed. But Subcommittee Chairman Ralph E. Flanders (R., Vt.), author of a bill to get ready for meat rationing, declined to heed his request.

Fear Run on Supplies

Livestock producers and representatives of two large farm organizations told the Flanders' subcommittee that meat rationing would mean less meat at higher prices. They argued that even talk of rationing is causing runs on meat supplies.

Rent Controls: The National Association of Real Estate Boards demanded the end of rent control on February 29, on the ground that Congress had promised last year it would end on that date. If Congress won't let rent control die on February 29, the real estate group said, the present law should be extended for 60 days to give more time to consider new legislation. Senator Francis J. Myers (D., Pa.) termed the association's proposals "irresponsible." He urged controls be tightened to include recontrols of new rental construction and conversions, and restoration and enforcement power in the Housing Expediter.

Arkansas Law School Opens Door to Negro Studying Here

White Man Attempts To Enter New School For Oklahoma Negroes

Oklahoma City, Jan. 30 (AP).—A white man today sought to enroll in Oklahoma's new law school for Negroes, which the Negroes have spurned.

Harrison

Walter M. Harrison, 57, an ex-Army officer and former managing editor of the Oklahoma City Oklahoman and Times, demanded admission to the school and told reporters State officials 'are ducking in holes like a mole" on the segregation issue.

Members of the law school's three-man faculty first rejected his application because he was not a Negro, then told him he would get a final answer later.

On the university campus at Norman, a group of white students held a brief demonstration opposing admission of Negroes. Then they handed to President George L. Cross a petition with 282 signatures asking that segregation be continued. A similar demonstration opposing segregation yesterday ended with burning of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution.

Davis to Be Admitted For Instruction Apart Upon Reapplication

Fayetteville, Ark., Jan. 30 (AP).—Negro will be admitted to the University of Arkansas School of Law if he reapplies, President Lewis W. Jones announced today. Applications of Negroes for undergraduate work raises another question, the president added.

Dr. Jones said if the Negro, Clifford Davis, applies again, he will be given instruction apart from white students—but in the law school building and by regular members of the law school faculty.

Davis first applied a year or more ago and was rejected because the application wasn't in order. He reapplied and his credits were found in order, but Davis made no further effort to attend the university.

Davis now is a student at Howard University in Washington, D. C.

Herbert L. Thomas, chairman of the board of trustees, said he believed "any qualified Negro applying for undergraduate work "will be rejected," because undergraduate facilities are packed to capacity.

(At Washington, Davis said he has not been officially notified.)

Licia Albanese Gives Recital Full of Brilliance and Beauty

By Paul Hume

A great prima donna and one of the warmest personalities of our generation thrilled Constitution Hall's audience last night.

Licia Albanese, reigning Mimi, Butterfly and Violetta of today, sang a recital filled with brilliance and beauty.

Added to one of the most compelling voices of a generation is her appearance which reminds one strongly of Lucrezia Bori. The two artists share much in intensity of feeling and patrician manner.

An Italian group marked by nobility of line and style was succeeded by four Russian songs in which English texts somewhat hindered the flow of song Albanese was so willing to pour out.

Teachers and young singers alike might well profit by Albanese's consummate skill in well-known songs. She brings to them the newness of tremendous conviction and an enthusiasm which makes them seem to glow afresh. Four songs by American composers were made more notable than their inherent worth by the passion with which they were delivered.

In her final aria from "Gianni Schicchi," as in her Boheme and Columbetta encores, Albanese evoked memories of Claudia Muzio. There is the same finesse, and a wonderful plasticity in molding words and phrases into vibrant lines. For an audience which shouted its requests for encores in wild acclaim, "O Sole Mio" and Butterfly's "Un Bel Di" made further words unnecessary.

Pablo Miquel was a faithful and at times highly effective accompanist.

Eastern Dances Please

Earlier in the evening, Noami Aleh-Leaf, assisted by Paul Moor, pianist, gave a recital of dances from countries generally referred to as the Near East.

Cafritz Auditorium was well filled for the concert, a presentation of the East-West Association. Miss Aleh-Leaf has unusual gifts as a mime, supplemented with a fluid technique. Further life enters her work when she couples words and simple songs to the dancing.

Most of the dances are inspired either by folk lore or the religious customs of the countries represented. Much of the symbolism is lost upon our Occidental eyes, but there was more than a little beauty and at times, something of a foretaste of the hep-cat in what we beheld. Mr. Moor did noble service in the limited music required for the dances.

AFL Attacks Soviet Policy, Asks Stronger U. S. Defenses

Miami, Fla., Jan. 30 (AP).—The AFL tonight loosed one of the fiercest attacks on Soviet Russia yet made by a responsible American labor group and called for immediate strengthening of United States defenses.

The AFL's policy-making executive council, though not yet ready to flatly indorse universal military training, reevaluated its previous stand against compulsory youth training in the light of recent international developments.

President William Green told reporters he interpreted the strong criticism of Russian postwar policy as an indorsement of moves to build a strong U. S. Army, Navy, and especially an Air Force.

In that connection, the labor group offered its cooperation to Maj. Gen. O. P. Weyland, chief of plans and operations, U. S. Air Forces, who appeared before the 15 labor leaders to plead for support in maintaining an "adequate" air arm.

"Intoxicated by their strength and dictatorial power," the council's statement said "the Soviet leaders are still shrewd enough to realize that they cannot hope as yet to challenge the United States in open warfare. That is why they are waging a cold war and concentrating for the time being on capturing control of the remaining free nations of Europe.

"Each step in this direction is a step toward eventual war against the United States. That is what the Marshall Plan is designed to prevent. And that is why Russia is so desperately trying to undermine the European recovery program."

Film Offered at Hamline

A film entitled, "Its Brains That Count," will be shown tomorrow at 7 p. m. before the young adults of Hamline Methodist Church, 16th and Allison sts. nw. Harry A. Alburger is president of the young adults.

Russia Is Topic

Col. Heber Rice will speak on "Behind the Iron Curtain," tomorrow at 11 a. m. before the Fellowship Bible Class of Chevy Chase Methodist Church, Connecticut ave. and Shepherd st. nw.

Robertson Is Opposed To Rationing

Danville, Va., Jan. 30 (AP).—Senator A. Willis Robertson (D., Va.) placed himself on record here tonight as favoring the Marshall Plan for aid to European recovery and as opposing rationnig and price controls as a means of dealing with the current inflation problem.

Adressing the annual dinner meeting of the Danville Chamber of Commerce, Senator Robertson said:

"I favor aid (to Europe) that will be both adequate and timely, because in this emergency time is of the essence. The reason that I favor such aid is that I think now is the time for us to take a firm stand on the subject of Russian expansion in western Europe."

Robertson said that "no one can say with any degree of certainty" whether the $6,800,000,000 proposed for the first 15 months of the aid program is many millions too much or many millions too little.

He added:

"Any aid program which is inadequate will be money wasted."

Stating that he believed this country should control exports, the Virginia Senator said "a maximum of our supplies should be tools with which Europeans can help themselves and a minimum should be consumer goods—a destroyer of production incentive."

He suggested that administration of European aid be handled through an organization including leading business and industrial experts of the participating European countries and that there should be a similar administrative body of businessmen in this country.

"We should treat the nations of western Europe as partners in a joint enterprise and not ask them to accept humiliating restrictions upon our aid or attempt to make them crawl to us in a spirit of humble supplication," he declared.

Hagerstown Gas Co. Asks Higher Rates

Baltimore, Jan. 30 (AP).—The Hagerstown Gas Co. filed notice with the Public Service Commission today of a 10 per cent increase in its flat rates and 12½ per cent boost in its prepayment rates.

The utility said it wants the increased schedules to go into effect with the March meter readings.

Mister, Can You Spare 7 Cents for a Cup of Coffee?

Evelyn Bowman of 805 S. Pitt st., Alexandria, Va., tells me that you can't buy a half-cup of coffee in New York. The State law prohibits such sales.

And B. Glenn adds a realistic note with the query: "Where does Mrs. Street find a restaurant that still sells coffee for a nickel?"

(I could answer that question, but I don't want the boss to think I get my coffee for nothing in exchange for free plugs. However, this policy does not apply to our local Rolls Royce dealer.)

ADD SIGNS

James Barrett of 1106 Railroad ave., Falls Church, Va., has found a sign to top my "Slow Men at Work" item.

PIED TYPE DEPT.

Conrad "Old Man" Reid of 6703 Connecticut ave. nw. observes:

"They're a little bit mixed up. They mean 'The Water of Battleoo.'"

PERSONAL NOTES

Lieut. Comdr. Hugo Schulze, 4312 North 4th st., Arlington, Va.: Too long to reprint here, but a very funny item. And, incidentally, just like a woman. If the officer shows an interest in her, right away he's no gentleman. If he ignores her, he's stuck up.

Sally Meredith, 9-D Southway rd., Greenbelt, Md.: I accept the challenge, but not the bet. Your assignment is to write us a funny quatrain for Washington's birthday.

Jerry (WINX) Strong: What do you care if people don't laugh at your jokes? If you can hold on until more television sets are sold, they'll laugh at your face.

TREASURER'S REPORT

Patricia Crawford, 1211 58th ave. ne.; Mrs. A. E. Cappello, 1806 N. Oak st., Arlington, Va., "the gang at the Greenway Delicatessen;" Max K. Steinberg, 3019 Douglas st. ne. (check, too); Mrs. H. W. Palm, 1315 S. 20th st., Arlington, Va.; Mrs. Norma Thorne, 3002 Lancer pl., Hyattsville, Md., and Mrs. E. V. Schuman, 5809 14th st. nw.

FASHION NOTE

They've delegated Ann-Katrine Shaw of 723 Upshur st. nw. to sketch and explain an outfit specifically designed for winter waiting. It will undoubtedly become known as the Cold Look.

Since Ann-Katrine's original drawing was in pencil, Cartoonist Irwin inked it in for us (and I note, failed to resist the temptation to add a few Irwinesque touches).

The coat is heated by radio waves received on the portable set. The detachable hot water bottle decor, plastic visor, hot dog and bonfire are self-explanatory.

But the contents of the dog's keg remain unexplained. Mr. Irwin says that he presumes the flask holds hot coffee.

HELP WANTED

Several volunteers are still hard at work at Walsh House, 2020 Massachusetts ave. nw., making surgical dressings used at Gallinger and other local hospitals.

Additional volunteers are invited to drop in anytime between 9 a. m. and 4 p. m., Monday through Thursday. On Monday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings, the hours are from 6 to 9.

LABOR-SAVING DEVICE

Mrs. Richard L. Hiner of 110 Gallatin st. nw. has a tip for dial phone patrons who are in a hurry.

When you're dialing a big switchboard (usually a number ending in 00) you can save time by substituting a 1 for the final zero. And if the board has 12 or more trunk lines, a final 11 will also work.

HOW'S THAT AGAIN?

T. B. Case of Vienna, Va., wrinkles his brow over the news item which recently revealed that:

"Cash found (on streetcars and buses) totaled $17,407.40, of which $17,512.62 was claimed by losers. The remainder went to the finders."

Remainder?

SIPSHOD MEMORY

For drinks, and yet,
Just one wee swallow
Makes me forget.

NEW YORK. — Just before Ernst Lubitsch died he urged a young director to make field production his goal and told him that a film producer's job offers the most security in Hollywood. As an example Lubitsch told of the revolutionary period when silent films were abandoned. This was the day when Clara Bow, during a fire at Paramount, rushed out screaming, "I hope it's the sound stage."

The actors were called in and were warned that from now on grimacing wasn't enough—that they had to learn how to act and use their voices in the projection of characterizations. "Those of you who can't learn this new, theatrical technique must go," they were told. John Gilbert and many other stars had to retire.

The directors then were summoned and were advised that the megaphone-technique now was antiquated, that the advent of sound required a different method. Some of the top directors lost their jobs and couldn't find employment again. Then the writers were brought in and were notified that the age of title-writing was ended and that this new art form would make it necessary for them to write entire plays for the screen. Hundreds of the highest priced writing talent in Hollywood couldn't adapt themselves to the change and were fired.

Paul Graetz, the movie producer, was in France recently and discussed the Nation's problems with Jean Cocteau, the playwright . . . "I'll tell you what's the trouble with France these days," said Cocteau. "The trouble with France is that the people who run the country are too honest and too honorable. In other, brighter years France was ruled by men who held gay courts and had beautiful mistresses. They inspired an age of relaxation and laughter. But now?" Cocteau scoffed. "What can you expect of men who love only their own wives?

The Southern District Court here is swamped with applications for naturalization from men who postponed these proceedings because they had left their wives in Europe, and took up residence here with other women. But Judge Swan ruled that, as happened in most of these cases, where the wife has died and the applicants became free to marry, citizenship cannot be denied them on grounds of moral turpitude.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

How Whisky Holiday Was Lost

By Drew Pearson

When Chairman Jesse Wolcott of Michigan called his Banking and Currency Committee together to vote on extension of the whisky holiday he swore every member to secrecy. Under no circumstances, he said, must the details of the debate be breathed outside the committee room.

Wolcott

However, here is the story of the whisky debate that followed, together with another secret meeting, this one held by the big distillers.

The distillers' meeting was held in order to make sure that the whisky holiday, due to expire today midnight, would not be extended for another month. With the Senate favorable to an extension of the holiday, the distillers figured their only hope was to block the bill in the House Banking and Currency Committee.

Enthusiastically the Hiram Walker representative volunteered the information that the Senate whisky-holiday extension would be blocked in Wolcott's committee.

When Wolcott's committee met, here is what happened. GOP Congressman Donald Nicholson, obstreperous Massachusetts freshman, sat down in Mike Monroney's seat near the head of the table and offered a resolution to table the whisky holiday. He did this even before the resolution extending the holiday was read. His motion ended in a tie vote.

Another Republican, Frank Sundstrom of New Jersey, tried to break the deadlock with a compromise extending the whisky holiday for 30 days but giving the distillers 4,000,000 bushels of grain per month instead of their present 2,500,000 bushels. This was flatly rejected. Republicans demanded that the whisky holiday be completely abandoned, while Democrats refused to budge above the present monthly grain quota.

Wolcott Tirade

Chairman Wolcott then launched into a fiery tirade against controls.

"If you are going to put controls on liquor," he exploded, "you will have to put controls on steel next. People are tired of controls."

Democratic members fought back, led by Monroney of Oklahoma, Brooks Hays of Arkansas, Albert Rains of Alabama and Wright Patman of Texas. With the world starving, they said, Congress could not afford to put liquor ahead of bread.

They also reminded GOP colleagues that the whisky holiday was all that was left of the Republican anti-inflation bill. The Senate bill had been heartily indorsed by Taft and not one Republican Senator voted against it. Did the House Republicans intend to junk even this?

Alabama's Rains tried to push through a motion continuing the whisky holiday for one month with hearings to decide on a further six-month extension. But he got nowhere.

Finally Arkansas' Hays moved to vote the resolution out of committee and let the full membership vote on it. He lost, 12 to 9. All the Republicans except Stratton of Illinois voted to smother the bill in committee. Two Democrats joined them—Brent Spence of the big whisky State of Kentucky and Frank Buchanan of McKeesport, Pa. The loudest voices for the distillers were Wolcott, Nicholson and Sundstrom.

Defend Big Business

Four Democrats bolted President Truman in the secrecy of the last closed-door Ways and Means Committee session on taxes. They voted against cutting lower-bracket taxes and restoring partial excess-profits taxes on corporations.

The four Democratic backsliders were: Representatives Bob Doughton of North Carolina, Wilbur Mills of Arkansas, Noble Gregory of Kentucky and Sidney Camp of Georgia. Doughton was the most vigorous in demanding relief for the high-bracket taxpayers.

"They've got to be considered the same as the lower brackets," argued the 84-year-old North Carolinian. "A man with four dependents under this plan would get a total exemption of $200. That's no relief for a big taxpayer."

Tough Budget to Cut

Senate Republicans discussed the world's largest bankroll behind closed doors the other day and finally admitted that two billions is the most that can be trimmed off the President's domestic budget.

The Senators gathered in the stately, marble caucus room, swung the ponderous doors shut behind them and sweated for two hours over their great problem in subtraction. The big voices, policy-chairman Bob Taft, conference-chairman Eugene Millikin of Colorado and appropriations-chairman Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, did most of the talking.

Taft urged that the Republicans set a certain figure and then trim the budget to try to meet it.

"At best," he admitted, "it would be an intelligent guess. But we should try to stay within it, recognizing, of course, that some emergency might come up."

Millikin suggested slicing off a total of two billion dollars from the President's estimate, shaving off a little from each Government agency. Bridges warned that two billions was the most the Government's housekeeping expenses could be reduced. He read a list of appropriations that might be cut. When his ax fell sharply on reclamation projects, Senator Milt Young of North Dakota interrupted.

"What are you trying to do," he said, "give away the election?"

"I am just trying to illustrate," explained the New Hampshire Senator, "what it means when you talk about making cuts. If we start cutting this budget, we are not going to get all the projects we would like to have."

Idaho's Henry Dworshak delivered an impassioned harangue, urging that Federal employes be weeded out.

The conference finally ended just where it started—with no definite figure set.

Mrs. Parma Closes Long Legal Tilt Over Penthouse

Mrs. V. Valta Parma yesterday wound up a six-year legal siege after she was granted permission to remain in her twelfth floor penthouse in the Dupont Circle building until March 31.

Mrs. Parma had filed a motion for a new trial of a case heard earlier this month in which she was ordered to vacated her quarters in the building. The motion was denied by Municipal Court Judge Thomas Dewey Quinn. Attorneys from Mrs. Parma and Ducirco, Inc., owners of the property, agreed that she would be permitted to remain in the building until March 31 and she waived right to appeal the earlier decision.

Last of some 700 tenants who were ordered to vacate the building to make room for office space, Mrs. Parma has been battling the courts since 1941.

Wife Prefers Spankings To Having Spouse in Jail

Cleveland, Jan. 29 (U.P.)—Mrs. Lydia Klein, 36, decided she'd rather be spanked by her husband than let him languish in jail.

Henry Klein, 32, admitted in court he had spanked his wife twice a year for eight years. His wife charged he said the spankings weren't effective so he whipped her "bare hide" with his trouser belt.
